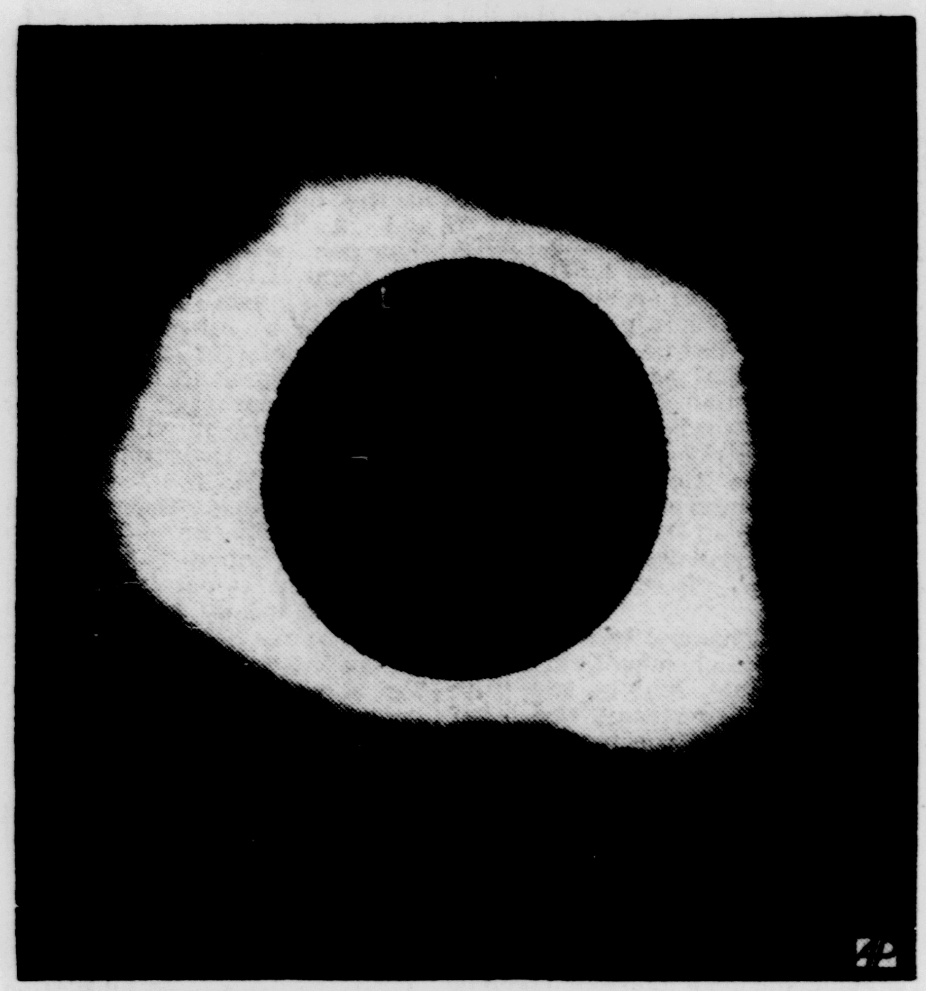
Atlantic Army Will Wait Until 1955 for Germans

Nature's Blackout



An awesome flare surrounds the hidden sun in this view of the total eclipse observed Feb. 25 in Khartoum, Sudan, by 70 scientists from 10 nations. The three-minute eclipse started at 4:09 a. m., eastern standard time, and was visible along a 9,000-mile path from mid-Atlantic to Siberia. Scienists chose Khartoum, virtually in the center of the eclipse's path, to record the phenomenon. (U.S. Navy Photo via radio from Cairo and AP Wirephoto).

Doolittle Group Begins Its Probe

Presidential Commission Meets Behind Closed Doors at Capital

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—A presidential commission headed by James H. Doolittle began a nationwide investigation of airport and airport-approach conditions today.

The commission met behind closed doors in the office of Charles F. Horne, civil aeronautics administrator.

President Truman asked the commission to look into the airport situation in the light of three recent crashes at Elizabeth, N. J., near the Newark Airport, in which 119 persons were killed.

Group Gets 90 Days

The group has been given 90 days for its study. It probably will devote particular attention to major airports which are surrounded by or adjacent to heavily populated residential areas, and is expected to make recommendations as to re-alignment of runways or other measures to reduce the amount of low-flying air traffic.

Truman also has asked for suggestions as to the location and use of new airports that may be proposed, both for civilian and for military purposes.

Three Are Members

The commission consists of Doolittle, retired air force general, Horne and Dr. Jerome C. Hunsaker of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

At Doolittle's request, the Defense Department appointed two men to represent it on the commission. They are Air Force Col. Theodore R. Milton, former chief of staff of the Berlin Airlift Task Force, and Navy Capt. Wilson P. Cogswell, director of the Defense Department's electronics product resources agency and former skipper of the aircraft carrier Shangri-La.

Own Attorneys Label Them as 'Silly and Stupid' for Actions

William A. Hauffe of New York, Louis J. Mininchelli and his wife Mildred Mininchelli of Saugerties were sentenced to terms of from 2½ to 5 years in prison Monday afternoon in County court for a crime which was described by their attorneys "silly and stupid" and by District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn as the "imperfect, perfect crime." Execution of the sentences was suspended and they were placed on probation for the maximum statutory period.

Sentence was suspended because it would be the children of the defendants who would suffer if the defendants were confined to prison. The Mininchelli family has three children and Hauffe one child.

There is a warrant issued out of the Domestic Relations court in New York for Hauffe on a non-support charge. He has been in jail since last October.

May Have Been Man's Idea

District Attorney Bruhn stated that the "perfect crime" planned by the trio, and which backfired, may have had its inception in the mind of Mininchelli who under the GI Bill of Rights was studying to be a detective when he renewed a service made acquaintance with Hauffe in New York. The plan was to have Hauffe, who was unknown locally, to come to Saugerties on a weekend and participate in a robbery of the Newberry store in the village where Mrs. Mininchelli was cashier. While Mininchelli was in conversation with the store manager at closing time, Hauffe was to enter the rear of the store and take the proceeds of the day. The act was to be reported as a robbery. A split of the money was to be made later, District Attorney Bruhn said.

The plan worked out well until the police became suspicious and went to the Mininchelli home where they found Hauff in bed with a large sum of money. There was a confession as to the scheme and all but about $15 of the money was recovered.

Calls Scheme 'Stupid'

Charles Gaffney, appearing for N. LeVan Haver, counsel for the defendants Mininchelli, told the court that the whole scheme was "stupid" and his clients now realized it. They had admitted their guilt to grand larceny, Mr. Mininchelli was now employed and their prior record had been good. He told the court they had three children who would suffer if the defendants were committed to prison and he asked leniency. William A. Riseley, counsel for Hauffe, said his client had committed a "stupid" crime for which he was now sorry. He to is married and has a child. Riseley asked for leniency, saying his client would leave Ulster county and give no further trouble here. Mininchelli and Hauffe were in the navy together and had renewed their acquaintance when Mininchelli attended the detective school in New York.

Are Given Sentences

Hauffe and Mininchelli were sentenced by Judge Cashin to terms from 2½ to 5 years at hard labor in Clinton State Prison, execution was suspended and they were placed on probation. Mrs. Mininchelli was sentenced to 2½ to 5 years in the Westfield State Prison for Women and the sentence was suspended and she too was placed on probation.

Joseph F. Nash, Kingston, was sentenced to a year in jail for violation of Section 483 of the Penal Law. Execution of sentence was suspended and he was placed

Both propositions for raising funds to equip a fire district within the bounds of the first election district of the town of Hurley were carried by a large vote last night when 331 voters of the West Hurley Fire District No. 1, turned out to cast their vote on the authorization of $80,000 to purchase fire fighting equipment and to erect a suitable firehouse to house the equipment.

Reds Reject Allied View On Russians

Chinese Colonel Declares Communists Unable to Consider Proposal on Matter

Accusations Made

Charges of Stalling Are Exchanged by Both Sides

Munsan, Korea, Feb. 26 (AP) — Communists today "categorically rejected" an allied proposal that would ban Russian supervision of a Korean truce.

The allies had proposed four neutral nations police the truce instead of six. This would cut Norway off the United Nations list and Russia off the Red nominations.

"We cannot consider" it, said Chinese Col. Pu Shan.

Staff officers also remained deadlocked on the number of ports of entry each side should be allowed during a truce. The allies now propose six, the Communists five.

Another group of staff officers devoted their entire session to minor differences in phraseology on arrangements for exchanging prisoners of war.

Accused of Stalling

As truce talks adjourned until Wednesday, each side accused the other of stalling.

The UN command made its compromise proposal on neutral supervisors Monday in an effort to get around the newest road block toward ending the bloodshed in Korea.

It would limit supervising nations to Sweden, Switzerland, and Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia. This would get rid of the Russian problem.

"The point is not the number of members on the neutral nations supervisory commission," Col. Pu Shan said. "but it is the question that one side cannot give reasons for objecting to the nominations of the other side."

Could Name Any

What he meant was that the Communists could name any nation they wanted to the commission, so long as it was not actively fighting in Korea, and the UN had nothing to say about it.

The allies have told the Reds the nominations of each side are subject to approval by the other; and that Soviet Russia is not acceptable because of past participation in Korea. The Red Korean army is trained, advised and supplied by Russia.

The day's sessions brought no mention of charges of germ warfare which have been spilling out over the air waves in recent days from Red radios and Peiping and Pyongyang.

Red China's Peiping radio, quoting Premier Chou En-lai, had linked truce talks with the charges by asserting the U. S. "employs all kinds of shameless stalling tactics to obstruct the progress of the negotiations on one hand and carries out callously brutal germ warfare on the other."

Port Authority Surprised By Statement on Airport

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 26 (AP) — The Port of New York Authority says a statement by Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer that he expects the reopening of Newark Airport "on a restricted basis" came as a surprise.

Austin J. Tobin, executive director of the Port Authority, said yesterday he knew nothing about Sawyer's statement until handed a news dispatch here. Tobin and other Port Authority officials were in Elizabeth testifying at a congressional hearing into the causes of the three recent airliner crashes in this city that took 119 lives.

The Port Authority was in no way responsible for Sawyer's statement and had nothing whatsoever to do with it, Tobin said.

In his statement, made in a speech at Florida State University at Talahassee, Sawyer said investigation showed the three crashes were due only to coincidence. He said he could understand the alarm felt by Elizabeth residents who demanded that Newark Airport be shuttered.

The Port Authority padlocked the airport immediately after the third crash, on Feb. 11.

Rep. Clifford P. Case (R-N. J.) said he could not believe that Sawyer meant the airport would be reopened before the congressional investigation is completed.

The special House Subcommittee spent the entire day hearing testimony from Port Authority officials, including Tobin, Commissioner John F. Sly and Aviation Director Fred M. Glass.

Plane takeoffs in the direction of Elizabeth will be completely eliminated with the completion of two runways under construction, Glass said. The Port Authority spent $24,000,000 since it took over Newark Airport in 1947 to develop facilities and increase safety, he added.

Glass denied that Runway No. 10—which points over Newark Bay but which the pilot of the third plane crash reportedly rejected—was defective because of two "small ripples" in the pavement. Previous reports said that the pilot turned down Runway 10 because it was defective and instead took a runway which led over Elizabeth.

The two runways under construction would head planes over water to the east 93 per cent of the time, with the remaining seven per cent going toward Newark.

In denying that Runway 10 was defective, Glass said that some 50 planes used that runway the morning of the crash to fly to other airfields when the shutdown order was announced. He added that it was a matter of individual pilot preference that led to use of Runway 24 pointing toward Elizabeth.

Meanwhile, in Washington the air force said it had no intention of asking the Port Authority to reopen Newark Airport for military use before investigations at federal, state, local and industry levels are completed.

Another site will be sought for its operations in shipping planes overseas to General Eisenhower's North Atlantic Pact forces, the air force said. At present, Floyd Bennett Field in Brooklyn, N. Y., is being used on a temporary basis. The air force shifted the operation to that airfield when Newark Airport was closed.

Powers Say Agreement Is Reached

Draft Is Sent Forward to Bonn for Final Approval by Adenauer Government

Cost Is 2 Billions

Breakdown on Uses for Money Is Tabulated in Report

Lisbon, Portugal, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Big Three western powers and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer have agreed West Germany should pitch in with 11¼ billion marks ($2,677,500,000) for western defense in the next year.

An official source said today a draft of the new agreement had been sent to Bonn for final approval by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government.

He gave these additional details:

The agreement was drafted last night by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, who stayed on here after the closing of the Atlantic Pact parley to settle some outstanding German and Austrian questions.

The ministers and their top advisers met again this morning. They also invited in the Benelux ministers to keep them informed.

Before them last night was a message from Bonn in which the federal government said it was ready to accept the figure of 11¼ billion marks as the size of its defense contribution. The amount had been recommended by top allied planners who were called in to measure Germany's capacity to pay.

Will Be Announced

If and when it is approved, the agreement will be announced simultaneously in Bonn, London, Paris, Washington and Lisbon.

The German contribution for the 1952-1953 period is expected to cover precisely:

1. Cost of maintaining and defending Berlin, police forces, frontier guards and the like.

2. Cost of getting an armed German force into the field as part of the projected European defense community.

3. Cost of equipping the German soldier, sailors and airmen who are selected for service.

4. Cost of maintaining Ameri-

'Peddlers' Warned

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Smiling Harry A. McDonald takes over today as boss of the scandal-marked Reconstruction Finance Corporation with a warning to influence peddlers to "stay away."

Senator Douglas (D- Ill.), calling McDonald honest but "too weak" to stand up to influence pressures, waged a futile two-hour fight in the Senate yesterday to block the appointment. The roll call vote in McDonald's favor was 46 to 23.

"No hard feelings," McDonald said later as he packed up to leave his present post as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

"I'm just out to do a job, and I'm going to do it," He told reporters.

"Influence peddlers would be well advised to stay away—I know how to handle that sort of thing."

Dean Says Aide, Not He, Was Hero Of Action in Korea

Sends Letter to Burchett, Communist Press Correspondent on His Status

Panmunjom, Korea, Feb. 26 (AP)—Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, highest ranking allied officer in Communist hands and a medal of honor winner, says his aide, not he was a hero.

The 52-year-old former commander of the U. S. 24th Division said in a letter from prison camp No. 6 in North Korea:

"I regret that I am not the hero" newspaper accounts "make me out to be."

The stories of Dean's experiences in South Korea during the month he eluded Communists before he was captured in August, 1950, came from Koreans he encountered and Americans who were with the general just before he lost contact with his troops.

Harriet Basch, 69, Dies on Airplane

Former Resident Becomes Ill Over Atlantic, Dispatch Says

Miss Harriet E. Basch, 69, of New York, a retired school teacher and former resident of this city, died today while on a plane trip from New York.

The Associated Press said she became ill on the plane while it was over the Atlantic ocean and died before the craft returned to Idlewild Airport.

Miss Basch, it was learned, was related to David Basch, who many years ago had conducted a wholesale vegetable and fish business on East Strand. She began her teaching career in Kingston and later taught in New York.

The plane was 400 miles from New York when Miss Basch be-

Night Raider Story Tells What Pilots Do to Red Areas

With U. S. Fast Carrier Essex off Korea, Feb. 25 (Delayed) (AP)—The unhappiest American is a sawed-off 36-year-old pilot called Felix Bertagna, of Andover, N. H. He can sit in the wardroom of the carrier Essex and just about break your heart.

"Look at me!" he wails. "I'm one of the best trained men in the navy. A night heckler. I take a plane off this tub in darkness, I go over Korea and fight in darkness, than I come back in darkness to find this lousy bucket, and in pitch darkness I make a carrier landing."

Is that why he is so mournful?

"No! It's because they won't give me any work to do. Pitiful little missions. It would break your heart to be the best trained man in the fleet and then to be completely misused.

"What burns me up is that everybody leaves us in a corner. Like poor country cousins. No correspondent ever comes out with us. You wouldn't dare take a night flight, would you?"

(The admiral explained that correspondents aren't permitted on night flights. Michener had special orders to make one, but even then had to argue. The admiral wanted to talk him out of going.)

So this morning we rolled out of bed at 3, had a big breakfast, then we heard the bad news. Since I was going Felix and his wingman, Red Stillwell of Independence, Mo., would be given the safe and uninteresting shore route.. But "don't take any risks."

Felix mumbled, "that's the way it always is."

Ghostly Experience

At 4:30 we went topside onto the pitch black carrier deck. It was ghostly with the shadows of many planes.

There is nothing like a night catapult launching. You are whipped forward at enormous speed, shot out into perfect darkness, dropped perilously low over the ocean that you can't see, and then shoved upward ino the sky. It's an amazing sensation.

Felix and Red said little over their two-way radio but finally Felix cried, "Looks like Hungnam dead ahead." Three or four lights, the shadow of a river. That was all. But it was our starting point.

Sensational Flight

We roared up the coast at 250 miles an hour and then with a burst of pure luck Felix opened up what was to be one of the most sensational night flights in history. He thought he saw a light in what could have been a very large building. "I don't see anything," Red said. "I'll drop a hundred pounder anyway," Felix replied.

He leveled off for a terrific bomb run, dropped to 150 feet and let go. There was a gigantic ex-

Rosenbergs' Hope Is Appeal Now to U. S. Supreme Court

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, husband and wife sentenced to die for giving Russia atomic secrets, looked to the U. S. Supreme Court today to save them from the electric chair.

The Rosenbergs, first Americans ever doomed for espionage outside a military courtroom, planned to appeal to the nation's highest tribunal after a U. S. Court of Appeals yesterday upheld unanimously their espionage convictions and death sentences.

Defense Attorney Emanuel K. Block said he "definitely" would take the case to the Supreme Court.

If the Supreme Court rules against the Rosenbergs, only a commutation of their sentence by the President could keep them from dying in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison.

Rosenberg, an electrical engineer who will be 34 in May, and his 36-year-old wife were convicted of ferreting out wartime American secrets for the same Russian-bossed spy ring that included imprisoned British scientist Klaus Fuchs.

Another defendant at the Rosenberg's trial a year ago was 35-year-old Morton Sobell, who drew 30 years for his part in the plot.

The Appeals Court yesterday also upheld the conviction of Sobell, who was charged generally with being a member of the conspiracy. He escaped the death penalty because he was not linked, as the Rosenbergs were, to the actual theft of the atomic data.

It was not immediately known whether Sobell would appeal.

Officials at Sing Sing Prison, where the Rosenbergs occupy death house cells, said the couple had not learned officially of the

Georgia Senator May Be Pushed Into Race for Post

(By The Associated Press)

Smouldering Dixie opposition to President Truman was being fanned today by admirers of Georgia's Senator Richard B. Russell.

Russell's home state supporters may propel him into the middle of the Democratic presidential race this week.

Russell wouldn't comment on a request by the Georgia Democratic Executive Committee that he become an active candidate. But his friends said they doubt that Russell could refuse.

The Georgian headed the 1948 Democratic convention rebellion against Truman but did not join the state rights movement which took 39 electoral votes from the President in the election.

Jack Bell, Associated Press political reporter, said today the Georgia move would likely spur southern opponents of the President into an effort to swing other states behind Russell.

In Florida the Russell movement got a shot in the arm yesterday when nine Floridians instructed to support him qualified as candidates for state delegates to the Democratic national convention.

Paves Way for Break

In Mississippi, the House of Representatives paved the way for another possible break with the national party. It voted without dissent for all political parties to nominate anyone they wish as the state organization's choice for president and vice president.

Bell said southern Democrats feel the Dixie revolt would collapse if almost any candidate other than Truman were nominated.

Even so, some of them fear Tennessee's Senator Estes Kefauver may split the southern vote. Many leaders in the south remain cool toward Kefauver's candidacy.

The Tennessee senator continued his busy campaigning, going into the President's home

Three Plead Guilty To Shaving Points

Barnstable, Beard, Groza Admit to Conspiring With Gamblers

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Three former University of Kentucky basketball stars—Dale Barnstable, Ralph Beard and Alex Groza—pleaded guilty today to conspiring with gamblers to shave points in a Madison Square Garden game in 1949.

Barnstable captained the 1948-49 Kentucky five, one of the top teams in the nation. The other two defendants were All-America players.

They were among the best-known of 32 players from seven schools so far named in the collegiate basketball scandals.

The game in which they admitted conspiring was the National Invitation Tournament clash with Loyola of Chicago on March 14, 1949. Loyola, the underdog, won 67 to 56.

The three players were indicted on two counts, conspiracy and accepting a bribe.

Permitted to Plead

They were permitted to plead to the conspiracy charge. The more serious bribery count was, in effect, dropped.

Conspiracy is a misdemeanor, punishable by a sentence in the New York city penitentiary for an indefinite term up to three years. Bribery is a felony, punishable by a state prison term.

The stars pleaded before General Session Judge Saul S. Streit, who paroled them until March 28, when sentence will be pronounced.

In addition to the former Kentucky players, the box score on athletes in the scandal reads: Five sentenced to jail, 13 sentenced to suspended terms, three others indicted and eight others under arrest.

Colleges involved include Kentucky, Manhattan, New York University, Long Island University, College of the City of New York, Bradley University and Toledo.

Politics Is Reason for Slow Move

French Developments Cited as Having Set Back Previous Time Table

To Use Volunteers

Those First in Service Are to Train Draftees for Divisions

Bonn, Germany, Feb. 25 (AP)—Allied officials said today that the Atlantic army will have to wait at least until 1955 for the 12 German divisions it counts on to help defend the West.

Despite the green light given the European army by the Atlantic allies at their Lisbon conference, these officials said that recent political developments, especially in France, have set back the previous time table calling for combat-ready German troops by 1954.

The sources here explain the situation thus:

The Germans will need two full years from the starting points to call up, arm and train 300,000 to 400,000 men to serve with the six-nation European army.

None Before 1953

The outlook now is that not a single German soldier will be drafted before early 1953 and perhaps months later.

The Germans plan to start their new army with small units of volunteers who later will take over the training of draftees.

Nor do these prospects for German manpower for western defense take into account a possible change in West German government. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's pro-rearmament Coalition faces an election battle in the summer of 1953 with the bitterly anti-rearmament Socialists.

Socialists Oppose

The Socialists warned last weekend that they would continue to oppose German participation in the western defense system "under present conditions," even if they take over the government next year.

They have demanded immediate elections.

Although the Germans are free to make preparations now for recruiting troops, they cannot put men into uniform until:

1—The six west European nations—France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg—complete the draft treaty for the European army.

2—The six parliaments ratify the treaty.

3—The German Parliament approves a separate conscription bill.

With the European army scheme facing stiff battles in the French and German Parliaments and perhaps in Belgium, allied officials believe the ratification process will consume months.

Will Roll on for Months

Some German leaders feel that the fight over the conscription in Bonn will roll on for months too—perhaps into 1953.

The United States is expected to speed German rearming with equipment, funds and training personnel, but the barriers to the quick formation of German units are enormous, allied officials said.

The Germans have no training areas, no airfields, no pilots, and no officer corps or non-commissioned officers experienced in the latest techniques of warfare.

Every day that German rearmament is delayed saves the German taxpayer some 12 million marks ($2,857,200). This is the difference between the one and one-half billion dollars a year the Germans are paying now in occupation costs and the amount—about twice that—they are offering to pay after they join the Western Defense Community.

Dewey Gets Measure

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—Governor Dewey received today legislation to increase from seven to 10 the number of district judges in Nassau county. The measure, introduced by Republican Assemblyman Joseph F. Carlino of Long Beach, was given final legislative approval last night in the Senate. It would provide that the judges be elected on the basis of one for each 75,000 population, or fraction thereof, on the basis of the 1950 census. The county's population is about 750,000.

William A. Hauffe of New York, Louis J. The UN command made its compromise proposal on neutral supervisors Monday in an effort to get around the newest road block toward ending the bloodshed in Korea.

It would limit supervising nations to Sweden, Switzerland, and Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia. This would get rid of the Russian problem.

"The point is not the number of members on the neutral nations supervisory commission," Col. Pu Shan said. "but it is the question that one side cannot give reasons for objecting to the nominations of the other side."

Could Name Any

What he meant was that the Communists could name any nation they wanted to the commission, so long as it was not actively fighting in Korea, and the UN had nothing to say about it.

The allies have told the Reds the nominations of each side are subject to approval by the other; and that Soviet Russia is not acceptable because of past participation in Korea. The Red Korean army is trained, advised and supplied by Russia.

The day's sessions brought no mention of charges of germ warfare which have been spilling out over the air waves in recent days from Red radios and Peiping and Pyongyang.

Red China's Peiping radio, quoting Premier Chou En-lai, had linked truce talks with the charges by asserting the U. S. "employs all kinds of shameless stalling tactics to obstruct the progress of the negotiations on one hand and carries out callously brutal germ warfare on the other."

Atlantic Army Will Wait Until 1955 for Germans

Cost Is 2 Billions

Breakdown on Uses for Money Is Tabulated in Report

Lisbon, Portugal, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Big Three western powers and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer have agreed West Germany should pitch in with 11¼ billion marks ($2,677,500,000) for western defense in the next year.

An official source said today a draft of the new agreement had been sent to Bonn for final approval by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government.

He gave these additional details:

The agreement was drafted last night by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, who stayed on here after the closing of the Atlantic Pact parley to settle some outstanding German and Austrian questions.

The ministers and their top advisers met again this morning. They also invited in the Benelux ministers to keep them informed.

Before them last night was a message from Bonn in which the federal government said it was ready to accept the figure of 11¼ billion marks as the size of its defense contribution. The amount had been recommended by top allied planners who were called in to measure Germany's capacity to pay.

Will Be Announced

If and when it is approved, the agreement will be announced simultaneously in Bonn, London, Paris, Washington and Lisbon.

The German contribution for the 1952-1953 period is expected to cover precisely:

1. Cost of maintaining and defending Berlin, police forces, frontier guards and the like.

2. Cost of getting an armed German force into the field as part of the projected European defense community.

3. Cost of equipping the German soldier, sailors and airmen who are selected for service.

4. Cost of maintaining Ameri-

Port Authority Surprised By Statement on Airport

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 26 (AP) — The Port of New York Authority says a statement by Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer that he expects the reopening of Newark Airport "on a restricted basis" came as a surprise.

Austin J. Tobin, executive director of the Port Authority, said yesterday he knew nothing about Sawyer's statement until handed a news dispatch here. Tobin and other Port Authority officials were in Elizabeth testifying at a congressional hearing into the causes of the three recent airliner crashes in this city that took 119 lives.

The Port Authority was in no way responsible for Sawyer's statement and had nothing whatsoever to do with it, Tobin said.

In his statement, made in a speech at Florida State University at Talahassee, Sawyer said investigation showed the three crashes were due only to coincidence. He said he could understand the alarm felt by Elizabeth residents who demanded that Newark Airport be shuttered.

The Port Authority padlocked the airport immediately after the third crash, on Feb. 11.

Rep. Clifford P. Case (R-N. J.) said he could not believe that Sawyer meant the airport would be reopened before the congressional investigation is completed.

The special House Subcommittee spent the entire day hearing testimony from Port Authority officials, including Tobin, Commissioner John F. Sly and Aviation Director Fred M. Glass.

Plane takeoffs in the direction of Elizabeth will be completely eliminated with the completion of two runways under construction, Glass said. The Port Authority spent $24,000,000 since it took over Newark Airport in 1947 to develop facilities and increase safety, he added.

Glass denied that Runway No. 10—which points over Newark Bay but which the pilot of the third plane crash reportedly rejected—was defective because of two "small ripples" in the pavement. Previous reports said that the pilot turned down Runway 10 because it was defective and instead took a runway which led over Elizabeth.

The two runways under construction would head planes over water to the east 93 per cent of the time, with the remaining seven per cent going toward Newark.

In denying that Runway 10 was defective, Glass said that some 50 planes used that runway the morning of the crash to fly to other airfields when the shutdown order was announced. He added that it was a matter of individual pilot preference that led to use of Runway 24 pointing toward Elizabeth.

Meanwhile, in Washington the air force said it had no intention of asking the Port Authority to reopen Newark Airport for military use before investigations at federal, state, local and industry levels are completed.

Another site will be sought for its operations in shipping planes overseas to General Eisenhower's North Atlantic Pact forces, the air force said. At present, Floyd Bennett Field in Brooklyn, N. Y., is being used on a temporary basis. The air force shifted the operation to that airfield when Newark Airport was closed.

'Peddlers' Warned

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Smiling Harry A. McDonald takes over today as boss of the scandal-marked Reconstruction Finance Corporation with a warning to influence peddlers to "stay away."

Senator Douglas (D- Ill.), calling McDonald honest but "too weak" to stand up to influence pressures, waged a futile two-hour fight in the Senate yesterday to block the appointment. The roll call vote in McDonald's favor was 46 to 23.

"No hard feelings," McDonald said later as he packed up to leave his present post as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

"I'm just out to do a job, and I'm going to do it," He told reporters.

"Influence peddlers would be well advised to stay away—I know how to handle that sort of thing."

Panmunjom, Korea, Feb. 26 (AP)—Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, highest ranking allied officer in Communist hands and a medal of honor winner, says his aide, not he was a hero.

The 52-year-old former commander of the U. S. 24th Division said in a letter from prison camp No. 6 in North Korea:

"I regret that I am not the hero" newspaper accounts "make me out to be."

The stories of Dean's experiences in South Korea during the month he eluded Communists before he was captured in August, 1950, came from Koreans he encountered and Americans who were with the general just before he lost contact with his troops.

Harriet Basch, 69, Dies on Airplane

Former Resident Becomes Ill Over Atlantic, Dispatch Says

Miss Harriet E. Basch, 69, of New York, a retired school teacher and former resident of this city, died today while on a plane trip from New York.

The Associated Press said she became ill on the plane while it was over the Atlantic ocean and died before the craft returned to Idlewild Airport.

Miss Basch, it was learned, was related to David Basch, who many years ago had conducted a wholesale vegetable and fish business on East Strand. She began her teaching career in Kingston and later taught in New York.

The plane was 400 miles from New York when Miss Basch be-

Rosenbergs' Hope Is Appeal Now to U. S. Supreme Court

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, husband and wife sentenced to die for giving Russia atomic secrets, looked to the U. S. Supreme Court today to save them from the electric chair.

The Rosenbergs, first Americans ever doomed for espionage outside a military courtroom, planned to appeal to the nation's highest tribunal after a U. S. Court of Appeals yesterday upheld unanimously their espionage convictions and death sentences.

Defense Attorney Emanuel K. Block said he "definitely" would take the case to the Supreme Court.

If the Supreme Court rules against the Rosenbergs, only a commutation of their sentence by the President could keep them from dying in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison.

Rosenberg, an electrical engineer who will be 34 in May, and his 36-year-old wife were convicted of ferreting out wartime American secrets for the same Russian-bossed spy ring that included imprisoned British scientist Klaus Fuchs.

Another defendant at the Rosenberg's trial a year ago was 35-year-old Morton Sobell, who drew 30 years for his part in the plot.

The Appeals Court yesterday also upheld the conviction of Sobell, who was charged generally with being a member of the conspiracy. He escaped the death penalty because he was not linked, as the Rosenbergs were, to the actual theft of the atomic data.

It was not immediately known whether Sobell would appeal.

Officials at Sing Sing Prison, where the Rosenbergs occupy death house cells, said the couple had not learned officially of the

Night Raider Story Tells What Pilots Do to Red Areas

Correspondent Gets Chills Riding With Flier Who Cries for More Action

By JAMES A. MICHENER

With U. S. Fast Carrier Essex off Korea, Feb. 25 (Delayed) (AP)—The unhappiest American is a sawed-off 36-year-old pilot called Felix Bertagna, of Andover, N. H. He can sit in the wardroom of the carrier Essex and just about break your heart.

"Look at me!" he wails. "I'm one of the best trained men in the navy. A night heckler. I take a plane off this tub in darkness, I go over Korea and fight in darkness, than I come back in darkness to find this lousy bucket, and in pitch darkness I make a carrier landing."

Is that why he is so mournful?

"No! It's because they won't give me any work to do. Pitiful little missions. It would break your heart to be the best trained man in the fleet and then to be completely misused.

"What burns me up is that everybody leaves us in a corner. Like poor country cousins. No correspondent ever comes out with us. You wouldn't dare take a night flight, would you?"

(The admiral explained that correspondents aren't permitted on night flights. Michener had special orders to make one, but even then had to argue. The admiral wanted to talk him out of going.)

So this morning we rolled out of bed at 3, had a big breakfast, then we heard the bad news. Since I was going Felix and his wingman, Red Stillwell of Independence, Mo., would be given the safe and uninteresting shore route.. But "don't take any risks."

Ghostly Experience

At 4:30 we went topside onto the pitch black carrier deck. It was ghostly with the shadows of many planes.

There is nothing like a night catapult launching. You are whipped forward at enormous speed, shot out into perfect darkness, dropped perilously low over the ocean that you can't see, and then shoved upward ino the sky. It's an amazing sensation.

Felix and Red said little over their two-way radio but finally Felix cried, "Looks like Hungnam dead ahead." Three or four lights, the shadow of a river. That was all. But it was our starting point.

Sensational Flight

We roared up the coast at 250 miles an hour and then with a burst of pure luck Felix opened up what was to be one of the most sensational night flights in history. He thought he saw a light in what could have been a very large building. "I don't see anything," Red said. "I'll drop a hundred pounder anyway," Felix replied.

He leveled off for a terrific bomb run, dropped to 150 feet and let go. There was a gigantic ex-

Georgia Senator May Be Pushed Into Race for Post

(By The Associated Press)

Smouldering Dixie opposition to President Truman was being fanned today by admirers of Georgia's Senator Richard B. Russell.

Russell's home state supporters may propel him into the middle of the Democratic presidential race this week.

Russell wouldn't comment on a request by the Georgia Democratic Executive Committee that he become an active candidate. But his friends said they doubt that Russell could refuse.

The Georgian headed the 1948 Democratic convention rebellion against Truman but did not join the state rights movement which took 39 electoral votes from the President in the election.

Jack Bell, Associated Press political reporter, said today the Georgia move would likely spur southern opponents of the President into an effort to swing other states behind Russell.

In Florida the Russell movement got a shot in the arm yesterday when nine Floridians instructed to support him qualified as candidates for state delegates to the Democratic national convention.

Paves Way for Break

In Mississippi, the House of Representatives paved the way for another possible break with the national party. It voted without dissent for all political parties to nominate anyone they wish as the state organization's choice for president and vice president.

Bell said southern Democrats feel the Dixie revolt would collapse if almost any candidate other than Truman were nominated.

Even so, some of them fear Tennessee's Senator Estes Kefauver may split the southern vote. Many leaders in the south remain cool toward Kefauver's candidacy.

The Tennessee senator continued his busy campaigning, going into the President's home

Three Plead Guilty To Shaving Points

Barnstable, Beard, Groza Admit to Conspiring With Gamblers

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Three former University of Kentucky basketball stars—Dale Barnstable, Ralph Beard and Alex Groza—pleaded guilty today to conspiring with gamblers to shave points in a Madison Square Garden game in 1949.

Barnstable captained the 1948-49 Kentucky five, one of the top teams in the nation. The other two defendants were All-America players.

They were among the best-known of 32 players from seven schools so far named in the collegiate basketball scandals.

The game in which they admitted conspiring was the National Invitation Tournament clash with Loyola of Chicago on March 14, 1949. Loyola, the underdog, won 67 to 56.

The three players were indicted on two counts, conspiracy and accepting a bribe.

Permitted to Plead

They were permitted to plead to the conspiracy charge. The more serious bribery count was, in effect, dropped.

Conspiracy is a misdemeanor, punishable by a sentence in the New York city penitentiary for an indefinite term up to three years. Bribery is a felony, punishable by a state prison term.

The stars pleaded before General Session Judge Saul S. Streit, who paroled them until March 28, when sentence will be pronounced.

In addition to the former Kentucky players, the box score on athletes in the scandal reads: Five sentenced to jail, 13 sentenced to suspended terms, three others indicted and eight others under arrest.

Colleges involved include Kentucky, Manhattan, New York University, Long Island University, College of the City of New York, Bradley University and Toledo.

Politics Is Reason for Slow Move

French Developments Cited as Having Set Back Previous Time Table

To Use Volunteers

Those First in Service Are to Train Draftees for Divisions

Bonn, Germany, Feb. 25 (AP)—Allied officials said today that the Atlantic army will have to wait at least until 1955 for the 12 German divisions it counts on to help defend the West.

Despite the green light given the European army by the Atlantic allies at their Lisbon conference, these officials said that recent political developments, especially in France, have set back the previous time table calling for combat-ready German troops by 1954.

The sources here explain the situation thus:

The Germans will need two full years from the starting points to call up, arm and train 300,000 to 400,000 men to serve with the six-nation European army.

None Before 1953

The outlook now is that not a single German soldier will be drafted before early 1953 and perhaps months later.

The Germans plan to start their new army with small units of volunteers who later will take over the training of draftees.

Nor do these prospects for German manpower for western defense take into account a possible change in West German government. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's pro-rearmament Coalition faces an election battle in the summer of 1953 with the bitterly anti-rearmament Socialists.

Socialists Oppose

The Socialists warned last weekend that they would continue to oppose German participation in the western defense system "under present conditions," even if they take over the government next year.

They have demanded immediate elections.

Although the Germans are free to make preparations now for recruiting troops, they cannot put men into uniform until:

1—The six west European nations—France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg—complete the draft treaty for the European army.

2—The six parliaments ratify the treaty.

3—The German Parliament approves a separate conscription bill.

With the European army scheme facing stiff battles in the French and German Parliaments and perhaps in Belgium, allied officials believe the ratification process will consume months.

Will Roll on for Months

Some German leaders feel that the fight over the conscription in Bonn will roll on for months too—perhaps into 1953.

The United States is expected to speed German rearming with equipment, funds and training personnel, but the barriers to the quick formation of German units are enormous, allied officials said.

The Germans have no training areas, no airfields, no pilots, and no officer corps or non-commissioned officers experienced in the latest techniques of warfare.

Every day that German rearmament is delayed saves the German taxpayer some 12 million marks ($2,857,200). This is the difference between the one and one-half billion dollars a year the Germans are paying now in occupation costs and the amount—about twice that—they are offering to pay after they join the Western Defense Community.

Dewey Gets Measure

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—Governor Dewey received today legislation to increase from seven to 10 the number of district judges in Nassau county. The measure, introduced by Republican Assemblyman Joseph F. Carlino of Long Beach, was given final legislative approval last night in the Senate. It would provide that the judges be elected on the basis of one for each 75,000 population, or fraction thereof, on the basis of the 1950 census. The county's population is about 750,000.

$150,000 in Furs Seized by Police

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Approximately $150,000 worth of furs, jewelry and other loot was seized today by police investigating scores of mid-town burglaries.

Two men and a woman were taken in custody for questioning. Police said they were investigating the possibility that the case might have some bearing on the slaying of Nat Nelson, 37, dress manufacturer, early this month.

Detectives also said the loot might be related to the case of suspended Detective James J. Fox, 33, arrested more than a week ago with three other men on charges of attempted burglary and possession of burglar tools.

Fox, at liberty in $15,000 bail pending a hearing March 3, appeared today at the police headquarters annex while the two men were being questioned about the recovered loot. He told reporters that he was there only "to pick up a wallet."

The woman in the case was booked as Mrs. Jennie Hansuld, 53, of Manhattan, arrested last night on a charge of procuring for prostitution. Police said that a book taken from her was being examined by the district attorney's office to determine whether it might provide names of possible burglar victims.

Five Killed, 12 Hurt

Omaha, Feb. 26 (AP)—A four-engine B-50 bomber crashed and burned while landing today at Offutt Air Force Base near Omaha, killing five and injuring the other 12 persons aboard. Quick action by an emergency fire fighting squad at the base was credited by a base spokesman with keeping down the loss of life. Cause of the crash was not immediately determined but a wing was said to have come off the medium bomber just before the crash. It occurred about 300 feet down the runway at Offutt base, headquarters of the far-flung strategic air command.

Court Order Sought

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—A New York state body is seeking a federal court order requiring the Long Island Railroad to spend $11,800,000 on better passenger cars for "safe and adequate service." Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's Long Island Transit Authority says the railroad should scrap 296 old cars which have collision guards "below the required modern standards of strength." The Transit Authority suggests that the bankrupt railroad purchase 50 new cars and start the "rehabilitation of existing electric cars and the 'class' overhaul of non-electric cars."

Five-Year Olds Roam From Home

They walked from their homes in the Lincoln Park section out Route 9W as far as the Glenerie Lake road. There, about 4:30 p. m., they were noticed by Anthony DePaola, mushroom grower, who notified state police. Troopers from the Kingston substation picked them up and took them back to the station.

Why all the excitement? Charlie and Chris were both five years old, state police said, and their parents had become alarmed at their disappearance. Troopers entertained them at the station until their parents called for them. Troopers said the youngsters' full names are Charles Emerick of Lay street, and Christine Hetsco of Nicholas street.

Youthful Quartet Blamed for Thefts Over 2-Month Span

The sheriff's office last night detained four boys, from 15 to 17 years old, on burglary and delinquency charges which authorities said resulted from investigation of a two-month series of thefts in Ulster county.

County Investigator Arthur H. Brown, who conducted the investigation and made the arrests, said the boys confessed to participation in four separate automobile tire thefts and two house burglaries between Dec. 15, 1951, and Feb. 15 of this year. Some, but not all of the boys were involved in each reported theft, Brown alleged, and all were involved in at least one theft out of the six.

Items Recovered

Brown brought to the court house items he said were reported stolen an were recovered last night with the arrest of the boys. Included were tires, wheels and tubes; a radio-phonograph; an automobile jack and tire pump; various tools including an electric drill; canned goods and a case of soft drinks.

The two oldest boys were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Lester Davis of the town of Olive on third degree burglary charges. Both waived examination and were ordered held for the grand jury. They were booked as Theodore W. Nelson, Jr., 16, of Kerhonkson, and Willis C. Quick, Jr., 17, of 9 Mountain avenue, Ellenville.

Specific Charge

They were accused specifically of entering the Anthony LoMelli summer residence in Samsonville. Reported as missing from that place were cartridges and shotgun shells, rifle and shotgun cleaning kits, the radio-phonograph combination and a tire pump. All the items have been recovered except the cartridges, shells and one of the gun cleaning kits, the sheriff's office claimed.

The two youngest boys, both 15, were held for children's court action.

Other "jobs" to which the sheriff's office claims one or more of the group confessed were reported by Brown:

The reported theft of pots, pans and blankets from Rubackin's Boarding House in Pataukunk.

Theft of all four tires and wheels from a car at Granite, two tires from autos in a used car lot in Ellenville, two new spare tires from vehicles parked near the Ellenville High School, and a tire and wheel from George Barthell's automobile at Pataukunk.

Powerie Trial Is Postponed Again

Port Jervis, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—The departmental trial of suspended acting police chief John J. Powerie has been postponed for a third time—until March 27.

The case, in which Powerie is accused of misconduct and conduct unbecoming an officer, was scheduled to come before the common council Thursday night this week.

But the council put off the hearing on recommendation of Corporation Counsel Harry Silvers who said he had a letter from Powerie's attorney saying Powerie was too ill to appear.

He suffered a heart disorder early last December, causing previous postponements.

Cardiac Employment

Rehabilitation, retraining, and employment of heart disease patients so they can resume their roles as useful citizens is a major national health problem and a prime goal of the American Heart Association and its affiliates. Such a program assumes even greater importance in this time of national emergency when every available man-hour of work is needed for national defense. The affiliated Heart associations already have launched programs to fill this need, but additional public financial support is required urgently to extend the program so that every cardiac patient in the nation is brought to the peak of his safe productive capacity. Contributions to the Heart Fund will help this vital effort. Send your donation to "Heart," 74 John street, Kingston, N. Y.

Trailer Accident Delays 9W Traffic

Traffic was blocked for a considerable time on Route 9W north of Malden Monday evening after a trailer truck crashed against a railroad bridge and had to be towed away, state police reported. Adding to the delay was the fact that diesel fuel spilled and made the highway slippery so that troopers held up traffic until a state highway department truck sanded the roadway.

Troopers reported the tractor trailer owned by Knaust Brothers, Inc., of Catskill struck guard rails, hit the west side of the bridge then swung over into the east side of the structure. The driver, Arthur Miles Sherman, 30, of Catskill, told troopers the accident occurred about 7:45 p. m. when he swerved to avoid an unknown automobile that was "crowding the middle of the road" on the curve approaching the bridge. No personal injuries were reported and no arrest was made.

Testimony Is Sought

Detroit, Feb. 26 (AP)—Given a blue print of reputed Communist party organization in industrial Detroit in the 1940's, the House Un-American Activities Committee called today for further testimony. A subcommittee of the group reconvened to resume a probe which it says will show Communist attempts to "infiltrate" industry. Already the group's appearance in the motor city has excited great attention, though not all of it because of the hearing's subject matter.

Living Costs Level Off

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Living costs, now at an all-time high, seem to be leveling off somewhat—but no one can tell if inflation is really stopped. The government's living cost index for mid-January was due today and was expected to show little if any change from a month earlier. This expected pause in the steadily increasing living cost trend since the Korean war began may be only temporary, or reflect post-holiday price declines.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—A few favored oil issues provided an island of strength today in an otherwise generally lower stock market.

Losses were fractions to around 2 points at the outside among leaders with the bulk of the list moving narrowly lower.

Amerada jumped ahead 8 points at 181 shortly after the company announced it had brought in another new well in North Dakota with the possibility that it may prove to be the opening of a new field in that state. The stock opened on a block of 1,200 shares up 4, moved up to an 8-point gain, and fell back slightly.

Northern Pacific, which has holdings in that area, was ahead a major fraction during bursts of activity, but declined later. Union Pacific, a railroad that acts like an oil stock at times when income from its oil interests is emphasized in the minds of buyers, also was higher. The remainder of the railroads were almost universally lower.

In the unchanged to lower class were steeels, chemicals, and nonferrous metals. Motors and utilities were fairly steady, and other major groups in the market were narrowly mixed.

Applications Cut On Talent Show

Literally swamped by local applications for the Ulster County Talent Hunt eliminations, a pleased and grateful Chamber of Commerce committee Monday night somewhat reluctantly took the action that means the promotion was too much of a success—it closed applications.

With more than 90 applications already on hand, Howard C. St. John, chairman, and Lawrence Quilty and Lawrence Jenson, committee members, met and decided they could not possibly accept any more applications.

Only three nights are available for the Kingston preliminaries in the talent quest, March 4, 5 and 10. The absolute maximum that can be fairly auditioned in one night is 30.

Four winners and four alternates will be selected during the preliminaries for auditioning on April 2 by members of Ted Mack's Amateur Hour staff. Winners selected that night will appear on the Amateur Hour on radio and TV in New York.

The favorable response and the great amount of local interest shown left open the possibility that similar talent hunts may be sponsored locally by the Chamber of Commerce here in future years, dependent upon the wishes of the Ted Mack program, it was learned today.

Assembly Passes Bill to Compel All To Explain Acts

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—The Assembly has passed legislation to compel all persons found in an automobile with a dope peddler to explain their activities even though they were not carrying narcotics when picked up.

A second Dewey bill that passed the Assembly last night would prohibit drug stores and other retail outlets from selling hypodermic needles and syringes to person's without doctors' prescriptions.

Diabetics and other chronically ill persons would be permitted to buy such equipment without a new prescription for each purchase, but they would be required to renew their prescriptions at least once a year.

$150,000 in Furs Seized by Police

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Approximately $150,000 worth of furs, jewelry and other loot was seized today by police investigating scores of mid-town burglaries.

Two men and a woman were taken in custody for questioning. Police said they were investigating the possibility that the case might have some bearing on the slaying of Nat Nelson, 37, dress manufacturer, early this month.

Detectives also said the loot might be related to the case of suspended Detective James J. Fox, 33, arrested more than a week ago with three other men on charges of attempted burglary and possession of burglar tools.

Fox, at liberty in $15,000 bail pending a hearing March 3, appeared today at the police headquarters annex while the two men were being questioned about the recovered loot. He told reporters that he was there only "to pick up a wallet."

The woman in the case was booked as Mrs. Jennie Hansuld, 53, of Manhattan, arrested last night on a charge of procuring for prostitution. Police said that a book taken from her was being examined by the district attorney's office to determine whether it might provide names of possible burglar victims.

Omaha, Feb. 26 (AP)—A four-engine B-50 bomber crashed and burned while landing today at Offutt Air Force Base near Omaha, killing five and injuring the other 12 persons aboard. Quick action by an emergency fire fighting squad at the base was credited by a base spokesman with keeping down the loss of life. Cause of the crash was not immediately determined but a wing was said to have come off the medium bomber just before the crash. It occurred about 300 feet down the runway at Offutt base, headquarters of the far-flung strategic air command.

The Transit Authority suggests that the bankrupt railroad purchase 50 new cars and start the "rehabilitation of existing electric cars and the 'class' overhaul of non-electric cars."

Five-Year Olds Roam From Home

They walked from their homes in the Lincoln Park section out Route 9W as far as the Glenerie Lake road. There, about 4:30 p. m., they were noticed by Anthony DePaola, mushroom grower, who notified state police. Troopers from the Kingston substation picked them up and took them back to the station.

Why all the excitement? Charlie and Chris were both five years old, state police said, and their parents had become alarmed at their disappearance. Troopers entertained them at the station until their parents called for them. Troopers said the youngsters' full names are Charles Emerick of Lay street, and Christine Hetsco of Nicholas street.

Youthful Quartet Blamed for Thefts Over 2-Month Span

The sheriff's office last night detained four boys, from 15 to 17 years old, on burglary and delinquency charges which authorities said resulted from investigation of a two-month series of thefts in Ulster county.

County Investigator Arthur H. Brown, who conducted the investigation and made the arrests, said the boys confessed to participation in four separate automobile tire thefts and two house burglaries between Dec. 15, 1951, and Feb. 15 of this year. Some, but not all of the boys were involved in each reported theft, Brown alleged, and all were involved in at least one theft out of the six.

Items Recovered

Brown brought to the court house items he said were reported stolen an were recovered last night with the arrest of the boys. Included were tires, wheels and tubes; a radio-phonograph; an automobile jack and tire pump; various tools including an electric drill; canned goods and a case of soft drinks.

The two oldest boys were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Lester Davis of the town of Olive on third degree burglary charges. Both waived examination and were ordered held for the grand jury. They were booked as Theodore W. Nelson, Jr., 16, of Kerhonkson, and Willis C. Quick, Jr., 17, of 9 Mountain avenue, Ellenville.

Specific Charge

They were accused specifically of entering the Anthony LoMelli summer residence in Samsonville. Reported as missing from that place were cartridges and shotgun shells, rifle and shotgun cleaning kits, the radio-phonograph combination and a tire pump. All the items have been recovered except the cartridges, shells and one of the gun cleaning kits, the sheriff's office claimed.

The two youngest boys, both 15, were held for children's court action.

Other "jobs" to which the sheriff's office claims one or more of the group confessed were reported by Brown:

The reported theft of pots, pans and blankets from Rubackin's Boarding House in Pataukunk.

Theft of all four tires and wheels from a car at Granite, two tires from autos in a used car lot in Ellenville, two new spare tires from vehicles parked near the Ellenville High School, and a tire and wheel from George Barthell's automobile at Pataukunk.

Powerie Trial Is Postponed Again

Port Jervis, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—The departmental trial of suspended acting police chief John J. Powerie has been postponed for a third time—until March 27.

The case, in which Powerie is accused of misconduct and conduct unbecoming an officer, was scheduled to come before the common council Thursday night this week.

But the council put off the hearing on recommendation of Corporation Counsel Harry Silvers who said he had a letter from Powerie's attorney saying Powerie was too ill to appear.

He suffered a heart disorder early last December, causing previous postponements.

Cardiac Employment

Rehabilitation, retraining and employment of heart disease patients so they can resume their roles as useful citizens is a major national health problem and a prime goal of the American Heart Association and its affiliates. Such a program assumes even greater importance in this time of national emergency when every available man-hour of work is needed for national defense. The affiliated Heart associations already have launched programs to fill this need, but additional public financial support is required urgently to extend the program so that every cardiac patient in the nation is brought to the peak of his safe productive capacity. Contributions to the Heart Fund will help this vital effort. Send your donation to "Heart," 74 John street, Kingston, N. Y.

Trailer Accident Delays 9W Traffic

Traffic was blocked for a considerable time on Route 9W north of Malden Monday evening after a trailer truck crashed against a railroad bridge and had to be towed away, state police reported. Adding to the delay was the fact that diesel fuel spilled and made the highway slippery so that troopers held up traffic until a state highway department truck sanded the roadway.

Troopers reported the tractor trailer owned by Knaust Brothers, Inc., of Catskill struck guard rails, hit the west side of the bridge then swung over into the east side of the structure. The driver, Arthur Miles Sherman, 30, of Catskill, told troopers the accident occurred about 7:45 p. m. when he swerved to avoid an unknown automobile that was "crowding the middle of the road" on the curve approaching the bridge. No personal injuries were reported and no arrest was made.

Testimony Is Sought

Detroit, Feb. 26 (AP)—Given a blue print of reputed Communist party organization in industrial Detroit in the 1940's, the House Un-American Activities Committee called today for further testimony. A subcommittee of the group reconvened to resume a probe which it says will show Communist attempts to "infiltrate" industry. Already the group's appearance in the motor city has excited great attention, though not all of it because of the hearing's subject matter.

Living Costs Level Off

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Living costs, now at an all-time high, seem to be leveling off somewhat—but no one can tell if inflation is really stopped. The government's living cost index for mid-January was due today and was expected to show little if any change from a month earlier. This expected pause in the steadily increasing living cost trend since the Korean war began may be only temporary, or reflect post-holiday price declines.

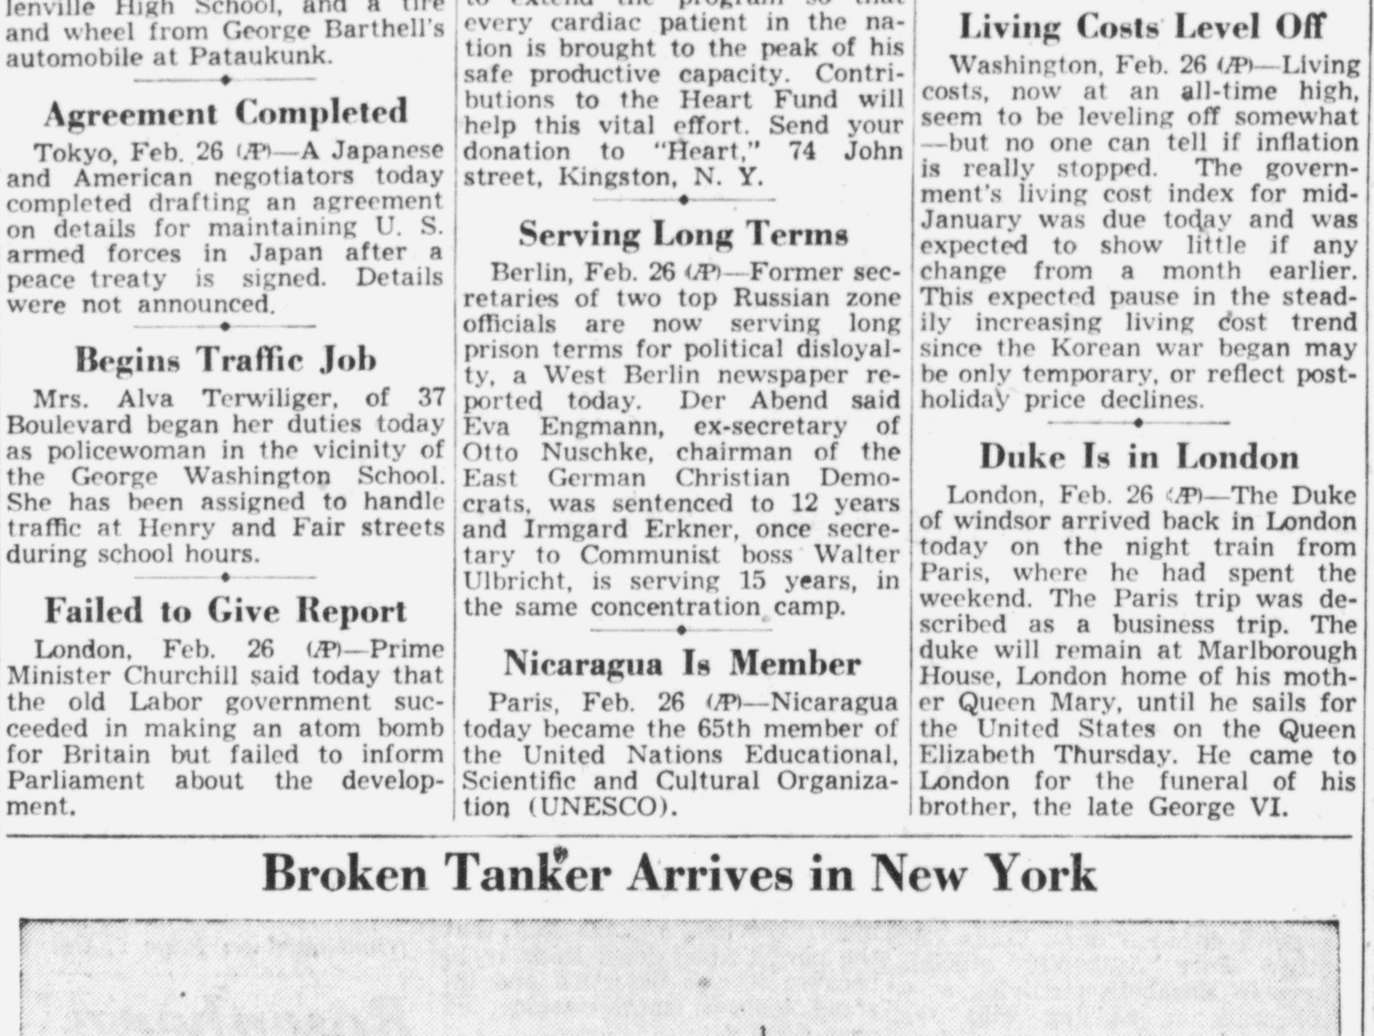
Broken Tanker Arrives in New York



The stern half of the tanker Fort Mercer, which broke in two off Cape Cod Feb. 18, passes under Brooklyn Bridge, New York, Feb. 24, en route to a dock in Brooklyn. There a new bow will be fitted to the stricken ship. The stern half was towed 260 miles from Cape Cod through Long Island Sound and the East river.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—A few favored oil issues provided an island of strength today in an otherwise generally lower stock market.

Losses were fractions to around 2 points at the outside among leaders with the bulk of the list moving narrowly lower.

Amerada jumped ahead 8 points at 181 shortly after the company announced it had brought in another new well in North Dakota with the possibility that it may prove to be the opening of a new field in that state. The stock opened on a block of 1,200 shares up 4, moved up to an 8-point gain, and fell back slightly.

Northern Pacific, which has holdings in that area, was ahead a major fraction during bursts of activity, but declined later. Union Pacific, a railroad that acts like an oil stock at times when income from its oil interests is emphasized in the minds of buyers, also was higher. The remainder of the railroads were almost universally lower.

In the unchanged to lower class were steels, chemicals, and nonferrous metals. Motors and utilities were fairly steady, and other major groups in the market were narrowly mixed.

Applications Cut On Talent Show

Literally swamped by local applications for the Ulster County Talent Hunt eliminations, a pleased and grateful Chamber of Commerce committee Monday night somewhat reluctantly took the action that means the promotion was too much of a success—it closed applications.

With more than 90 applications already on hand, Howard C. St. John, chairman, and Lawrence Quilty and Lawrence Jenson, committee members, met and decided they could not possibly accept any more applications.

Only three nights are available for the Kingston preliminaries in the talent quest, March 4, 5 and 10. The absolute maximum that can be fairly auditioned in one night is 30.

Four winners and four alternates will be selected during the preliminaries for auditioning on April 2 by members of Ted Mack's Amateur Hour staff. Winners selected that night will appear on the Amateur Hour on radio and TV in New York.

The favorable response and the great amount of local interest shown left open the possibility that similar talent hunts may be sponsored locally by the Chamber of Commerce here in future years, dependent upon the wishes of the Ted Mack program, it was learned today.

Assembly Passes Bill to Compel All To Explain Acts

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—The Assembly has passed legislation to compel all persons found in an automobile with a dope peddler to explain their activities even though they were not carrying narcotics when picked up.

The bill is part of the Dewey administration's anti-narcotics program. It cleared the larger House last night.

The bill also would reduce the amount of dope that must be found on a person to establish possession with intent to sell.

A second Dewey bill that passed the Assembly last night would prohibit drug stores and other retail outlets from selling hypodermic needles and syringes to person's without doctors' prescriptions.

Diabetics and other chronically ill persons would be permitted to buy such equipment without a new prescription for each purchase, but they would be required to renew their prescriptions at least once a year.

Facts and Unknowns Given About New Wonder TB Drug

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
(AP Science Reporter)

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—How good is the new "wonder drug" for tuberculosis?

Some doctors call it "the best thing yet" against TB, still the killer of 45,000 Americans each year. Others say "at least as good as streptomycin." Another, "this is no magic bullet."

They can't say more because this TB pill is too new.

From these doctors, here are the facts and the unknowns:

Fact 1: You can't get the drug yet. The Food and Drug Administration must first approve it for general use, on safety and effect. That may come by May or June. Till then, only a few doctors can get it for watchful tests on humans.

Fact 2: When and if approved, it will be cheap and abundant. The drug, isonicotinic acid, is being made by two drug houses, which found it separately. They gave it different names, rimifon and nydrazid.

Fact 3: It kills TB germs in test-tubes and animals; it hits just TB germs.

Given to More Than 200

Fact 4: More than 200 sick people have had it so far. Many quickly felt better. High fevers vanished, they gained 10 to 30 pounds, coughs decreased or even disappeared, vitality returned.

In some, no TB germs could be found recently in their sputum, by looking with a microscope. X-rays indicated that lung holes or cavities had gotten smaller in a few patients.

All were advanced cases. Now, patients with milder cases are getting the drug, and it may do them even more good.

Fact 5: No matter how good it is, it won't wipe out TB overnight, won't abolish the need for TB hospitals, or the need for finding thousands of people who don't know they have TB. Bed rest, especially away from home to prevent spreading this infection, will still be important, as will good diet, other drugs, and surgery. It takes time to heal and repair lungs ravaged by the TB drug.

Fact 6: A warning, from Dr. J. Maxwell Chamberlain of Bellevue Hospital. Don't, he advised, postpone any scheduled operation for TB in hopes the new drug will make it unnecessary.

Here Are Unknowns

There's not yet the kind of proof of cure that the doctors want. This leads to the unknowns:

Unknown 1: Did the drug kill of most, or even all, the germs in the patients who show the best signs of it?

Unknown 2: What will happen when people stop taking the drug daily? Will the disease flare up again?

Unknown 3: Will TB drugs become resistant to the new drug, as they do with streptomycin?

Unknown 4: Will there be any bad effects? No serious ones have shown yet.

Unknown 5: What did the drug really do in human bodies?

Unknown 6: A hopeful unknown. For this is a brand new kind of TB fighter. Maybe better ones can be fashioned, by making relatives of this parent drug. The first sulfa drug is no longer used, because its cousins turned out to be so much better and safer.

To sum up: Here's something that looks very hopeful. Time and more study hold the keys to how good.

Here's the set-up on New Hampshire's presidential preference primary.

1. Closed primary, voters must declare party preference and vote accordingly.
2. Voters indicate their preference for presidential nominee.
3. Party delegates must support candidate to whom they are pledged, as long as candidate is before convention.

NEW HAMPSHIRE PRIMARY SETUP—The eyes of the nation will be focused on New Hampshire, scene of 1952's first presidential primary. Newschart, above, shows major Democratic and GOP candidates trying to win their parties' delegates to national nominating conventions this summer. Although New Hampshire is not politically important, with only four electoral votes, it will be the first test of General Eisenhower's voter-appeal against Senator Taft's. The primary holds similar significance for the Democrats. It will give the country an estimate of President Truman's popularity and it could end Senator Kefauver's presidential aspirations should he be soundly defeated.

Smoking Survey Is Reported Started

The smoking survey undertaken by the American Cancer Society is well under way in this county as reported by Mrs. Harry Parker VanWagenen, executive director of the Ulster County Branch. Many of the chairmen of the various townships were in her office last week where Mrs. Edwin Shumate gave them instructions on making the survey. Other chairmen have been visited in their own communities.

Questions relative to the survey are being asked, such as, "why are non-smokers interviewed"? The answer is that the effect of smoking is measured by the differences between smokers and non-smokers, therefore non-smokers are very important in this study.

"Why are not women included in this survey?" someone asked. That is because fewer women than men get lung cancer and it would require five times as many cases to reach a sound conclusion.

Another common question is, "why are not younger men included?" That is because it would require too many cases for too long a period of time.

"Why is this study restricted to white men?" the researchers are asked. The answer is that fewer cases of lung cancer are reported among Negroes than among white men so that this would introduce a complicating factor in the study.

The quota for Ulster county is 1,000 and it is hoped that the survey will be completed as near March first as possible.

8,000 Will Get Boost

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—An estimated 8,000 workers on the city's privately-owned bus lines will get a six-cent-an-hour pay boost today, retroactive to Jan. 1. The increase is based on the rise in the Bureau of Labor statistic price index for New York since Jan. 1, 1951. It will bring the wages of drivers and mechanics to $1.66 an hour on most lines. The new rate will be $1.73½ on two of the lines; the New York City Omnibus Corp. and the Fifth Avenue Coach Co. The cost-of-living increase is determined according to a formula worked out in an agreement between the companies and their workers' union, the CIO Transport Workers Union.

Assembly Kills Measure on Libel

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—Legislation to liberalize the state's libel law has been smashed in the Assembly, in the wake of Democrats' contention it would permit reporters to be "snoopers" and print lies and slander.

The bill, passed by the Senate last Wednesday 35-15, was defeated in the Assembly last night, 80-60. The Assembly then voted to reconsider its vote and tabled the bill. This, in effect, kills it.

The measure would have permitted newspapers to make "fair and true" reports of non-public judicial or legislative proceedings without fear of libel actions.

At present, such proceedings must be made public in order for newspapers to report on them.

During a heated debate, Democratic Assemblyman Herman Katz of Manhattan argued that the bill "attempts to give newspapers * * * more and more authority than is intended by our judicial system."

"If this bill goes through, you'll have every snooper in the world in the courts," he added.

Defending the bill, Democrat William Clancy of Queens said he saw "no harm in permitting a fair and accurate report of what takes place." He said he was sure no reporters or editors would "throw to the wolves" anyone innocently involved in such proceedings.

The measure's Assembly sponsor, Republican Justin C. Morgan of Kenmore, said he had received no criticism of the bill from the public or from judges.

Republican Senator Walter J. Mahoney of Buffalo introduced the bill in the upper House.

Mother Keeps Son Alive

Locust, N. J., Feb. 26 (AP)—A 39-year-old mother whose four-year-old son tumbled into a deep well yesterday jumped in to rescue him and went through a half-hour ordeal until help came. Mrs. Edith Massell said she spent the time clutching her son to keep him afloat in the eight-feet deep water and recited nursery rhymes. "I promised him ice cream, cake and no spanking if he would hold on to me quietly. It did the trick," the mother of four children said. Some toddlers came running to her door shouting, "Andy's gone in swimming." Quickly, she called a neighbor to get help and ran to the 18-foot well near her home on Hartshorne Lane. Both mother and son were in good condition after police fished them out with a ladder.

Facts and Unknowns Given About New Wonder TB Drug

(AP Science Reporter)

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—How good is the new "wonder drug" for tuberculosis?

Some doctors call it "the best thing yet" against TB, still the killer of 45,000 Americans each year. Others say "at least as good as streptomycin." Another, "this is no magic bullet."

They can't say more because this TB pill is too new.

From these doctors, here are the facts and the unknowns:

Fact 1: You can't get the drug yet. The Food and Drug Administration must first approve it for general use, on safety and effect. That may come by May or June. Till then, only a few doctors can get it for watchful tests on humans.

Fact 2: When and if approved, it will be cheap and abundant. The drug, isonicotinic acid, is being made by two drug houses, which found it separately. They gave it different names, rimifon and nydrazid.

Fact 3: It kills TB germs in test-tubes and animals; it hits just TB germs.

Given to More Than 200

Fact 4: More than 200 sick people have had it so far. Many quickly felt better. High fevers vanished, they gained 10 to 30 pounds, coughs decreased or even disappeared, vitality returned.

In some, no TB germs could be found recently in their sputum, by looking with a microscope. X-rays indicated that lung holes or cavities had gotten smaller in a few patients.

All were advanced cases. Now, patients with milder cases are getting the drug, and it may do them even more good.

Fact 5: No matter how good it is, it won't wipe out TB overnight, won't abolish the need for TB hospitals, or the need for finding thousands of people who don't know they have TB. Bed rest, especially away from home to prevent spreading this infection, will still be important, as will good diet, other drugs, and surgery. It takes time to heal and repair lungs ravaged by the TB drug.

Fact 6: A warning, from Dr. J. Maxwell Chamberlain of Bellevue Hospital. Don't, he advised, postpone any scheduled operation for TB in hopes the new drug will make it unnecessary.

Here Are Unknowns

There's not yet the kind of proof of cure that the doctors want. This leads to the unknowns:

Unknown 1: Did the drug kill of most, or even all, the germs in the patients who show the best signs of it?

Unknown 2: What will happen when people stop taking the drug daily? Will the disease flare up again?

Unknown 3: Will TB drugs become resistant to the new drug, as they do with streptomycin?

Unknown 4: Will there be any bad effects? No serious ones have shown yet.

Unknown 5: What did the drug really do in human bodies?

Unknown 6: A hopeful unknown. For this is a brand new kind of TB fighter. Maybe better ones can be fashioned, by making relatives of this parent drug. The first sulfa drug is no longer used, because its cousins turned out to be so much better and safer.

To sum up: Here's something that looks very hopeful. Time and more study hold the keys to how good.

Here's the set-up on New Hampshire's presidential preference primary.

1. Closed primary, voters must declare party preference and vote accordingly.
2. Voters indicate their preference for presidential nominee.
3. Party delegates must support candidate to whom they are pledged, as long as candidate is before convention.

NEA

NEW HAMPSHIRE PRIMARY SETUP—The eyes of the nation will be focused on New Hampshire, scene of 1952's first presidential primary. Newschart, above, shows major Democratic and GOP candidates trying to win their parties' delegates to national nominating conventions this summer. Although New Hampshire is not politically important, with only four electoral votes, it will be the first test of General Eisenhower's voter-appeal against Senator Taft's. The primary holds similar significance for the Democrats. It will give the country an estimate of President Truman's popularity and it could end Senator Kefauver's presidential aspirations should he be soundly defeated.

Smoking Survey Is Reported Started

The smoking survey undertaken by the American Cancer Society is well under way in this county as reported by Mrs. Harry Parker VanWagenen, executive director of the Ulster County Branch. Many of the chairmen of the various townships were in her office last week where Mrs. Edwin Shumate gave them instructions on making the survey. Other chairmen have been visited in their own communities.

Questions relative to the survey are being asked, such as, "why are non-smokers interviewed"? The answer is that the effect of smoking is measured by the differences between smokers and non-smokers, therefore non-smokers are very important in this study.

"Why are not women included in this survey?" someone asked. That is because fewer women than men get lung cancer and it would require five times as many cases to reach a sound conclusion.

Another common question is, "why are not younger men included?" That is because it would require too many cases for too long a period of time.

"Why is this study restricted to white men?" the researchers are asked. The answer is that fewer cases of lung cancer are reported among Negroes than among white men so that this would introduce a complicating factor in the study.

The quota for Ulster county is 1,000 and it is hoped that the survey will be completed as near March first as possible.

8,000 Will Get Boost

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—An estimated 8,000 workers on the city's privately-owned bus lines will get a six-cent-an-hour pay boost today, retroactive to Jan. 1. The increase is based on the rise in the Bureau of Labor statistic price index for New York since Jan. 1, 1951. It will bring the wages of drivers and mechanics to $1.66 an hour on most lines. The new rate will be $1.73½ on two of the lines; the New York City Omnibus Corp. and the Fifth Avenue Coach Co. The cost-of-living increase is determined according to a formula worked out in an agreement between the companies and their workers' union, the CIO Transport Workers Union.

Assembly Kills Measure on Libel

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—Legislation to liberalize the state's libel law has been smashed in the Assembly, in the wake of Democrats' contention it would permit reporters to be "snoopers" and print lies and slander.

The bill, passed by the Senate last Wednesday 35-15, was defeated in the Assembly last night, 80-60. The Assembly then voted to reconsider its vote and tabled the bill. This, in effect, kills it.

The measure would have permitted newspapers to make "fair and true" reports of non-public judicial or legislative proceedings without fear of libel actions.

At present, such proceedings must be made public in order for newspapers to report on them.

During a heated debate, Democratic Assemblyman Herman Katz of Manhattan argued that the bill "attempts to give newspapers * * * more and more authority than is intended by our judicial system."

"If this bill goes through, you'll have every snooper in the world in the courts," he added.

Defending the bill, Democrat William Clancy of Queens said he saw "no harm in permitting a fair and accurate report of what takes place." He said he was sure no reporters or editors would "throw to the wolves" anyone innocently involved in such proceedings.

The measure's Assembly sponsor, Republican Justin C. Morgan of Kenmore, said he had received no criticism of the bill from the public or from judges.

Republican Senator Walter J. Mahoney of Buffalo introduced the bill in the upper House.

Mother Keeps Son Alive

Locust, N. J., Feb. 26 (AP)—A 39-year-old mother whose four-year-old son tumbled into a deep well yesterday jumped in to rescue him and went through a half-hour ordeal until help came. Mrs. Edith Massell said she spent the time clutching her son to keep him afloat in the eight-feet deep water and recited nursery rhymes. "I promised him ice cream, cake and no spanking if he would hold on to me quietly. It did the trick," the mother of four children said. Some toddlers came running to her door shouting, "Andy's gone in swimming." Quickly, she called a neighbor to get help and ran to the 18-foot well near her home on Hartshorne Lane. Both mother and son were in good condition after police fished them out with a ladder.

TRUCE AND ELECTION

The truce delays, the unnecessary stalling on the part of the Reds and North Koreans, the obvious unreality of some of the objectives—all these things puzzle the American reader. What's it about? What's it for?

The reader turns from Korean news to European dispatches. Delay is there, too, but explainable. It is not surprising that France and Germany should distrust each other and want to be sure before they sign. The wonder is that France and Germany, under the guidance of wiser heads than have sometimes directed them, are so close together, so agreed that neither side wants more war, that compromise is preferable.

Then the reader looks at American election news, and a great light breaks, or so it looks to him. Are not the Red leaders reading and hearing about our election uncertainties? Are they not afraid to bind themselves too soon? Under Truman, one policy might prevail; under Taft, another; under Eisenhower they do not know what would happen. So are they not stalling merely for time? They do not want to bind themselves to anything until our president and congress are elected. Then, and only then, can they feel sure anything they plan will stick.

The American people want peace in Korea and will stand by any sound truce agreement made at any time by any government in power. The enemy should realize that. But the uncertainty about elections might cause the play for time. It will be interesting to watch the negotiations with that possibility in mind.

PRESIDENT PIERCE

President Truman recently called attention to the campaign of 1852 because a professional soldier was one of the candidates. The Whig party's only two victories had been gained by soldier candidates. They therefore repeated the formula by nominating the nation's foremost general, Winfield Scott, whose service went all the way back to the War of 1812 and who had gained laurels by his leadership in the recent Mexican War. To nominate him they passed over the then president, Millard Fillmore, and their foremost statesman, Daniel Webster.

Against Scott the Democrats, after a long deadlock, chose a little known and undistinguished ex-senator from New Hampshire, Franklin Pierce. He was selected apparently because he, too, had fought in the Mexican War and might thus neutralize some of Scott's military glamor.

The Democrats were united in favor of keeping quiet on the slavery question. The uneasy consciences of the Whigs divided them, some taking the same stand as the Democrats, others wishing to agitate. Divided, the party was easily defeated, carrying only four states. Before the next presidential election the party had ceased to be. Pierce proved a failure as president, and civil war grew rapidly nearer.

The lessons for us are not obvious, unless it be that the parties should take a positive stand on the questions of the day and nominate able candidates who will carry out the party platform.

CHEAPER STEAKS

A Miami grocer, faced with a dwindling volume of business and a growing financial loss, decided to take drastic action to attract customers. He changed all of his prices to cost plus a flat ten per cent service charge. This makes his prices somewhat higher on a few items but considerably lower on most. Steak, for example, which costs $1.19 in competitors' stores, cost $1.03 in his.

Rival merchants say that the price cutter will not be able to continue in business on such a small margin of profit. The grocer himself admits that his net profit is now around two per cent. But he maintains that his greatly increased volume of business will make up for the smallness of the profit margin.

Cost plus ten per cent may prove to be too slim an operating margin for a food store. But it is interesting in this day of ever increasing food costs that the old idea of low costs and great volume is still considered workable. The grocery store in Miami will be watched by merchandisers and consumers alike with a great degree of interest.

'These Days'

PROBLEMS OF NATO

A British friend of mine, writing in criticism, makes this point:

"Britain's military commitment in Europe, which you seemed entirely to over-look in your column of December 19th when you wrote that 'Great Britain is not providing additional troops for NATO' and further down in the same article 'so far only the Americans are providing important air power,' is a very great one. Britain has in Germany four and a third divisions, three of them armored. This is more armor than that contributed by any other nation, including the United States. The United Kingdom has been virtually denuded of troops. Western Germany is today our home base. When British troops are rotated from Middle and Far Eastern stations, they are just as likely to find their home base is Germany as they are to return to Aldershot. This is a truly astonishing state of affairs and one which has greatly impressed our continental friends and neighbors. . . .

"The British contribution to the defense of Western Europe includes the Royal Navy, second only to the United States Navy in numbers and certainly not inferior in quality. There is also the Royal Air Force and you, of all people, will not underrate that. The 2nd Tactical Air Force (RAF) in Germany has been called General Eisenhower's 'Ace in the hole.' Britain has also supplied the European nations with considerable numbers of modern aircraft, radar equipment, etc."

What this means is that the British, as the French and the West Germans, are wearying of the assumption that the United States is doing the whole job of the defense of Europe, while they are doing nothing. Yet, when these figures are analyzed, what does the whole effort amount to?

The Russians are reported to have about 225 divisions of available troops ready for action. NATO has about at most 20 complete divisions available at this moment. No one claims that Western airpower is currently superior to Russian airpower, although the United States has expended unbelievable treasure for precisely that purpose. Nor is there absolute assurance that our Navy or the British Navy is ready to meet the onslaught of Russia's fleet of schnorkel submarines. We have lost the advantage of the atom bomb through treachery, neglect, and erroneous government policies.

While that does not mean that the fight against Russia is lost, it does mean that we must, if we are to prevail, face all the facts realistically and we must stop believing our own propaganda.

For instance, there seem to be 30,000 or more American women and children, associated with our armed forces and civilian officials in Europe. If conditions are as serious as General Eisenhower reports, these women and children have no business there. They would be taken hostages in war. They have no way out and could only clutter up the communications lines. When Eisenhower asked Congress for more American troops, he described conditions as dire. Do you have women and children picnicking in so perilous an area?

Their presence would rather indicate that the British and French view may be more correct than General Eisenhower's, namely, that the war in Europe is not just around the corner. While this view requires careful scrutiny and could, if accepted, involve us in another Pearl Harbor and another Korean surprise war, it cannot be ignored. There are so many historic factors that point to greater peril in Asia than in Europe; more Russian concern over the Middle East than over the Danube.

My British friend makes a further objection which tells quite a story if wisey read. He says:

"I think I have said enough in this letter, George, to qualify the statement you made in your broadcast that 'Churchill must recognize that it is politically impossible for the United States to provide all the troops and all the supplies for the defense of Europe and Asia from Russian aggression.' Admittedly, we do not have as large a number of troops in Korea fighting side by side with your gallant American army as we would wish. Nevertheless, we do have a large continent in Hong Kong (about 11,500) and another large army of over 25,000 fighting in Malaya, in addition to well over 100,000 auxiliary police. We also have over 50,000 troops in the Middle East, an area which, to my way of thinking, is just as important to America as it is to Britain. And I certainly haven't heard of many American troops in the Middle East."

That Body of Yours

OVERWEIGHT SHORTENS LIFE

A healthy, middle-aged man is surprised, when he applies for life insurance, to be told that the company cannot insure him because he is overweight or, if accepted, he must pay a higher premium rate than one of normal weight. Having been of normal weight for years and free from aches or pains, he is surprised to learn that this new extra poundage to which he has given no thought is considered a serious matter by the life insurance company.

I often write about overweight and the strictness of insurance companies in refusing to insure overweight men and women. In the Statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, we read that overweight people suffer a materially higher death rate than those of normal weight.

A recent study has just been completed on policy holders who were refused regular or standard life insurance but were given substandard insurance solely because they were overweight; they were first-class risks in other respects—that is, with regard to physical condition, medical history and occupation. The findings in this study are based upon the mortality experience or death rate of about 26,000 men and 25,000 women who were insured in the period 1925 to 1934 and traced to the anniversary of their insurance during 1950. The death rate was measured by the comparable experience among persons accepted for standard insurance. Among overweight men between the ages of 20 to 64 years at the time their insurance was issued, the death rate was 150 per cent (one and one-half times) that of men accepted for standard insurance (as they were of normal weight). The death rate for overweight women was also 150 per cent that of those of normal weight.

In both men and women, the death rate increased in proportion to the degree of overweight present.

The above is the dark side of the picture but the bright or encouraging side is the finding that reducing their weight improves the health outlook for overweight individuals. It was found that the record of ploicy holders who reduced their weight after taking out substandard insurance showed that then they could take out standard insurance.

Weight control appears to be the most practical means available at present of preventing or delaying the degenerative diseases of middle and later life that now outrank all other diseases as a cause of death.

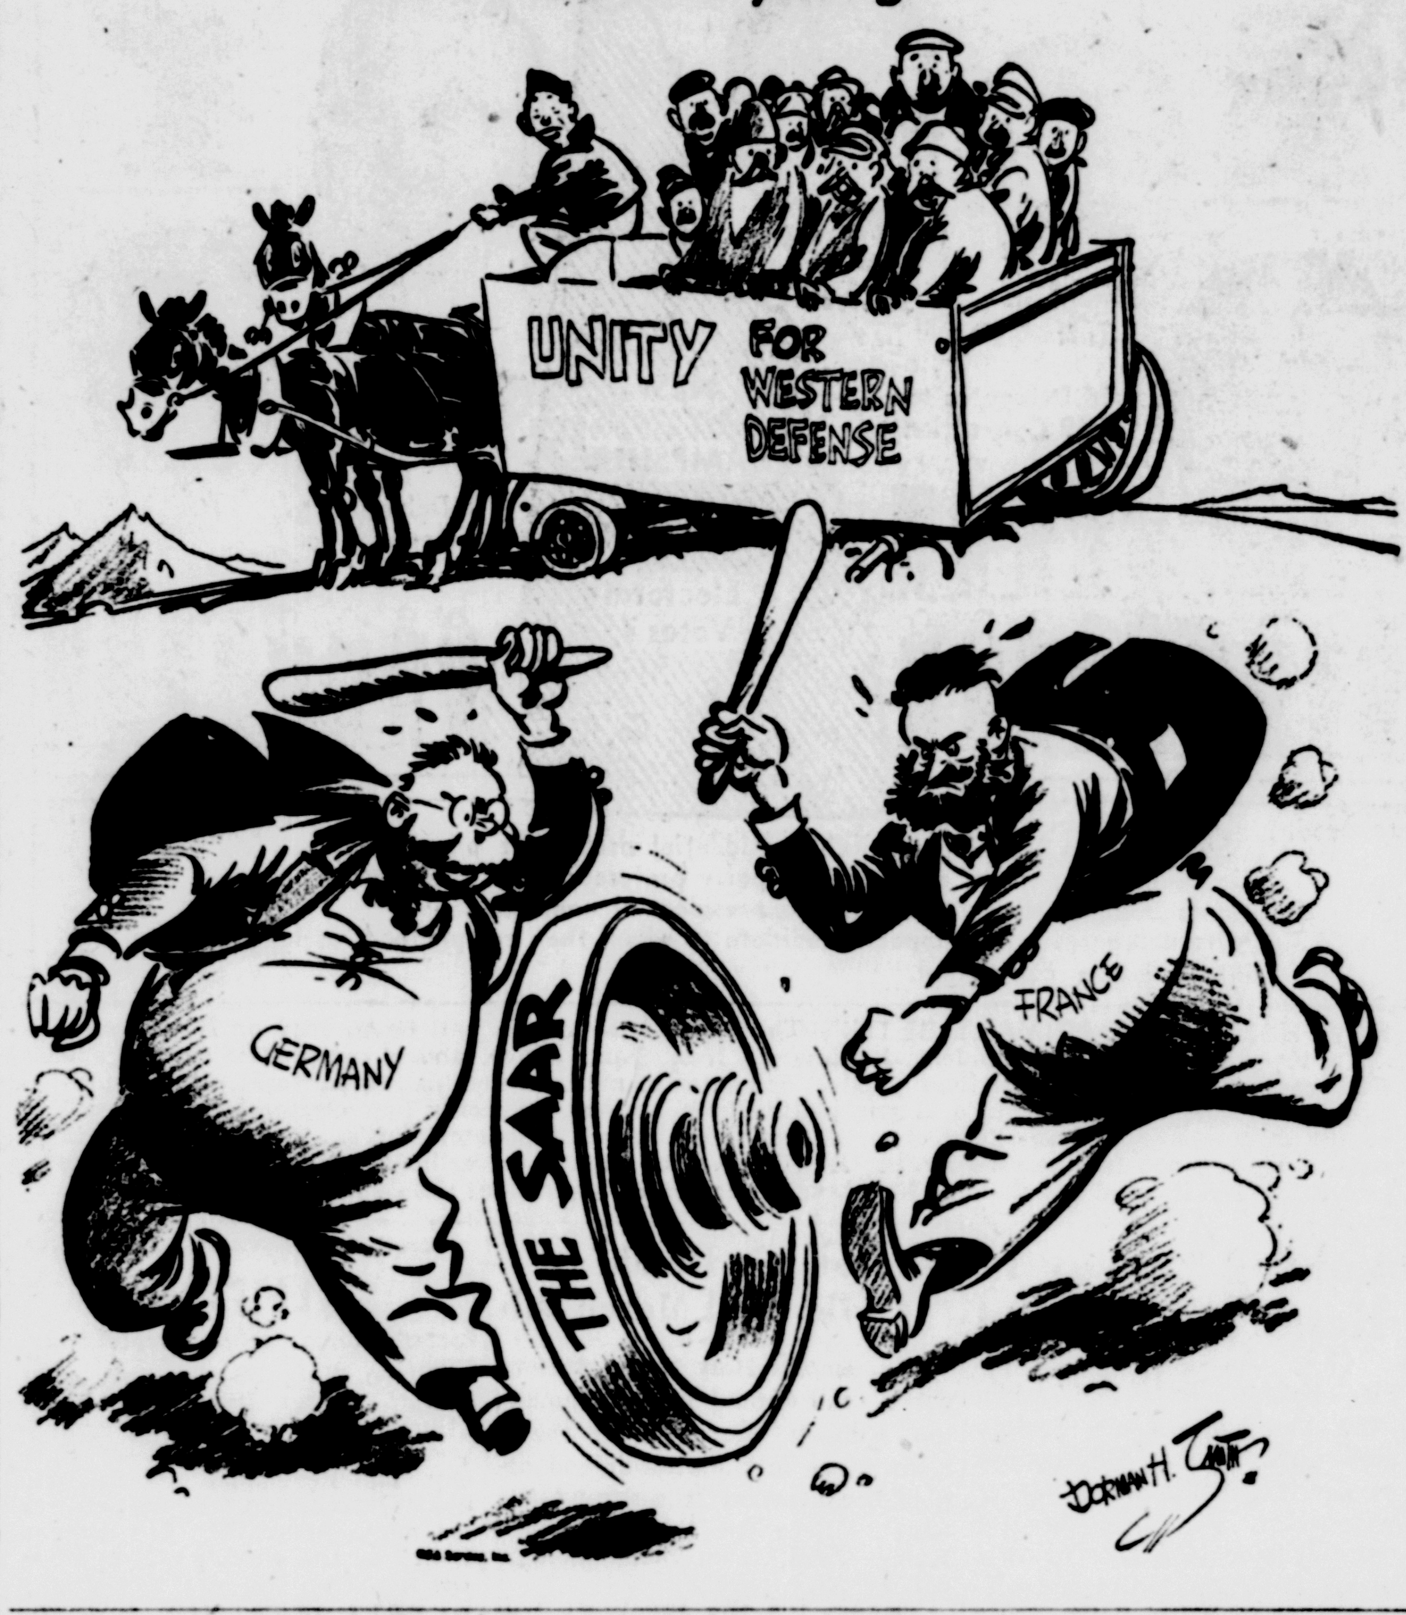
Hold Everything!



The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Real fact about President Truman's inner debate with himself over the question of "to-run-or-not-to-run" is that it's intimately tied up to General Eisenhower. It is like a seesaw. The more Eisenhower's political strength goes down, the more Truman's inclination to run goes up.

Approximately one month ago the President had definitely decided he would not permit himself to be drafted. In his own mind this was categoric, and to one or two of his most intimate friends, he so expressed himself. At that time, he firmly expected Eisenhower would be the Republican nominee, and Truman had no relish for opposing Ike, not only because he personally made a pledge to help Ike become President but also because he regarded Ike as unbeatable.

Since then, however, the political scouts, both Republican and Democratic, report that Eisenhower's organization is limping and that the general, though having tremendous popular appeal, is in the hands of an inept group who can't translate popular appeal into delegates.

As a result, the President has been toying with the idea of running again—first, because he is itching to take on Bob Taft whom he thinks he can lick; second, because the palace guard is cleverly cooking him up as the indispensable man.

Sage Chief Justice

On the other hand, no less a personage than Chief Justice Fred Vinson, one of the closest friends the President has and in his day a shrewd political observer, has been spending some time at the White House strongly advising Mr. Truman not to run.

The chief justice took his move after a talk with Speaker Sam Rayburn. Both men have a great affection for the President, and both are in a far better position to gauge the political winds than the palace guard.

The chief justice's argument has been an appealing one — namely, that Truman's place in history on the major issues is now assured. No one can ever detract from his firm stand in building up the North Atlantic Pact, putting across the Marshall Plan, opposing a Communist aggressor in Korea, blocking communism in Greece and Turkey; and championing such domestic issues as civil liberties, public housing, public health and a better break for the common man.

But if the President ran and were defeated, the chief justice has argued, he would jeopardize all that he has won—especially his foreign policy. Furthermore, even if he ran and won, he would face a split in his own party which might endanger his foreign policy.

Naturally these arguments have counted heavily with the President. He knows they are disinterested and come from his best friend.

Palace Guard Protects Jobs

On the other hand, the men immediately around the President, most of whom are rabidly intent on keeping their jobs, know that their only job-insurance is to have Truman run again.

As a result, they constantly bring in those callers who they know will urge their chief to run, tell him he is the only man who can save the nation. They know what the President's vanities are, his prejudices and his passions. And though he started out by being quite friendly to Senator Kefauver, the palace guard has now fanned his jealousy to a point where he would almost like to run if only to put the Tennessee senator in his place.

To illustrate, Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, interviewed by the press the other day, was asked what he thought of Kefauver. Stevenson and Kefauver have always been friendly, so the governor made the natural observation that Kefauver was a fine man and would make a good candidate.

Immediately a member of the palace guard clipped the Stevenson quote, rushed it into Truman, exclaiming that the governor of Illinois had betrayed the President, was now rooting for Kefauver. The palace guard, of course, wants neither Kefauver nor Stevenson to run. They only want the man who can guarantee continuation of their jobs—Harry S. Truman.

New Type Diplomacy

Sometimes it takes the youth of the nation to get away from the hackneyed ideas of the professional writers and the professional diplomats. At any rate, school children all over the nation are now responding to the idea of people-to-people diplomacy by writing messages to Moscow to be broadcast over the Voice of America.

Here is the fresh, simple message of a Kansas farm boy, Gene Manahan, age 14 years, of the Ridge School, Peabody, Kans., to youngsters behind the Iron Curtain:

"I am a farm boy and writing you about my experiences in a boys' and girls' farm organization called a 4-H Club. This is a very democratic organization. We elect our own officers and choose our own projects. We learn practices in 4-H Clubs which will be very useful to us when we grow up and become voting citizens in our own country.

"In a contest sponsored for 4-H Club members by a large free enterprise company, I won a young female pig, who will have little pigs in the spring. This shows how even a boy like I may get ahead in this country. I made enough money off a pig I raised last summer to buy myself a radio and still have some money left over.

"I wish that all children in Iron Curtain countries would have this kind of freedom as I do.

"GENE MANAHAN"

The Voice of America, by an arrangement worked out with this columnist, will broadcast the best messages from the youth of America to the youth behind the Iron Curtain. Messages should be about 150 words long. Local school principals are working out plans with state school officials to pick the best messages from each town, city and state.

Scientific research has brought to light new knowledge of prevention, care and treatment of heart and circulatory disease. Nevertheless, basic causes of the major forms of these diseases still are unknown. Rheumatic fever, high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries are underlying causes of 90 per cent of all heart disease. When the causes of these three are discovered, America will be well on its way to solving its greatest national health problem. Rayburn Has Brought Action to Head Issue on Broadcasting Congressional Hearings

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 26—Fortunately for the cause of reporting fully what the Congress is doing, Speaker Rayburn has brought to a head the issue of whether congressional hearings and perhaps even sessions of Congress shall be broadcast by radio and telecast by television.

It is true that present rules in the House of Representatives are vague, and hence what the speaker says is final, but there is no reason why the House itself by a vote of its members could not make the rules explicit.

There is a case for keeping klieg lights out of the eyes of witnesses and there is a case for the removal of any other physical obstruction that could interfere with a witness while testifying. But certainly there is no manifest obstacle when a microphone is turned on. It makes no noise of its own. Again and again microphones have been used with loud speakers and most committees have had microphones at their hearings for a long time.

That's why Mr. Rayburn's refusal to allow the House Un-American Activities Committee to make its own arrangements for the reporting of the hearings being held in Detroit came as a surprise. Heretofore many a tape recording has been made which permits the broadcasting stations to distribute in the evening hours which were recorded earlier in the day.

Speaker Rayburn went further—he said the existing rules prohibited all forms of motion-picture photography during House hearings. Some of the television stations like to make a film of daytime proceedings and reproduce the pictures over television channels in the evening.

But it will be noted that Mr. Rayburn said there was no objection to the taking of "still" pictures, though he advised that they be taken before or after the hearings. Just why "still" pictures are permissable and motion pictures cannot be made is an inconsistency that will require some explanation. It will be puzzling to anyone who tries to understand the rules as now interpreted by Speaker Rayburn.

Television and motion pictures require bright light and hence witnesses can claim that they are harassed by the presence of such instruments. The courts some day will have to pass finally on this point. It is also probable that the lighting difficulties will be overcome sometime in the future by introducing lamps that illuminate a room without causing discomfort. But for the present the thing that militates against television operations is the factor of personal discomfort.

What is most disturbing, on the other hand, is that the question is being decided on the basis of rules that are antiquated. The only reason why radio broadcasting of hearings is being banned by Speaker Rayburn is that radio and television are so much alike that to grant the privilege in one is surely to lead to the other.

The problem is basically one of the public interest. Will the cause of good government be aided by the widest possible distribution of the news in radio and visual form? Are the people entitled to the news of their government through all possible forms of communication? Is the denial of broadcasting of public proceedings a sort of censorship?

Where the witness is likely to be prosecuted for contempt, the proceedings before a congressional committee could, of course, lead to the same sort of rules as now exist in courtrooms where the judges quite generally bar pictures during the trial sessions, though they allow photos to be made before or after the day's proceedings. The American Bar Association has frowned on the taking of still pictures during trials and doubtless would be equally opposed to television photography.

In the congressional hearings, however, witnesses often make a mockery of the proceedings. Witness after witness refuses to answer even to the most innocuous questions on the ground that to reply is to incriminate oneself. Where such palpable abuse exists, the public interest lies in the direction of more rather than less notoriety for those persons who use American constitutional rights as a means of evading obligations to their government.

The issue is bound to be carried to the people, and the Republicans appear to be ready to demand that the crime hearings and the Communist hearings be broadcast by radio and telecast by TV. If this is the new rule, then ultimately the proceedings of both Houses of Congress may be seen and heard on television, which would be a good thing despite the possible abuses that could arise when demagogues seek to use the opportunity for personal aggrandizement rather that thoughtful debate.

In the end, as with all such problems, the wisest decision can be made by weighing the disadvantages against the advantages. And it will be found that a greater and greater knowledge of what the government is doing in a republic is distinctly helpful to the cause of responsible government.

Grange News

Farm and Home Week at Cornell is always one of the early Spring high spots for farm and rural folks from this and nearby states. Grange members, in addition to the usual events will be interested to learn that they will be able to see an interesting exhibit which fits in with our 1952 Farm Practice Project: "Better Gardens for Better Living." The Vegetable Crops Department of the College of Agriculture is hard at work on a display which will feature a model farmstead and garden under the theme sign: "Grow More, Preserve More, Eat Better." Those who have small girls and boys will want to watch the electric trains wander through the large display. Look for it at Cornell's Farm and Home Week, third floor of the Martha Van Rensselaer building, March 16 through 22.

River control legislation is of practical concern to Grange members and farm people in every part of the state. Sensible and recreation-minded sportsmen and vacationers have a definite interest in conservation of our water resources. Rural people have a stake in it not necessarily for power and industrial purposes so much as regulated control to eliminate wasteful flooding of valuable farm land. There is a bill in our state legislature right now which, if passed, would prevent by constitutional amendment, any future regulation of water flow originating in the Adirondack Preserve. A small but powerful private ownership group would like to see this measure made into law. We think it would be definitely against the public interest, and certainly bears scrutiny by farmers and those living by rural streams who are now subject to disastrous floods. Of equal importance is the value of continuous flow in drouth periods.

Home Economics program of National Grange is the same as our New York State Grange Service and Hospitality Committee. As we have noted in this column from time to time, these Grange ladies are a busy group of folks in every one of our Subordinate and Pomona Granges. We are all well into the year 1952 and now is the time to get this phase of Grange work underway, if it hasn't already been done. Support your S & H Committee, get your own Grange plans and projects working smoothly so that we will have some outstanding results to demonstrate at our State Sessions next October. The time is now!

Under the land reform law — one of the most advanced in Pakistan — feudal landlords are deprived of the right to eject tenants at will without reasonable excuse.

TRUCE AND ELECTION

The truce delays, the unnecessary stalling on the part of the Reds and North Koreans, the obvious unreality of some of the objectives—all these things puzzle the American reader. What's it about? What's it for?

The reader turns from Korean news to European dispatches. Delay is there, too, but explainable. It is not surprising that France and Germany should distrust each other and want to be sure before they sign. The wonder is that France and Germany, under the guidance of wiser heads than have sometimes directed them, are so close together, so agreed that neither side wants more war, that compromise is preferable.

Then the reader looks at American election news, and a great light breaks, or so it looks to him. Are not the Red leaders reading and hearing about our election uncertainties? Are they not afraid to bind themselves too soon? Under Truman, one policy might prevail; under Taft, another; under Eisenhower they do not know what would happen. So are they not stalling merely for time? They do not want to bind themselves to anything until our president and congress are elected. Then, and only then, can they feel sure anything they plan will stick.

The American people want peace in Korea and will stand by any sound truce agreement made at any time by any government in power. The enemy should realize that. But the uncertainty about elections might cause the play for time. It will be interesting to watch the negotiations with that possibility in mind.

PRESIDENT PIERCE

President Truman recently called attention to the campaign of 1852 because a professional soldier was one of the candidates. The Whig party's only two victories had been gained by soldier candidates. They therefore repeated the formula by nominating the nation's foremost general, Winfield Scott, whose service went all the way back to the War of 1812 and who had gained laurels by his leadership in the recent Mexican War. To nominate him they passed over the then president, Millard Fillmore, and their foremost statesman, Daniel Webster.

Against Scott the Democrats, after a long deadlock, chose a little known and undistinguished ex-senator from New Hampshire, Franklin Pierce. He was selected apparently because he, too, had fought in the Mexican War and might thus neutralize some of Scott's military glamor.

The Democrats were united in favor of keeping quiet on the slavery question. The uneasy consciences of the Whigs divided them, some taking the same stand as the Democrats, others wishing to agitate. Divided, the party was easily defeated, carrying only four states. Before the next presidential election the party had ceased to be. Pierce proved a failure as president, and civil war grew rapidly nearer.

The lessons for us are not obvious, unless it be that the parties should take a positive stand on the questions of the day and nominate able candidates who will carry out the party platform.

CHEAPER STEAKS

A Miami grocer, faced with a dwindling volume of business and a growing financial loss, decided to take drastic action to attract customers. He changed all of his prices to cost plus a flat ten per cent service charge. This makes his prices somewhat higher on a few items but considerably lower on most. Steak, for example, which costs $1.19 in competitors' stores, cost $1.03 in his.

Rival merchants say that the price cutter will not be able to continue in business on such a small margin of profit. The grocer himself admits that his net profit is now around two per cent. But he maintains that his greatly increased volume of business will make up for the smallness of the profit margin.

Cost plus ten per cent may prove to be too slim an operating margin for a food store. But it is interesting in this day of ever increasing food costs that the old idea of low costs and great volume is still considered workable. The grocery store in Miami will be watched by merchandisers and consumers alike with a great degree of interest.

PROBLEMS OF NATO

A British friend of mine, writing in criticism, makes this point:

"Britain's military commitment in Europe, which you seemed entirely to over-look in your column of December 19th when you wrote that 'Great Britain is not providing additional troops for NATO' and further down in the same article 'so far only the Americans are providing important air power,' is a very great one. Britain has in Germany four and a third divisions, three of them armored. This is more armor than that contributed by any other nation, including the United States. The United Kingdom has been virtually denuded of troops. Western Germany is today our home base. When British troops are rotated from Middle and Far Eastern stations, they are just as likely to find their home base is Germany as they are to return to Aldershot. This is a truly astonishing state of affairs and one which has greatly impressed our continental friends and neighbors. . . .

"The British contribution to the defense of Western Europe includes the Royal Navy, second only to the United States Navy in numbers and certainly not inferior in quality. There is also the Royal Air Force and you, of all people, will not underrate that. The 2nd Tactical Air Force (RAF) in Germany has been called General Eisenhower's 'Ace in the hole.' Britain has also supplied the European nations with considerable numbers of modern aircraft, radar equipment, etc."

What this means is that the British, as the French and the West Germans, are wearying of the assumption that the United States is doing the whole job of the defense of Europe, while they are doing nothing. Yet, when these figures are analyzed, what does the whole effort amount to?

The Russians are reported to have about 225 divisions of available troops ready for action. NATO has about at most 20 complete divisions available at this moment. No one claims that Western airpower is currently superior to Russian airpower, although the United States has expended unbelievable treasure for precisely that purpose. Nor is there absolute assurance that our Navy or the British Navy is ready to meet the onslaught of Russia's fleet of schnorkel submarines. We have lost the advantage of the atom bomb through treachery, neglect, and erroneous government policies.

While that does not mean that the fight against Russia is lost, it does mean that we must, if we are to prevail, face all the facts realistically and we must stop believing our own propaganda.

For instance, there seem to be 30,000 or more American women and children, associated with our armed forces and civilian officials in Europe. If conditions are as serious as General Eisenhower reports, these women and children have no business there. They would be taken hostages in war. They have no way out and could only clutter up the communications lines. When Eisenhower asked Congress for more American troops, he described conditions as dire. Do you have women and children picnicking in so perilous an area?

Their presence would rather indicate that the British and French view may be more correct than General Eisenhower's, namely, that the war in Europe is not just around the corner. While this view requires careful scrutiny and could, if accepted, involve us in another Pearl Harbor and another Korean surprise war, it cannot be ignored. There are so many historic factors that point to greater peril in Asia than in Europe; more Russian concern over the Middle East than over the Danube.

My British friend makes a further objection which tells quite a story if wisey read. He says:

"I think I have said enough in this letter, George, to qualify the statement you made in your broadcast that 'Churchill must recognize that it is politically impossible for the United States to provide all the troops and all the supplies for the defense of Europe and Asia from Russian aggression.' Admittedly, we do not have as large a number of troops in Korea fighting side by side with your gallant American army as we would wish. Nevertheless, we do have a large continent in Hong Kong (about 11,500) and another large army of over 25,000 fighting in Malaya, in addition to well over 100,000 auxiliary police. We also have over 50,000 troops in the Middle East, an area which, to my way of thinking, is just as important to America as it is to Britain. And I certainly haven't heard of many American troops in the Middle East."

OVERWEIGHT SHORTENS LIFE

A healthy, middle-aged man is surprised, when he applies for life insurance, to be told that the company cannot insure him because he is overweight or, if accepted, he must pay a higher premium rate than one of normal weight. Having been of normal weight for years and free from aches or pains, he is surprised to learn that this new extra poundage to which he has given no thought is considered a serious matter by the life insurance company.

I often write about overweight and the strictness of insurance companies in refusing to insure overweight men and women. In the Statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, we read that overweight people suffer a materially higher death rate than those of normal weight.

A recent study has just been completed on policy holders who were refused regular or standard life insurance but were given substandard insurance solely because they were overweight; they were first-class risks in other respects—that is, with regard to physical condition, medical history and occupation. The findings in this study are based upon the mortality experience or death rate of about 26,000 men and 25,000 women who were insured in the period 1925 to 1934 and traced to the anniversary of their insurance during 1950. The death rate was measured by the comparable experience among persons accepted for standard insurance. Among overweight men between the ages of 20 to 64 years at the time their insurance was issued, the death rate was 150 per cent (one and one-half times) that of men accepted for standard insurance (as they were of normal weight). The death rate for overweight women was also 150 per cent that of those of normal weight.

In both men and women, the death rate increased in proportion to the degree of overweight present.

The above is the dark side of the picture but the bright or encouraging side is the finding that reducing their weight improves the health outlook for overweight individuals. It was found that the record of ploicy holders who reduced their weight after taking out substandard insurance showed that then they could take out standard insurance.

Weight control appears to be the most practical means available at present of preventing or delaying the degenerative diseases of middle and later life that now outrank all other diseases as a cause of death.

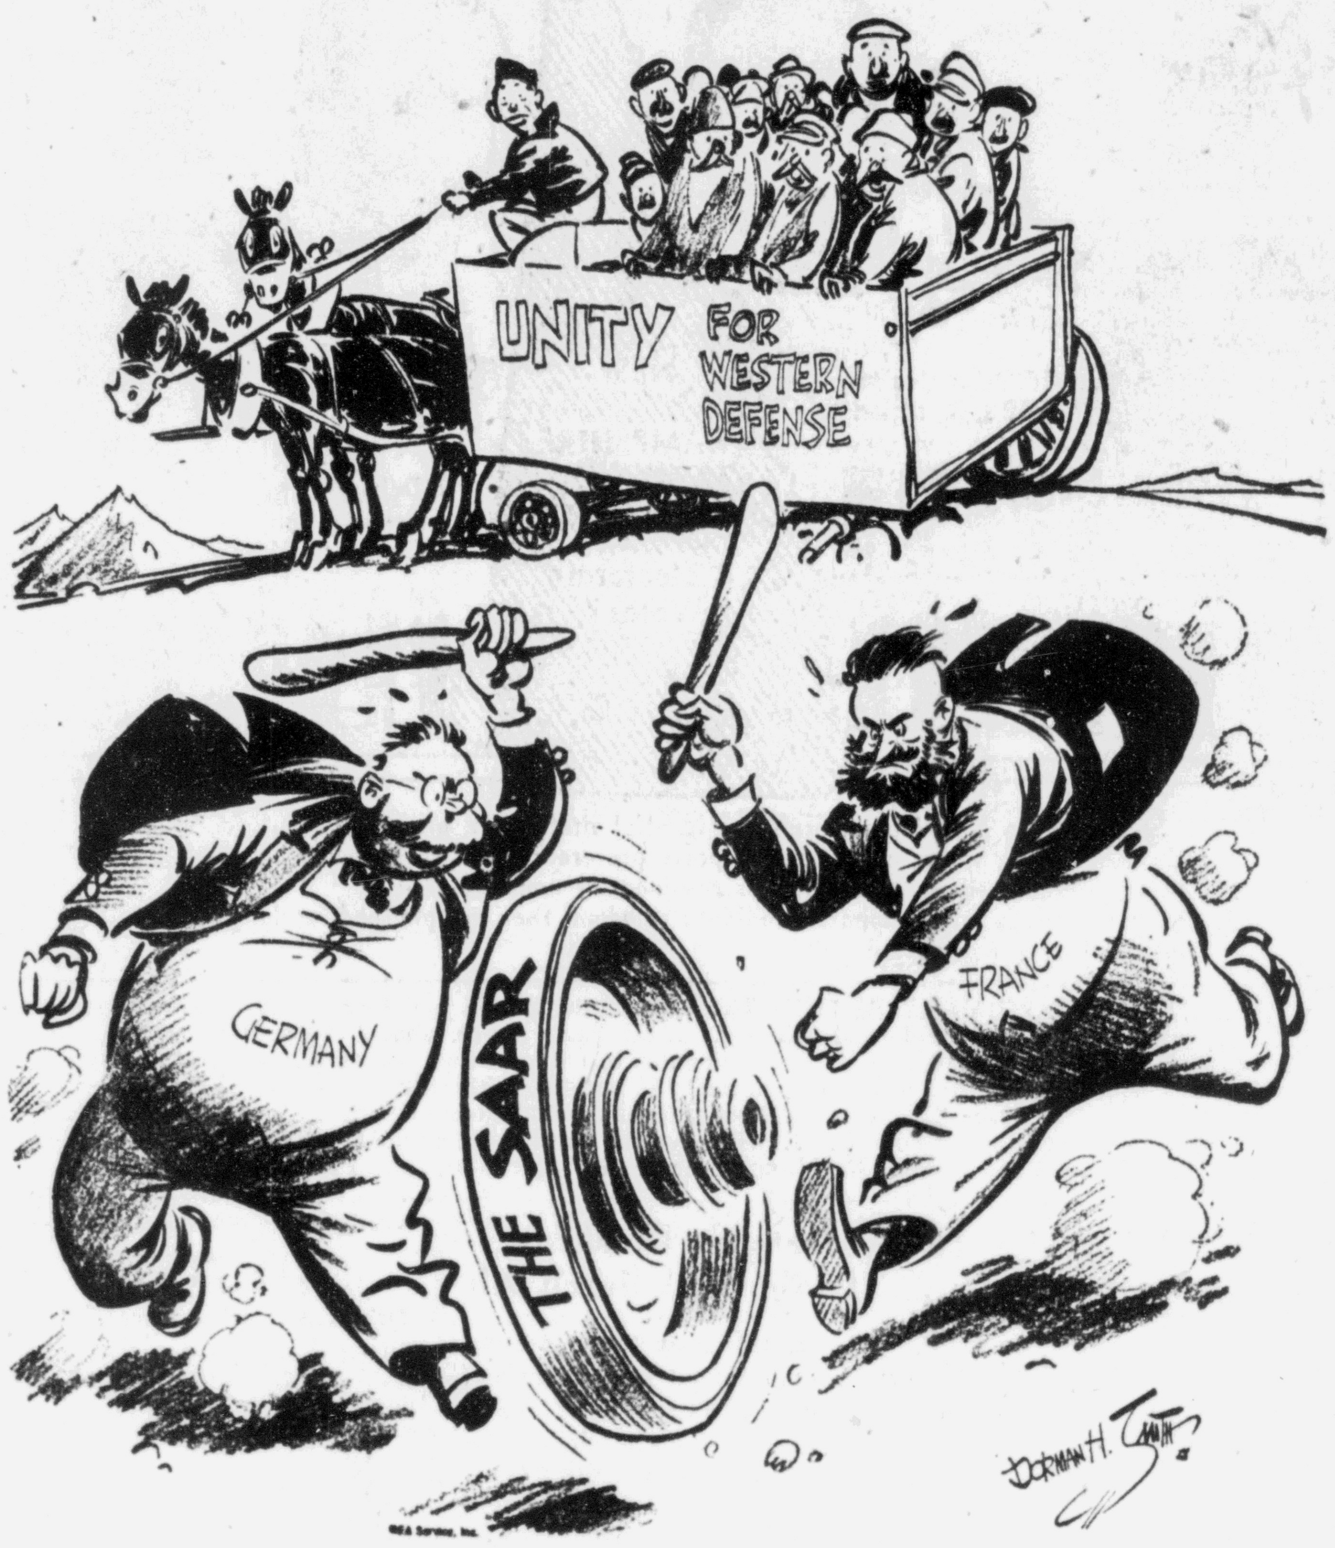
Hold Everything!



The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Real fact about President Truman's inner debate with himself over the question of "to-run-or-not-to-run" is that it's intimately tied up to General Eisenhower. It is like a seesaw. The more Eisenhower's political strength goes down, the more Truman's inclination to run goes up.

Approximately one month ago the President had definitely decided he would not permit himself to be drafted. In his own mind this was categoric, and to one or two of his most intimate friends, he so expressed himself. At that time, he firmly expected Eisenhower would be the Republican nominee, and Truman had no relish for opposing Ike, not only because he personally made a pledge to help Ike become President but also because he regarded Ike as unbeatable.

Since then, however, the political scouts, both Republican and Democratic, report that Eisenhower's organization is limping and that the general, though having tremendous popular appeal, is in the hands of an inept group who can't translate popular appeal into delegates.

As a result, the President has been toying with the idea of running again—first, because he is itching to take on Bob Taft whom he thinks he can lick; second, because the palace guard is cleverly cooking him up as the indispensable man.

Sage Chief Justice

On the other hand, no less a personage than Chief Justice Fred Vinson, one of the closest friends the President has and in his day a shrewd political observer, has been spending some time at the White House strongly advising Mr. Truman not to run.

The chief justice took his move after a talk with Speaker Sam Rayburn. Both men have a great affection for the President, and both are in a far better position to gauge the political winds than the palace guard.

The chief justice's argument has been an appealing one — namely, that Truman's place in history on the major issues is now assured. No one can ever detract from his firm stand in building up the North Atlantic Pact, putting across the Marshall Plan, opposing a Communist aggressor in Korea, blocking communism in Greece and Turkey; and championing such domestic issues as civil liberties, public housing, public health and a better break for the common man.

But if the President ran and were defeated, the chief justice has argued, he would jeopardize all that he has won—especially his foreign policy. Furthermore, even if he ran and won, he would face a split in his own party which might endanger his foreign policy.

Naturally these arguments have counted heavily with the President. He knows they are disinterested and come from his best friend.

Palace Guard Protects Jobs

On the other hand, the men immediately around the President, most of whom are rabidly intent on keeping their jobs, know that their only job-insurance is to have Truman run again.

As a result, they constantly bring in those callers who they know will urge their chief to run, tell him he is the only man who can save the nation. They know what the President's vanities are, his prejudices and his passions. And though he started out by being quite friendly to Senator Kefauver, the palace guard has now fanned his jealousy to a point where he would almost like to run if only to put the Tennessee senator in his place.

To illustrate, Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, interviewed by the press the other day, was asked what he thought of Kefauver. Stevenson and Kefauver have always been friendly, so the governor made the natural observation that Kefauver was a fine man and would make a good candidate.

Immediately a member of the palace guard clipped the Stevenson quote, rushed it into Truman, exclaiming that the governor of Illinois had betrayed the President, was now rooting for Kefauver. The palace guard, of course, wants neither Kefauver nor Stevenson to run. They only want the man who can guarantee continuation of their jobs—Harry S. Truman.

Rayburn Has Brought Action to Head Issue on Broadcasting Congressional Hearings

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 26—Fortunately for the cause of reporting fully what the Congress is doing, Speaker Rayburn has brought to a head the issue of whether congressional hearings and perhaps even sessions of Congress shall be broadcast by radio and telecast by television.

It is true that present rules in the House of Representatives are vague, and hence what the speaker says is final, but there is no reason why the House itself by a vote of its members could not make the rules explicit.

But certainly there is no manifest obstacle when a microphone is turned on. It makes no noise of its own. Again and again microphones have been used with loud speakers and most committees have had microphones at their hearings for a long time.

That's why Mr. Rayburn's refusal to allow the House Un-American Activities Committee to make its own arrangements for the reporting of the hearings being held in Detroit came as a surprise. Heretofore many a tape recording has been made which permits the broadcasting stations to distribute in the evening hours which were recorded earlier in the day.

Speaker Rayburn went further—he said the existing rules prohibited all forms of motion-picture photography during House hearings. Some of the television stations like to make a film of daytime proceedings and reproduce the pictures over television channels in the evening.

But it will be noted that Mr. Rayburn said there was no objection to the taking of "still" pictures, though he advised that they be taken before or after the hearings. Just why "still" pictures are permissable and motion pictures cannot be made is an inconsistency that will require some explanation. It will be puzzling to anyone who tries to understand the rules as now interpreted by Speaker Rayburn.

Television and motion pictures require bright light and hence witnesses can claim that they are harassed by the presence of such instruments. The courts some day will have to pass finally on this point. It is also probable that the lighting difficulties will be overcome sometime in the future by introducing lamps that illuminate a room without causing discomfort. But for the present the thing that militates against television operations is the factor of personal discomfort.

What is most disturbing, on the other hand, is that the question is being decided on the basis of rules that are antiquated. The only reason why radio broadcasting of hearings is being banned by Speaker Rayburn is that radio and television are so much alike that to grant the privilege in one is surely to lead to the other.

The problem is basically one of the public interest. Will the cause of good government be aided by the widest possible distribution of the news in radio and visual form? Are the people entitled to the news of their government through all possible forms of communication? Is the denial of broadcasting of public proceedings a sort of censorship?

Where the witness is likely to be prosecuted for contempt, the proceedings before a congressional committee could, of course, lead to the same sort of rules as now exist in courtrooms where the judges quite generally bar pictures during the trial sessions, though they allow photos to be made before or after the day's proceedings. The American Bar Association has frowned on the taking of still pictures during trials and doubtless would be equally opposed to television photography.

In the congressional hearings, however, witnesses often make a mockery of the proceedings. Witness after witness refuses to answer even to the most innocuous questions on the ground that to reply is to incriminate oneself. Where such palpable abuse exists, the public interest lies in the direction of more rather than less notoriety for those persons who use American constitutional rights as a means of evading obligations to their government.

The issue is bound to be carried to the people, and the Republicans appear to be ready to demand that the crime hearings and the Communist hearings be broadcast by radio and telecast by TV. If this is the new rule, then ultimately the proceedings of both Houses of Congress may be seen and heard on television, which would be a good thing despite the possible abuses that could arise when demagogues seek to use the opportunity for personal aggrandizement rather that thoughtful debate.

In the end, as with all such problems, the wisest decision can be made by weighing the disadvantages against the advantages. And it will be found that a greater and greater knowledge of what the government is doing in a republic is distinctly helpful to the cause of responsible government.

Grange News

Farm and Home Week at Cornell is always one of the early Spring high spots for farm and rural folks from this and nearby states. Grange members, in addition to the usual events will be interested to learn that they will be able to see an interesting exhibit which fits in with our 1952 Farm Practice Project: "Better Gardens for Better Living." The Vegetable Crops Department of the College of Agriculture is hard at work on a display which will feature a model farmstead and garden under the theme sign: "Grow More, Preserve More, Eat Better." Those who have small girls and boys will want to watch the electric trains wander through the large display. Look for it at Cornell's Farm and Home Week, third floor of the Martha Van Rensselaer building, March 16 through 22.

River control legislation is of practical concern to Grange members and farm people in every part of the state. Sensible and recreation-minded sportsmen and vacationers have a definite interest in conservation of our water resources. Rural people have a stake in it not necessarily for power and industrial purposes so much as regulated control to eliminate wasteful flooding of valuable farm land. There is a bill in our state legislature right now which, if passed, would prevent by constitutional amendment, any future regulation of water flow originating in the Adirondack Preserve. A small but powerful private ownership group would like to see this measure made into law. We think it would be definitely against the public interest, and certainly bears scrutiny by farmers and those living by rural streams who are now subject to disastrous floods. Of equal importance is the value of continuous flow in drouth periods.

Home Economics program of National Grange is the same as our New York State Grange Service and Hospitality Committee. As we have noted in this column from time to time, these Grange ladies are a busy group of folks in every one of our Subordinate and Pomona Granges. We are all well into the year 1952 and now is the time to get this phase of Grange work underway, if it hasn't already been done. Support your S & H Committee, get your own Grange plans and projects working smoothly so that we will have some outstanding results to demonstrate at our State Sessions next October. The time is now!

Pasha Warns Egypt Will Move to Oust British From Suez

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 26 (AP)—Premier Aly Maher Pasha warned last night his government will lead Egypt in a struggle to get British troops out of the Suez and unite the disputed Sudan with Egypt unless it wins these aims in talks with the British.

The British-Egyptian discussions begin Saturday. Maher Pasha called them "quick and urgent talks."

He said Egypt would not discuss whether Britain would quit the Suez but only "how it will be carried out."

"If we do not reach our aims, we will join you in your struggle—this struggle in which every Egyptian will participate in a united effort," he said in a radio address to the nation.

Maher Pasha, in office a month, has ended the repeated bloody clashes between British troops and Egyptians which marked the nationalistic regime of former Wafdist Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha. While calming the nation, he laid the groundwork for renewing talks with Britain.

One of the main points in the talks is expected to be the creation of some sort of Middle East defensive alliance with the west, perhaps built around the collective security pact of the seven Arab League nations.

Bixby Reminded Of Agreement on Crossing Work

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk in a letter mailed yesterday to James S. Bixby, state district engineer, reminded him of the agreement to resume work on the Broadway crossing project on March 3 and to have the underpass open to traffic by May 29.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Central Business Men's Association said today that no word had been received from the State Department of Public Works on the suggestion to have a conference here to determine what could be done to resume work on the crossing at the earliest possible date.

The mayor's letter:

February 25, 1952

Mr. James S. Bixby, District Engineer
New York State Department of Public Works
Pleasant Valley Road
Poughkeepsie, New York

Dear Mr. Bixby:

On January 10th, 1952 a meeting was held in my office with you and representatives of Lipsett, Inc. contractors presently doing construction work on the Broadway Crossing Elimination Project in Kingston.

At this meeting it was agreed by you and Lipsett, Inc. that if the work was closed down for the winter months they would start working on said project on March 3rd, 1952 in order that Broadway traffic would be able to use the underpass by May 29th, 1952.

As the mayor of the City of Kingston, I am sending you this letter asking you and the New York State Department of Public Works to take the necessary action, if any is needed, to have the work started on March 3rd and completed by May 29th in order that traffic on Broadway will be able to use the railroad underpass. The delay on this project has been a matter of great concern to the business people and to the citizens of the City of Kingston.

I trust that you will take the necessary steps to have this project completed at the earliest time possible.

Very truly yours,
Oscar V. Newkirk
Mayor

can, British and French forces in Germany for the 12-month period after the European defense community comes into existence. These allied forces will not formally be occupation troops, enjoying the rights they have held since V-E Day. But the Bonn government has agreed to share the expenses of keeping them.

5. Cost of Germany's share in the allied infrastructure program for building airfields, communications, troop quarters and other installations for the common use.

Whole Will Be Paid

About the whole of the German contribution—less a billion marks (238 million dollars) earmarked for Berlin and internal security—will be paid into the funds of the European Defense Community (EDC).

In turn EDC will fork out the expenses of the United States, British and French troops in Germany. It will also pay for the equipment Germany is to get from these funds.

The ministers also turned their attention today to the problem of getting the Russians to quit stalling on an independence pact for Austria.

In addition, they studied American proposals for taking off some important wraps which still remain on German war industries.

The United States faced French and British opposition to resuming German tank and ammunition output, but the civil aeronautics program appeared to have a fair chance of a go-ahead from all three.

General Agreement

There appeared to be general agreement Germany would not be allowed to build strategic war industries which would help Russia if Germany should be overrun by Soviet troops in a future war. Such a ban, presently in effect, would include atomic weapons, biological warfare agents, and submarines.

In an effort to solve the long-deadlocked Austrian situation, Acheson was expected to seek approval by Eden and Schuman of an abbreviated treaty with Austria to restore her independence, as promised by the 1943 Moscow declaration. That declaration marked Austria as a Nazi-occupied country, not an enemy.

The U. S. proposal would renounce reparations claims, wipe out suggestions of Austrian war guilt, and call for withdrawal of the French, British, American and Russian occupation armies.

Night Raider Story

plosion, our plane was lifted 20 feet, our tail was higher than our nose, and I wanted to get out. Felix had hit a big munitions plant.

The entire countryside was a blaze of light. Pillars of fire 200 or 300 feet high probed into the pitch black.

Below, rushing for the safety of a long tunnel, were two locomotives and about 30 boxcars. These were the life line of the Communists.

Like Giant Inferno

The next half hour was amazing. With a terrific blast Red cut the track leading to the tunnel. Felix knocked some cars off the other end of the line, and the valuable locomotives were trapped.

Now we hit them from every angle. Out of absolute darkness, with not a single light on our planes, Felix and Red combed those trains from end to end. One big bomb caught a carload of ammunition. Another set the engine itself smoking. The valley was a ghostly inferno with four separate big fires, topped by the factory itself which kept blazing furiously.

How Felix and Red could fly in the pitch dark, weaving back and forth upon one another like skilled basketball forwards, is a secret. All I can say is that here were two massive planes flying 300 miles an hour without a single visible clue as to where the other man was. Yet they sometimes passed at 50 feet!

Gets Other Prizes

Red spotted a gun position that was firing at us and which already had put a bullet through his wing. With a pounce of from 1,500 feet Red annihilated that gun.

[illegible], unmolested, Felix and Red went about the dizzy and terrifying business of making one power dive after another on the train. To my immense relief, our morning jet planes appeared to take over and we went north to where we were supposed to have been all the time.

Felix was in luck. Leaving the trains, he got a truck, one of the most valuable targets in North Korea today. Then he found a large boat, the kind the Communists have been using to make assaults on our forward positions. With one bomb Felix blew it absolutely apart.

His Last Targets

Farther along the coast he found a nest of Sampans which had been carrying supplies at night. He was almost out of bombs so he used his few remaining bullets to strafe at low level and he put down three of the Sampans.

He now had one bomb left. Red, who had been off after some ox carts which the Communists use for heavy transport, was out of bombs and ammo both. The two men teamed up again and Red scoured the countryside for one last target. He found a beauty. A boat in a dry dock. Coldly Felix dropped down to inspect. This was worthwhile. He climed for a high run, dove down furiously, and blew the boat, the drydock, and what was left of my stomach all to pieces.

The Assembly Health Committee approved the measure last week, but consideration by the full House has been delayed pending action by the Senate Committee.

Never An Eisenhower

Saugerties, N. Y.
16 Partition Street

Editor, The Freeman:

With interest and, may I say amazement, have I read the "letter to the Editor", published in last Saturday's "Freeman" issue. According to that, two Republican enrolled Woodstock ladies urged Honorable Senator Arthur H. Wicks to work toward the nomination of General Eisenhower for President. Well, here is one enrolled Republican, who never missed a vote in his life, who dares to disagree with two ladies at a time. I agree that General Eisenhower is a great military genius and strategist but history proves that he is indirectly responsible for the sore mess our country is in today. Here is the simple, undeniable fact.

When the brave General Patton rushed on to Berlin in 1945, actually knocking at the very door of that capital city, he was ordered by the great strategist Eisenhower not only to halt, but to retreat 100 miles and wait idly until our "trustworthy Ally," the Russians marched into that city. Of course, Eisenhower just followed orders received from Marshall who had received them from Truman, who had executed the decree left him by a very sick F. D. R. Had Eisenhower disregarded this secret betrayal from above, after his troops had won the war, Russia would have been put in its place right then and there and would have never dared to light the fuse of the present Truman war and shove us all over the globe today. The billion dollars spent for the Berlin airlift, the billions upon billions spent all over the world since, would not have become necessary. The order from Truman to Marshall, from Marshall to Eisenhower, from Eisenhower to Patton is the origin and root of our present troubles and taxpayers burdens.

After this terrific blunder had been committed, medals were handed out by the bushels and Truman and Pal Joey sat down for a chat in the historic City of Potsdam. The big cake, baked by the very sick F.D.R. was now ready to be cut and divided. The betrayal of America was being completed. All the self declared doves of peace assembled and, I believe, even Alger Hiss was there. The seeds of the never ending cold war were planted in the shadow of the Garrison Church in Potsdam, whose mighty bells had rung for over two centuries at every ½ hour: "Ueb' immer Treu und Redlichkeit" (Act always faithfully and honestly) and every hour on the hour: "Lobe den Herrn, den maechtigen Koenig der Ehren." (Praise The LORD, the mighty King of Honor.) In the shadow of that Church the President of the United States played the Missouri Waltz to the vodka drinking real enemies of the United States. It reminded me of Nero fiddling while Rome was aflame. Rivers of American blood of American Youths have been shed during two terrible world wars which both could have been avoided. Rivers of blood were shed by boys of parents all over the world. American boys by the thousand upon thousands have lost their lives in the present Truman war, or were maimed in beastly fashion. Are we looking for oceans of blood? Are we going to forego our American freedom for serfage? Are we going to vote for entire bankruptcy of our Nation, our families, our businesses on next November election? NO, a thousand times NO.

Then, let us not be misled by self-declared doves of peace, who can only think in terms of taxes, guns, bombs and destruction. All the chances we ever had were deliberately bungled by those that could have succeeded. Eisenhower was one of them. Thousands upon thousands of lives seem to mean nothing for political glory and comfort.

The United Press reported last Saturday, quoting U. S. Senator Frank Carlson of Kansas as saying that, a book to be published this month, "What Eisenhower Thinks," by Allen Taylor, gives in the general's own words his "firm stand on all of the vital problems facing America and the world today." We know what Eisenhower did in 1945, now he wants to be President and want us to read a book about what he thinks. So it has come to that? The general sits snugly in his mansion and proclaims: "I am a soldier and have a great job to perform for my country," while he permits disappointed politicians to lay the groundwork for him for the Presidency and we should read a book about what he thinks. How much work any man can perform under such conditions is not hard to figure out.

Eisenhower for President? NEVER!

I hope that our Republican county leader will carefully weigh the past performances of our presidential candidates when going to the most important National Convention this country ever had. May he possess the courage to say to his friend: "Governor, this time you are all wet; the good people of the counties I represent differ with you thoroughly. They want a man who knows how to prevent further bloodshed. They want a man who will think of America first and never condone the actions of our enemies from within or without, whether they are elected or appointed officials, whether they are Communists, or plain racketeers and chiselers of any shade or form. They want a man who will stop the ever increasing regimentation of our people and the ever increasing curtailment of the liberties they so proudly boast of. Let us give the people such a man, be his name Taft or MacArthur, but never an Eisenhower." If Senator Wicks will do that, he will do justice to the worthy title of Republican Leader. His constituents will be 100 per cent behind him.

Sincerely,
EUGENE F. GRIGAT.

Hand-Me-Down Dilemma Can Be Trouble-Maker

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

"Why," an English teacher asked her high school class, "do the writers of fairy tales always make the youngest prince braver than his brothers and the youngest princess lovelier than her sisters?"

Her class agreed that the best answer to her question was the one of the boy who said, "Because somebody wanted to give the 'youngests' a break for always having to wear their brothers' and sisters' hand-me-downs."

Mishandled, the hand-me-down can be a trouble-maker. I know a nice old lady of 75 right this minute who takes the greatest pleasure in jamming needles into a red needle cushion. If you ask her where she got it, she will tell you that she made it from a hated merino dress, outgrown by two older sisters, and handed down to her in a state of perfect and infuriating repair.

It's not so hard to understand this violent prejudice against hand-me-downs if we give some thought to it. We can't help stamping our identity on the clothes we wear, even on the equipment we use. The people who live with us and our belongings get to associate them with us.

It's quite a little mental trick to try and identify yourself with a skirt or a blouse that you associate with somebody else. Though children will tell us that they object to the hand-me-down because it isn't fresh and new, their real distaste is for having to wear clothing identified with an elder brother or sister.

When we consider that brothers and sisters are very competitive people indeed, we begin to get light on the psychological resistance to the hand-me-down and see why it appears as an imposition or even a threat to the younger child.

THE RESPECT FOR HUMAN IDENTITY

Understanding the cause of this resistance, we can begin to find ways to solve the hand-me-down dilemma.

A dye job that turns Bill's expensive but outgrown red sweater to brown may make it more acceptable to his young brother. Green buttons and belt replacing the red ones on Mary's blue wool may help her little sister disconnect the dress from Mary's vivid personality and attach it to her own.

Some mothers get around the problem by taking the hand-me-down right out of the family, and organizing a clothes-and-equipment exchange with other parents. Mary's little sister will have a much easier time establishing her own identity in a sweater outgrown by somebody else's big sister, instead of by overwhelming, vivid Mary.

So long as the clothing belongs to some older child beyond the family competitive orbit, the hand-me-down is usually regarded as welcome.

I can almost hear a reader grumbling to himself as he reads this, "Did you ever hear such nonsense?" In the good old days, there was none of this fancy modern catering to children. They had to wear their brothers' and sisters' hand-me-downs—or else!"

I know they did. Before anyone writes to me to make this point, let me say that while I am sure the "good old days" had many pleasant things to offer, I think our modern habit of catering to the differences that make children and other human beings unique and distinct and individual is one of the best things about our century.

Although I think that the 19th Century was a fine one, I cannot help feeling that it was remarkable for its number of boys who ran away to sea and for fainting young girls who constantly went into "declines."

While I do not mean to imply that wearing a hand-me-down will drive Bill's brother away to sea, I do suggest that the identity of an American child is a singularly precious thing, as the strength of his country is based on respect for differences between people.

FISH CAN BE A REAL TREAT

FISH FILLET TURBANS with mushroom stuffing combine to make a delectable Lenten main dish.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Now begins the open Lenten season for wonderful new fish dishes. Every year, more and more families are learning to appreciate fish when cooked in interesting ways. You'll really enjoy these two recipes that appeal to the eye, the taste and the food budget.

Fish Fillets With Mushrooms
(6 servings)

Buy six narrow fish fillets or trim wide fish fillets. (If you use frozen fillets, you will need two 1-pound packages.) Grease a six-well muffin pan. Set oven at 375 degrees F. (moderate oven).

Sprinkle fillets with lemon juice and coil each fillet around inside of muffin well. Melt 3 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine. Add 1 tablespoon chopped onion and saute until onion is golden. Add ½ cup chopped canned mushrooms, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, ½ cup cream, 2 beaten eggs and 1 teaspoon chopped parsley.

Season with salt and pepper to taste. Stir until well mixed. Cook over low heat until mixture is thickened. Spoon into center of fish turbans.

Bake at 375 degrees F. (moderate oven) 15 to 20 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve immediately on a hot platter.

Fish Dinner Casserole
(4 servings)

One pound frozen fish fillets, 2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine, 1½ tablespoons flour, 1 cup scalded milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, dash nutmeg, 1 cup cooked shrimp, 3 tablespoons parsley.

Let fillets thaw at room temperature. Place in greased baking dish. Melt butter or magarine in a saucepan. Stir in flour. Gradually add milk and beat with a rotary beater. Add salt and pepper.

Cook until sauce is smooth and boiling, about 10 minutes, beating as it boils. Stir in nutmeg. Pour sauce over fish in baking dish.

Bake at 425 degrees F. (hot oven) 10 to 12 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Remove from oven.

You'll Be Ahead Looking for Spots

BY OSWALD JACOBY

"Very few players watch the spots carefully," Dick Kahn remarked to me recently. This wasn't exactly news to me, but I didn't interrupt because Dick looked like a man who had an interesting hand to talk about.

"Now here's a hand I played just the other day," Dick continued. "West opened a trump, and won in dummy. I returned a club from dummy, and East won with the ten of clubs. That ten of clubs was a spot card that became forgotten later on.

"East returned the eight of hearts, I played the jack, and West won with the ace of clubs and then made the fatal error of returning a low heart."

It was a fatal error, all right. West could have saved the day by making the correct return. Do you see how?

West should have led a third club. When East played the ten of clubs at the second trick he made it clear that he did not have the nine of clubs. Hence the nine of clubs was clearly loca ted in the South hand.

Careful thought would have made it clear that a third round of clubs would do nothing for declarer that he could not do for himself. In short, West could lose nothing by leading a third club, and he would gain the all important advantage of removing the nine of clubs from the South hand. South would then have to lose a spade no matter what he did.

When the hand was actually played, West returned a low heart, and Kahn won in his own hand with the king. He then ran all the rest of the trumps and cashed dummy's queen of hearts. When dummy finally led the queen of hearts, everybody had to come down to three cards. East had his original three spades and a high club left. What could he throw?

If he discarded the club, South's nine of clubs would become established. So East had to discard the four of spades. Kann threw the nine of clubs, saving three spades. West also kept three spades.

Kahn had already decided that West would not have doubled on two bare aces, so he played West for the queen of spades. He cashed the ace of spades, dropping East's nine, and then led the jack of spades through West, picking up East's ten of spades.

Adjournment Granted

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Sidney B. Wellons, 46-year-old former internal revenue agent, has been granted a three-week adjournment of his federal court trial on charges of soliciting a bribe. Wellons told Judge Henry W. Goddard yesterday that he was engaged as a certified public accountant in assisting persons in making out income tax returns and this was his "busy season." Judge Goddard set March 17 as the tentative trial date.

Holdup Suspect Seized at Airport

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—A suspect in a $19,600 Los Angeles bank holdup was seized by FBI agents at La Guardia Field early today after a description of the wanted man had been checked by radio with a plane coming in from the west coast.

In Los Angeles, where police were notified of the arrest, Lt. George Stoner identified the prisoner as John Richard Bayless, 37. In 1937, Bayless was sentenced to 25 years in Alcatraz prison for robbery of a bank at Mansfield, Mo.

The FBI agents here, who took the prisoner to their Manhattan headquarters, refused comment on the case.

A branch of the Bank of America in Los Angeles was robbed about 10:30 a. m. yesterday as movieland customers waited in line, unaware of the holdup.

Fled in Coupe

The robber took his loot in a briefcase and fled in a coupe bearing Louisiana license plates.

Persons who saw the arrest here said the suspect was carrying a loaded .38 caliber pistol and a brown briefcase. Contents of the briefcase were not revealed.

The FBI which had been tipped off yesterday, had six agents waiting at the airport for the Trans World Airlines plane from Los Angeles.

One of the agents — wearing a TWA uniform went to the top of passenger stairway as the plane landed at 4:15 a. m. (EST), and seized the suspect when he stepped out. The other agents then closed in, and quickly took the man away.

A TWA spokesman said the FBI had contacted the airline, made arrangements to meet the plane and gave a description of the wanted man.

Word Goes To Hostess

The description was radioed to the plane as it flew over Pittsburgh—an hour before landing here—and Capt. B. K. Stuessi, 37, of Kansas City, Mo., passed word to the hostess.

The hostess, Jeri Starr, 21, of Kansas City, spotted the passenger in seat No. 6 and gave a description of him to the captain. This was when the plane was 20 minutes out of La Guardia Field and the hostess was having the passengers fasten their landing belts.

The man's description was radioed back to the FBI agents at the field, and double-checked.

The plane had stopped at Phoenix, Ariz.; Chicago and Dayton, Ohio, enroute here from Los Angeles.

Bill Goes to Governor

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—A bill that would give New York state voters two extra hours to get to the polls in this year's presidential election went to Governor Dewey today. The measure would authorize the secretary of state to set 9 p. m. as the closing hour if the state registration totaled six million. In the past four presidential elections registration figures have been well over that. Final passage came last night in the Assembly. Under present law the voting hours are from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Bill Goes to Senate

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—A bill was sent to the Senate today to extend medical and dental expense indemnity to grade school pupils injured in school athletic activities. The measure was passed unanimously last night by the Assembly. The coverage would extend to intramural and interscholastic contests and physical education classes. Present coverage is limited to high school "sports or contests." Republican Assemblyman Samuel Rabin of Queens introduced the measure.

'Heart' Education Needed

Years of happy and productive living are possible for most persons suffering from heart and circulatory diseases. Heart "trouble" does not necessarily mean the patient must give up his job and take to his bed. Usually, diseases of the heart are chronic in nature, only partially limiting a person's activity. Under the advice and guidance of his doctor, many heart disease patients can find suitable employment that fits their heart reserve. Better understanding of these and similar heart disease problems by the public is one of the aims of the education programs of the American Heart Association and its affiliates. Education of the public is one of the important activities financed by the heart fund. Give to the Heart Fund. Send your contribution to "Heart," 74 John street, Kingston, N. Y.

Conviction Upheld

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—A federal Appeals Court has upheld the conviction and sentence of James J. Moran for perjury before the U. S. Senate Crime Committee. Moran, long-time friend and political protege of former Mayor William O'Dwyer, is under sentence to five years in prison and $2,000 fine. He was convicted of lying to the investigators about his relations with a Brooklyn numbers racketeer when Moran was first deputy fire commissioner. The Second U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the conviction unanimously yesterday.

Got Her Cigarettes

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—A strange clerk greeted a woman customer last night when she entered a drug store to buy cigarettes. Unsure of the price, he inquired of the owner, who was tied up at the moment in a back room. The clerk served her and she left. Then he pocketed the mony and left with an armed companion, adding the price of a pack of cigarettes to their $500 robbery.

Sprinkle fillets with lemon juice and coil each fillet around inside of muffin well. Melt 3 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine. Add 1 tablespoon chopped onion and saute until onion is golden. Add ½ cup chopped canned mushrooms, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, ½ cup cream, 2 beaten eggs and 1 teaspoon chopped parsley.

Season with salt and pepper to taste. Stir until well mixed. Cook over low heat until mixture is thickened. Spoon into center of fish turbans.

Bake at 375 degrees F. (moderate oven) 15 to 20 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve immediately on a hot platter.

Fish Dinner Casserole

One pound frozen fish fillets, 2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine, 1½ tablespoons flour, 1 cup scalded milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, dash nutmeg, 1 cup cooked shrimp, 3 tablespoons parsley.

Let fillets thaw at room temperature. Place in greased baking dish. Melt butter or magarine in a saucepan. Stir in flour. Gradually add milk and beat with a rotary beater. Add salt and pepper.

Cook until sauce is smooth and boiling, about 10 minutes, beating as it boils. Stir in nutmeg. Pour sauce over fish in baking dish.

Bake at 425 degrees F. (hot oven) 10 to 12 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Remove from oven.

THE BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL was fought on Breed's Hill, not on Bunker Hill. On July 16, 1775, General Artemas Ward and the Committee of Safety issued orders to seize and fortify Bunker Hill, but the Colonial officers, after consultation, decided to fortify Breed's Hill, some 2,000 feet away. Bunker Hill was the higher eminence, being 110 feet in height; but Breed's Hill 65 feet high, was believed to be a stronger defensive position against attack from the harbor.

THE BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL was fought on Breed's Hill, not on Bunker Hill. On July 16, 1775, General Artemas Ward and the Committee of Safety issued orders to seize and fortify Bunker Hill, but the Colonial officers, after consultation, decided to fortify Breed's Hill, some 2,000 feet away. Bunker Hill was the higher eminence, being 110 feet in height; but Breed's Hill 65 feet high, was believed to be a stronger defensive position against attack from the harbor.

Investor Forum

by

Harry C. France

There are foundations under the securities markets that, in normal times, analysts take little cognizance of. Yet, today, in our complex economic world, anyone failing to take them into their calculations is missing an important security price factor.

Let me be concrete. Less than ten years ago a representative American investor bought 500 shares of Amerada Oil for $20,000. It looked like a sound growth stock and it was selling to yield 5%. Well, since that time it has been split up 2 for 1 twice. So today he has 2,000 shares and, as I write, they are selling for $180 a share on the New York Stock Exchange.

His shares will bring $360,000. Ten years ago in his wildest imagination he would not have guessed they would ever be worth half of this sum. He can cash in profits of $340,000. If he should do so, he would have two immediate problems: the payment of $85,000 in federal capital gains' taxes and the reinvestment of $275,000.

In recent years the good oils, chemicals, industrials—under the impact of inflation, principally have gone "through the roof." And millions of these shares of stock have passed into strong hands of those whose tax burdens are almost insufferable.

To be specific: Standard Oil of New Jersey, Union Carbide and Carbon, duPont, General Motors, Chrysler—stocks of leading corporations that have been split up during the past decade—are owned by thousands of substantial investors who will die with them unless the capital gains' laws are modified.

And this list of five stocks can be multiplied tenfold. In other words, the tax collector has, perhaps unwittingly, caused millions of shares of good stocks to be withdrawn permanently from the market. That will partially explain why Amerada Oil, paying $3 a share a year, is selling for $180 a share today. Frozen equities in the hands of American investors thus strangely influence prices.

Then again, ask a wise investor who isn't too tax conscious why he dosent take profits. Half of the time he will say: "Cash in profits? Not me. Not with the dollar getting worse day by day."

A man was in my office today. In his pocket were a dozen newspaper clippings all carrying about the same story. The inflationary dollar was the general theme. He goes about showing these clippings to his friends. He is telling stange tales. He knows what has happened to the pound sterling and the French franc.

Said he: "The dollar is going the same way. And the values to buy are those that are inseparably connected with industrial production.

I don't like the public psychology about money. No one interested in a sound American economy should like it. In 1933 during the bank holiday, everybody wanted dollars. Nineteen years later there are far, far too many people wondering, wondering, wondering about the integrity of our money. I use this repetition on purpose. For they are thinking what they should do with their savings their bonds, their mortgages.

When taxes prevent the liquidation of stocks because such taxes are too high and, coupled with this, is the general knowledge that the dollar is deteriorating, an economic situation fraught with danger is set up.

In such times as these, nobody should go off the deep end. Prices and wages are too high. They carry great deflationary implications. If they should tumble (as they will sometime) dollars in reserve would be nice things to possess.

On the other hand, federal unbalanced budgets that pour billions of inflationary dollars into the economy undermine the integrity of our unit of currency and encourage people to buy such good stocks as DuPont, General Motors, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Union Carbide and Carbon.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

No doubt I could have a lot of interesting items for this column if I had some old law books, and the inclination to wade through them. For instance, it seems there was a law written in 1909 governing juke boxes. It would be interesting to read it, for in those days the only juke boxes were of the Penny Arcade variety. One man could look at them or listen to the music with earphones. Today juke boxes play records, the choice of one person, but everyone must listen. Have you ever been in a place and have someone drop nickel after nickel to play one record. Remember the Penny Arcade down in Kingston Point. Those moving picture slides were something. Or the lady who swung around and told you your fortune on a card for a penny. The minute I arrived at the Point I asked my father for money to go to the Penny Arcade. Annie Cohen used to change our silver into pennies, and she knew most of us by name. I wonder if youngsters would go for the Penny Arcade now?

Looking thrugh the "Spectator" of 1912 the year book of the old Kingston Academy the some ten pages of advertisements interested me. The back page is taken up by S. Cohen's Sons of 331 Wall street, the Hart Schaffner & Marx store. They were advertising stylish suits in those days from $18 and up. Overcoats were going for $16.50. At that time Forsyth & Davis were at 307 Wall street. As I remember they were wholesale and retail stationers. They even had silverware and such items as baseballs and hammocks.

Wm. S. Eltinge, the pharmicist, had his drug store at 34 John street and was advertising, "soda water and candy." F. J. and R. J. Walters had their confectionery and ice cream parlor at 327 Wall street. E. T. Steele & Son's shoe store was at 298 Wall street, corner John street. They also carried straw hats and caps for men. The Kingston Savings Bank at 273 Wall street had a little item called "A Talk to Graduates. Now that you are about to start to make money for yourself, remember, it's what you save that makes you rich. By once saving a dollar a month, Carnegie can now spend a million a month."

E. N. Parish had their "First class Livery" advertisement stating: "Four seaters for Lake Mohonk, Board and accomodation, 119-121 Broadway, 2-4-6-8 Pierpont street. Kingston." I think they had sleigh-loads also. Harry P. Carr had a fishing tackle and sport store at 306 Wall street. He also kept bicycle sundries, automobile and electrical supplies, phonographs and records. Wm. C. DeWitt was in the general insurance business at 276 Fair street. O'Connor Bros. were running a lunch wagon at Broadway and St. James street. Their slogan was: "Eat and be happy on homemade pie." Traphagen & Hull Mfg. Co. at Bruyn avenue and Cornell street made library tables, desks, swing chairs, jardiniere stands, umbrella stands, book racks, ironing boards, relining chairs etc., Frank Byer was advertising "Cracker Jack 5 cent cigars." He did not give an address in the advertisement because he was so well known. He was at 259 Fair street.

Leads Causes of Death

More than 745,000 lives were claimed during 1950 in the United States alone by diseases of the heart and circulatory system. This is almost double the fatalities caused by the next five leading causes of death including cancer, accidents, pneumonia, tuberculosis and nephritis. Estimates of 10,000,000 have been made of the number of persons affected by the diseases of the heart and circulation, including some 500,000 elementary and high school children. Over the age of 45, when human productivity is at its peak, one of every two deaths is caused by these diseases. Help in controlling heart disease through research, education and community heart programs can be given through contributions to the Heart Fund conducted during February by the American Heart Association and its affiliates. Send your donation to "Heart," 74 John street, Kingston, N. Y.

Nudist Colony Visitors

Victoria, B.C. (AP) — For $1, a visitor will be able to take a conducted tour of Vancouver's nudist colony this summer. The society has the objective of providing "a private and secluded location for recreation and the practice of sunbathing." Under the title of Van Tan Club, the society was recently incorporated, the first such organization in British Columbia. The published rules say a visitor may tour the camp for $1 as long as he is accompanied by a member "who will be responsible for his conduct." A camp hostess will welcome visitors and make introductions. No photographs may be taken without consent of the subject. Membership fees are $12 for single men, $6 for single women.

Accomplice Sentenced

Ipoh, Malaya (AP) — A 21-year-old Chinese was sentenced recently to 15 years imprisonment on a charge of consorting with Communist terrorists. He was arrested in connection with the assassination of a British planter in 1948. The arrest was made when two former bandits, now operating with a police jungle squad, saw him riding a bicycle in a nearby village. They testified at his trial that he was a member of the band which killed the planter.

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, Feb. 26—Mrs. John Valland and daughter, Evelyn, of New York, spent the holiday weekend at their summer home in the village center.

Olga Pastre of the Onteora Trail has employment in Kingston.

Otto Dohler was kept from his work at a Woodstock manufacturing plant Thursday and Friday by illness.

Homer Markle, Sr., Shokan's oldest citizen, observed his 91st birthday Sunday. The local nonogenarian, a native of Shokan, went to New York to work as a young man and later was employed at Glen Cove by the Ladew leather interests. Homer served 12 years as a member of the Olive board of assessors.

One of the readers opines that travel over the Onteora Trail hit a new high Sunday. The combination of perfect weather, a three-day respite for city folks and good skiing in the Catskills resulted in a volume of traffic heavier than on summer weekends, he says. It certainly was a grand parade, all right, especially between 5 and 6 o'clock when the hegira of homeward bound skiers was at its height.

Birthdays Wednesday include that of Mrs. John Marshall, well-known Olive Bridge matron. Helen was born at Krumville, a daughter of Stephen and Katie (Markle) Davis. She assisted with town clerk's duties during the many years her husband held that office and has performed numerous other public services. She has five brothers and sisters.

Dr. Abraham Rottkov and wife, formerly of Ashokan, were hosts at a party for 20 guests at their Fleischmanns home Feb. 9 in honor of the fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. David Silverman of Pine Hill.

George Nicholas, genial Boiceville hill road resident, is around again following an illness.

Boys will be boys, and Mickey Kelder of Margaretville is no exception to the adage: Mickey, according to the Catkill Mountain News, got the chicken pox (as who hasn't, up in Delaware), gave it to his father, George, and then went out and got the measles.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Corwin of Astoria, L. I., were at their summer place over the holiday. Mrs. Corwin, the former Alberta Gordon, of Browns, is the sister of Mrs. George Kuriger of Kingston.

Swaps Places in Ambulance

Carbondale, Ill. (AP)—A wife taking her husband home from a hospital in an ambulance swapped places with him before the trip was over. Mrs. Sylvia Hastings, of Paulton, Ill., stopped the ambulance en route home to confer with their doctor. There she fell down steps, breaking a leg and arm. Her husband, Warren, gallantly gave up his ambulance cot to her, and they returned to the hospital to have her admitted.

Investor Forum

Harry C. France

There are foundations under the securities markets that, in normal times, analysts take little cognizance of. Yet, today, in our complex economic world, anyone failing to take them into their calculations is missing an important security price factor.

Let me be concrete. Less than ten years ago a representative American investor bought 500 shares of Amerada Oil for $20,000. It looked like a sound growth stock and it was selling to yield 5%. Well, since that time it has been split up 2 for 1 twice. So today he has 2,000 shares and, as I write, they are selling for $180 a share on the New York Stock Exchange.

His shares will bring $360,000. Ten years ago in his wildest imagination he would not have guessed they would ever be worth half of this sum. He can cash in profits of $340,000. If he should do so, he would have two immediate problems: the payment of $85,000 in federal capital gains' taxes and the reinvestment of $275,000.

In recent years the good oils, chemicals, industrials—under the impact of inflation, principally have gone "through the roof." And millions of these shares of stock have passed into strong hands of those whose tax burdens are almost insufferable.

To be specific: Standard Oil of New Jersey, Union Carbide and Carbon, duPont, General Motors, Chrysler—stocks of leading corporations that have been split up during the past decade—are owned by thousands of substantial investors who will die with them unless the capital gains' laws are modified.

And this list of five stocks can be multiplied tenfold. In other words, the tax collector has, perhaps unwittingly, caused millions of shares of good stocks to be withdrawn permanently from the market. That will partially explain why Amerada Oil, paying $3 a share a year, is selling for $180 a share today. Frozen equities in the hands of American investors thus strangely influence prices.

Then again, ask a wise investor who isn't too tax conscious why he dosent take profits. Half of the time he will say: "Cash in profits? Not me. Not with the dollar getting worse day by day."

A man was in my office today. In his pocket were a dozen newspaper clippings all carrying about the same story. The inflationary dollar was the general theme. He goes about showing these clippings to his friends. He is telling strange tales. He knows what has happened to the pound sterling and the French franc.

Said he: "The dollar is going the same way. And the values to buy are those that are inseparably connected with industrial production.

I don't like the public psychology about money. No one interested in a sound American economy should like it. In 1933 during the bank holiday, everybody wanted dollars. Nineteen years later there are far, far too many people wondering, wondering, wondering about the integrity of our money. I use this repetition on purpose. For they are thinking what they should do with their savings their bonds, their mortgages.

When taxes prevent the liquidation of stocks because such taxes are too high and, coupled with this, is the general knowledge that the dollar is deteriorating, an economic situation fraught with danger is set up.

In such times as these, nobody should go off the deep end. Prices and wages are too high. They carry great deflationary implications. If they should tumble (as they will sometime) dollars in reserve would be nice things to possess.

On the other hand, federal unbalanced budgets that pour billions of inflationary dollars into the economy undermine the integrity of our unit of currency and encourage people to buy such good stocks as DuPont, General Motors, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Union Carbide and Carbon.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

No doubt I could have a lot of interesting items for this column if I had some old law books, and the inclination to wade through them. For instance, it seems there was a law written in 1909 governing juke boxes. It would be interesting to read it, for in those days the only juke boxes were of the Penny Arcade variety. One man could look at them or listen to the music with earphones. Today juke boxes play records, the choice of one person, but everyone must listen. Have you ever been in a place and have someone drop nickel after nickel to play one record. Remember the Penny Arcade down in Kingston Point. Those moving picture slides were something. Or the lady who swung around and told you your fortune on a card for a penny. The minute I arrived at the Point I asked my father for money to go to the Penny Arcade. Annie Cohen used to change our silver into pennies, and she knew most of us by name. I wonder if youngsters would go for the Penny Arcade now?

Looking thrugh the "Spectator" of 1912 the year book of the old Kingston Academy the some ten pages of advertisements interested me. The back page is taken up by S. Cohen's Sons of 331 Wall street, the Hart Schaffner & Marx store. They were advertising stylish suits in those days from $18 and up. Overcoats were going for $16.50. At that time Forsyth & Davis were at 307 Wall street. As I remember they were wholesale and retail stationers. They even had silverware and such items as baseballs and hammocks.

Wm. S. Eltinge, the pharmicist, had his drug store at 34 John street and was advertising, "soda water and candy." F. J. and R. J. Walters had their confectionery and ice cream parlor at 327 Wall street. E. T. Steele & Son's shoe store was at 298 Wall street, corner John street. They also carried straw hats and caps for men. The Kingston Savings Bank at 273 Wall street had a little item called "A Talk to Graduates. Now that you are about to start to make money for yourself, remember, it's what you save that makes you rich. By once saving a dollar a month, Carnegie can now spend a million a month."

E. N. Parish had their "First class Livery" advertisement stating: "Four seaters for Lake Mohonk, Board and accomodation, 119-121 Broadway, 2-4-6-8 Pierpont street. Kingston." I think they had sleigh-loads also. Harry P. Carr had a fishing tackle and sport store at 306 Wall street. He also kept bicycle sundries, automobile and electrical supplies, phonographs and records. Wm. C. DeWitt was in the general insurance business at 276 Fair street. O'Connor Bros. were running a lunch wagon at Broadway and St. James street. Their slogan was: "Eat and be happy on homemade pie." Traphagen & Hull Mfg. Co. at Bruyn avenue and Cornell street made library tables, desks, swing chairs, jardiniere stands, umbrella stands, book racks, ironing boards, relining chairs etc., Frank Byer was advertising "Cracker Jack 5 cent cigars." He did not give an address in the advertisement because he was so well known. He was at 259 Fair street.

Leads Causes of Death

More than 745,000 lives were claimed during 1950 in the United States alone by diseases of the heart and circulatory system. This is almost double the fatalities caused by the next five leading causes of death including cancer, accidents, pneumonia, tuberculosis and nephritis. Estimates of 10,000,000 have been made of the number of persons affected by the diseases of the heart and circulation, including some 500,000 elementary and high school children. Over the age of 45, when human productivity is at its peak, one of every two deaths is caused by these diseases. Help in controlling heart disease through research, education and community heart programs can be given through contributions to the Heart Fund conducted during February by the American Heart Association and its affiliates. Nudist Colony Visitors

Victoria, B.C. (AP) — For $1, a visitor will be able to take a conducted tour of Vancouver's nudist colony this summer. The society has the objective of providing "a private and secluded location for recreation and the practice of sunbathing." Under the title of Van Tan Club, the society was recently incorporated, the first such organization in British Columbia. The published rules say a visitor may tour the camp for $1 as long as he is accompanied by a member "who will be responsible for his conduct." A camp hostess will welcome visitors and make introductions. No photographs may be taken without consent of the subject. Membership fees are $12 for single men, $6 for single women.

Accomplice Sentenced

Ipoh, Malaya (AP) — A 21-year-old Chinese was sentenced recently to 15 years imprisonment on a charge of consorting with Communist terrorists. He was arrested in connection with the assassination of a British planter in 1948. The arrest was made when two former bandits, now operating with a police jungle squad, saw him riding a bicycle in a nearby village. They testified at his trial that he was a member of the band which killed the planter.

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, Feb. 26—Mrs. John Valland and daughter, Evelyn, of New York, spent the holiday weekend at their summer home in the village center.

Olga Pastre of the Onteora Trail has employment in Kingston.

Otto Dohler was kept from his work at a Woodstock manufacturing plant Thursday and Friday by illness.

Homer Markle, Sr., Shokan's oldest citizen, observed his 91st birthday Sunday. The local nonogenarian, a native of Shokan, went to New York to work as a young man and later was employed at Glen Cove by the Ladew leather interests. Homer served 12 years as a member of the Olive board of assessors.

One of the readers opines that travel over the Onteora Trail hit a new high Sunday. The combination of perfect weather, a three-day respite for city folks and good skiing in the Catskills resulted in a volume of traffic heavier than on summer weekends, he says. It certainly was a grand parade, all right, especially between 5 and 6 o'clock when the hegira of homeward bound skiers was at its height.

Birthdays Wednesday include that of Mrs. John Marshall, well-known Olive Bridge matron. Helen was born at Krumville, a daughter of Stephen and Katie (Markle) Davis. She assisted with town clerk's duties during the many years her husband held that office and has performed numerous other public services. She has five brothers and sisters.

Dr. Abraham Rottkov and wife, formerly of Ashokan, were hosts at a party for 20 guests at their Fleischmanns home Feb. 9 in honor of the fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. David Silverman of Pine Hill.

George Nicholas, genial Boiceville hill road resident, is around again following an illness.

Boys will be boys, and Mickey Kelder of Margaretville is no exception to the adage: Mickey, according to the Catkill Mountain News, got the chicken pox (as who hasn't, up in Delaware), gave it to his father, George, and then went out and got the measles.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Corwin of Astoria, L. I., were at their summer place over the holiday. Mrs. Corwin, the former Alberta Gordon, of Browns, is the sister of Mrs. George Kuriger of Kingston.

Swaps Places in Ambulance

Carbondale, Ill. (AP)—A wife taking her husband home from a hospital in an ambulance swapped places with him before the trip was over. Mrs. Sylvia Hastings, of Paulton, Ill., stopped the ambulance en route home to confer with their doctor. There she fell down steps, breaking a leg and arm. Her husband, Warren, gallantly gave up his ambulance cot to her, and they returned to the hospital to have her admitted.

Cesare Siepe to Appear Here Next Week, Currently Singing Roles at Metropolitan

Cesare Siepe will appear at the Kingston High School auditorium Thursday, March 6, under the auspices of the Community Concerts Association. Siepi, who has been on an extended concert tour, has returned to the Metropolitan Opera Company where he will be heard in a variety of roles this week, in the operas La Boheme on Tuesday night; Aida, Wednesday night and the Marriage of Figaro, Saturday afternoon.

Born in Milan in 1924, the young basso made his Metropolitan debut in 1950 when he was hailed on opening night by admirers of all ages for his dignified portrayal of King Philip 2. He has been heard since his debut in many operas including Don Carlo.

Career Begins

Siepe started singing at 15 and two years later entered the studio of Maestro Chiesa, who prepared him for his debut as Sparafucile in the town of Schio near Venice. This event was also made possible by the fact that only three months earlier he had won first prize at the National Singing Contest in Florence and with it the interest of opera managements throughout Italy.

He sang Mefistofele under Toscanini, and the Verdi Requiem both with Mitropoulos at the Florence May Festival and with Toscanini at La Scala. Later he did the title role in Handel's Julius Caesar at Pompeii, under the direction of Herbert Graf. Siepi is also well known in England where he has sung Pistol in a Covent Garden Falstaff and concerts in Albert Hall and also at the Edinburgh Festival.

Siepe's voice was first brought to this country by Cetra-Soria Records who released his discs of arias from Don Carlo, Vespri Siciliani and Mefistofele two years ago. Many long playing records combining these selections with numerous other arias have been released.

Metropolitan Engages

According to Opera News, Siepi's engagement by the Metropolitan was a sudden affair, carrid on by transatlantic telephone with side calls to Washington. But the young basso seemed to preserve his natural gaiety and relaxation in the stress of rapid changes of plan and the surging crowds that surround the Opera House. He had a taste of New York before, on his way to sing Mignon, Favorita, Faust and The Barber, in Mexico during 1949. "But with his ebullient temperament and fine voice, wide operatic experience is not needed to account for his natural, easy-going assurance. And even the heartbreak of a grim Spanish monarch cannot depress Cesare Siepi for more than a single evening."

A Great Singer

A more personal observation of the popular young basso was recently made to a Freeman reporter by Victor H. Dardenne, second concertmeister of the Metropolitan Opera orchestra and a summer resident of Wittenberg, who had this to say about the artist, "Cesare Siepi is a great singer with a real feeling for his parts. He was very impressive in Don Carlo when he portrayed the role of the king. He has sung in many other operas and has always proved himself to be an outstanding artist, a singer as well as a comedian."

This concert will conclude the distinguished series presented this season by the Community Concerts Association. As a new feature, subscribers for next season's concerts may signify their intention on the night of the final concert. Mrs. Reynolds B. Carr and Mrs. Bernard Forst, co-chairmen, membership committee will be at the auditorium to take the subscriptions. The annual drive will open April 20 but since the number of memberships will be limited to 1,100 those interested are urged to sign up prior to the opening of the drive.

Nursing Committee Meets in Accord

Dr. Donald Dickson of this city was the guest speaker at the last meeting of the Public Health Nursing Committee in Accord. Dr. Dickson also showed a film Guard Your Heart and answered numerous questions on the subject which were submitted by those present.

A baby clinic will take place in the health room of the Accord school, Wednesday from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. Dr. Rachel Holloway will attend and will be assisted by Miss Millicent Pease, staff nurse.

Refreshments were served during the social hour following the meeting by Mmes. John Schoonmaker, Donald Schoonmaker and William Anderson.

Catholic Daughters Celebrate 40th Anniversary

The Catholic Daughters of America, Court Santa Maria 164, celebrated the 40th anniversary of the local organization Monday evening with a banquet at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Approximately 250 members and guests were in attendance. Joseph F. Sullivan, city historian, had attended the first organization meeting in December, 1911, as grand knight of the Knights of Columbus. As one of the guests of honor, he briefly reviewed the Court's history. Other historic notes were contributed by Mrs. Mary Loughran, first historian, and Mrs. Arthur Ballard, secretary. Also honored guests, The Rt. Rev. Monsignor Stephen P. Connelly and the Rev. Austin V. Carey, chaplain, congratulated the members on their outstanding organization.

Mrs. Vincent A. Gorman, grand regent, presided at the banquet and introduced the guest speakers Mrs. Mary Gaffney, district deputy, and Mrs. Jane Bensing, state treasurer.

WILLIAM KROLL

The eminent concert violinist and composer William Kroll, also founder of the well known Kroll Quartet, will return to the Tanglewood School this year as head of the chamber music department, according to advice received today which also outlined several new additions in the plans for the tenth session of the summer school. The announcement was made by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center.

William Kroll is best known perhaps in the field of chamber music. He was first violinist with the Coolidge String Quartet for 10 years before founding his own Kroll Quartet, which has concertized throughout the United States, Mexico and the Hawaiian Islands, and which has appeared frequently during this past season in New York city.

As a composer, Kroll has written works for violin, piano, string quartet and string orchestra. His most popular work, Banjo and Fiddle, has been recorded by Jascha Heifetz for Victor.

For the past several years in Woodstock, where he has been a summer resident for more than 20 years, professional musicians from various parts of the United States have been instructed by Kroll in the art of chamber music. The Maverick Chamber Music concerts have long been of special interest to him.

Enlarged Policy

The school which opens June 30 for six weeks will have a much enlarged scholarship policy. It will award tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship fund to all active students in the advanced departments. The policy is now broadened to help make it possible for pre-professional students to be admitted on considerations of musical promise alone, without regard to their present ability to pay tuition.

Another development is the arrangement that advanced students may concentrate on chamber music or song repertoire alone. Also important, is the new feature of the summer session which will be an expanded department for general music students, music educators and amateurs. Called the Tanglewood Study Group, it will be headed by Ingolf Dahl and will carry into the field of contemporary music, the collegium musicum idea of group performance for the pleasure of the participants. Students in this department who are not able to attend the full six-week session will be permitted to enroll for two or four weeks.

Faculty

The Berkshire Music Center is maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with its Berkshire Festival concerts. The faculty, in addition to 20 members of the Boston Symphony, will include Aaron Copland as assistant director and teacher of composition; Leonard Bernstein in charge of conducting and the student orchestra; William Kroll as head of the chamber music department while Gregor Piatigorsky is on leave of absence; Hugh Ross in charge of chorus, and Boris Goldovsky of opera.

Luigi Dallapiccola will again come from Itay to teach composition.

Alice Lifshitz to Wed

New York, (Special to the Freeman) Feb. 25—Miss Alice Lifshitz, former Kingston girl, now at 388 Midwood street, Brooklyn, and Herman Niemand, an artist, of 43-11 14th Avenue, Brooklyn, secured a marriage license at the City Clerk's Office here today.

The bride-elect was born in Kingston, the daughter of Samuel and Helen Annis Lifshitz. Her fiance, the son of Joseph and Mathilda Niemand, was born in Austria.

The couple did not disclose their wedding plans but said that they would be married soon.

Hillel Foundation Provides Training

The Hillel Foundation, among other accomplishments, provides Jewish training for the student on the campus, so that they will not sever their relations to the environment found at home. This will be one of many phases to be discussed at the meeting of the Zephaniah Chapter of B'nai B'rith at the Community Center on Wall street, Wednesday at 8:30.

Rabbi Erwin Zimet, counselor of the Hillel Chapter of Vassar College, will be the guest speaker. Herman Eaton, as program chairman, will introduce the guests and serve as moderator during the panel discussion in which the audience will participate.

Much has been done by Hillel to acquaint the university with the Jewish contributions to civilization. Many of the organization's directors give courses on Jadaism for the general student body.

On campuses where a full time Hillel Foundation is not practical because of lack of funds or a smaller number of Jewish students, part time counsellorships are being founded. In such cases, a qualified authority in Judaism, usually a rabbi, spends part of his time each week with the designated Jewish student body, projecting programs and activities in the Jewish field.

Rabbi Arthur Lelyveld is head of the Foundation and describes it as one of the most creative areas of the Order of B'nai B'rith.

Cesare Siepe to Appear Here Next Week, Currently Singing Roles at Metropolitan

Cesare Siepe will appear at the Kingston High School auditorium Thursday, March 6, under the auspices of the Community Concerts Association. Siepi, who has been on an extended concert tour, has returned to the Metropolitan Opera Company where he will be heard in a variety of roles this week, in the operas La Boheme on Tuesday night; Aida, Wednesday night and the Marriage of Figaro, Saturday afternoon.

Born in Milan in 1924, the young basso made his Metropolitan debut in 1950 when he was hailed on opening night by admirers of all ages for his dignified portrayal of King Philip 2. He has been heard since his debut in many operas including Don Carlo.

Career Begins

Siepe started singing at 15 and two years later entered the studio of Maestro Chiesa, who prepared him for his debut as Sparafucile in the town of Schio near Venice. This event was also made possible by the fact that only three months earlier he had won first prize at the National Singing Contest in Florence and with it the interest of opera managements throughout Italy.

He sang Mefistofele under Toscanini, and the Verdi Requiem both with Mitropoulos at the Florence May Festival and with Toscanini at La Scala. Later he did the title role in Handel's Julius Caesar at Pompeii, under the direction of Herbert Graf. Siepi is also well known in England where he has sung Pistol in a Covent Garden Falstaff and concerts in Albert Hall and also at the Edinburgh Festival.

Siepe's voice was first brought to this country by Cetra-Soria Records who released his discs of arias from Don Carlo, Vespri Siciliani and Mefistofele two years ago. Many long playing records combining these selections with numerous other arias have been released.

Metropolitan Engages

According to Opera News, Siepi's engagement by the Metropolitan was a sudden affair, carrid on by transatlantic telephone with side calls to Washington. But the young basso seemed to preserve his natural gaiety and relaxation in the stress of rapid changes of plan and the surging crowds that surround the Opera House. He had a taste of New York before, on his way to sing Mignon, Favorita, Faust and The Barber, in Mexico during 1949. "But with his ebullient temperament and fine voice, wide operatic experience is not needed to account for his natural, easy-going assurance. And even the heartbreak of a grim Spanish monarch cannot depress Cesare Siepi for more than a single evening."

A Great Singer

A more personal observation of the popular young basso was recently made to a Freeman reporter by Victor H. Dardenne, second concertmeister of the Metropolitan Opera orchestra and a summer resident of Wittenberg, who had this to say about the artist, "Cesare Siepi is a great singer with a real feeling for his parts. He was very impressive in Don Carlo when he portrayed the role of the king. He has sung in many other operas and has always proved himself to be an outstanding artist, a singer as well as a comedian."

This concert will conclude the distinguished series presented this season by the Community Concerts Association. As a new feature, subscribers for next season's concerts may signify their intention on the night of the final concert. Mrs. Reynolds B. Carr and Mrs. Bernard Forst, co-chairmen, membership committee will be at the auditorium to take the subscriptions. The annual drive will open April 20 but since the number of memberships will be limited to 1,100 those interested are urged to sign up prior to the opening of the drive.

Catholic Daughters Celebrate 40th Anniversary

The Catholic Daughters of America, Court Santa Maria 164, celebrated the 40th anniversary of the local organization Monday evening with a banquet at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Approximately 250 members and guests were in attendance. Joseph F. Sullivan, city historian, had attended the first organization meeting in December, 1911, as grand knight of the Knights of Columbus. As one of the guests of honor, he briefly reviewed the Court's history. Other historic notes were contributed by Mrs. Mary Loughran, first historian, and Mrs. Arthur Ballard, secretary. Also honored guests, The Rt. Rev. Monsignor Stephen P. Connelly and the Rev. Austin V. Carey, chaplain, congratulated the members on their outstanding organization.

Mrs. Vincent A. Gorman, grand regent, presided at the banquet and introduced the guest speakers Mrs. Mary Gaffney, district deputy, and Mrs. Jane Bensing, state treasurer.

WILLIAM KROLL

The eminent concert violinist and composer William Kroll, also founder of the well known Kroll Quartet, will return to the Tanglewood School this year as head of the chamber music department, according to advice received today which also outlined several new additions in the plans for the tenth session of the summer school. The announcement was made by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center.

William Kroll is best known perhaps in the field of chamber music. He was first violinist with the Coolidge String Quartet for 10 years before founding his own Kroll Quartet, which has concertized throughout the United States, Mexico and the Hawaiian Islands, and which has appeared frequently during this past season in New York city.

As a composer, Kroll has written works for violin, piano, string quartet and string orchestra. His most popular work, Banjo and Fiddle, has been recorded by Jascha Heifetz for Victor.

For the past several years in Woodstock, where he has been a summer resident for more than 20 years, professional musicians from various parts of the United States have been instructed by Kroll in the art of chamber music. The Maverick Chamber Music concerts have long been of special interest to him.

Enlarged Policy

The school which opens June 30 for six weeks will have a much enlarged scholarship policy. It will award tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship fund to all active students in the advanced departments. The policy is now broadened to help make it possible for pre-professional students to be admitted on considerations of musical promise alone, without regard to their present ability to pay tuition.

Another development is the arrangement that advanced students may concentrate on chamber music or song repertoire alone. Also important, is the new feature of the summer session which will be an expanded department for general music students, music educators and amateurs. Called the Tanglewood Study Group, it will be headed by Ingolf Dahl and will carry into the field of contemporary music, the collegium musicum idea of group performance for the pleasure of the participants. Students in this department who are not able to attend the full six-week session will be permitted to enroll for two or four weeks.

Faculty

The Berkshire Music Center is maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with its Berkshire Festival concerts. The faculty, in addition to 20 members of the Boston Symphony, will include Aaron Copland as assistant director and teacher of composition; Leonard Bernstein in charge of conducting and the student orchestra; William Kroll as head of the chamber music department while Gregor Piatigorsky is on leave of absence; Hugh Ross in charge of chorus, and Boris Goldovsky of opera.

Luigi Dallapiccola will again come from Itay to teach composition.

Alice Lifshitz to Wed

New York, (Special to the Freeman) Feb. 25—Miss Alice Lifshitz, former Kingston girl, now at 388 Midwood street, Brooklyn, and Herman Niemand, an artist, of 43-11 14th Avenue, Brooklyn, secured a marriage license at the City Clerk's Office here today.

The bride-elect was born in Kingston, the daughter of Samuel and Helen Annis Lifshitz. Her fiance, the son of Joseph and Mathilda Niemand, was born in Austria.

The couple did not disclose their wedding plans but said that they would be married soon.

Hillel Foundation Provides Training

The Hillel Foundation, among other accomplishments, provides Jewish training for the student on the campus, so that they will not sever their relations to the environment found at home. This will be one of many phases to be discussed at the meeting of the Zephaniah Chapter of B'nai B'rith at the Community Center on Wall street, Wednesday at 8:30.

Rabbi Erwin Zimet, counselor of the Hillel Chapter of Vassar College, will be the guest speaker. Herman Eaton, as program chairman, will introduce the guests and serve as moderator during the panel discussion in which the audience will participate.

Much has been done by Hillel to acquaint the university with the Jewish contributions to civilization. Many of the organization's directors give courses on Jadaism for the general student body.

On campuses where a full time Hillel Foundation is not practical because of lack of funds or a smaller number of Jewish students, part time counsellorships are being founded. In such cases, a qualified authority in Judaism, usually a rabbi, spends part of his time each week with the designated Jewish student body, projecting programs and activities in the Jewish field.

Rabbi Arthur Lelyveld is head of the Foundation and describes it as one of the most creative areas of the Order of B'nai B'rith.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of 'Etiquette,' 'Children Are People,' etc.)

A STRANGE PRESENT

A reader tells me: "Last year on my birthday, and again this year, I received a birthday card from a friend with two dollars enclosed. I am a business woman and probably earn as much as her husband who has a family to support and resent this sending of money very much. Will you please tell me how I can tactfully discourage the further sending of such a present?"

You might put it to her this way: "Mary, dear, thank you so much for your present, but I'd so much rather have something to keep that you have chosen for me, than to have to go out and buy something for myself that you haven't even seen."

Doilies, No!—Mats, Yes!

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it considered bad taste to use doilies on end tables in one's house? I have nice furniture and do not like to have lamps and ornaments set directly on my table tops and dresser, and therefore use small doilies on my tables and a runner on my dresser. A friend of mine has criticized this and says it is in bad taste. Will you please give me your opinion?

Answer: White dining table doilies should not be used, but mats—either round or square—of material such as brocade, are pleasing as well as useful.

Acknowledging Greeting Cards

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother-in-law insists that every time I receive a greeting card of any kind, I sit right down and acknowledge it with a thank-you note. I can't see this at all. As a matter of fact, having to acknowledge these cards would take all the pleasure out of receiving them. I would appreciate your opinion of this as it has caused a lot of hard feelings in my family.

Answer: Ordinarily, greeting cards require no answer further than sending a card some time in return. If there's a message on the card requiring a reply, then of course it must be answered.

How should the men attendants of a small wedding party be dressed? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However, her leaflet E-8 includes details on small weddings. Ulster Hose Helps Rhoades Family With $100 Gift

As a direct result of a "Letter to The Editor," which appeared in The Freeman last week, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Rhoades of 13 Golf Terrace received one hundred dollars today from Ulster Hose Company, No. 5, Inc., of Albany avenue extension.

The check for $100, which is made payable to Mrs. Floyd Rhoades and drawn on the Kingston Trust Company and signed by Gerald Woodvine, treasurer, was presented today to Mrs. Rhoades by Austin W. Brown, assistant engineer of Ulster Hose Company.

The amount of $100 represents $50 collected from friends by Ulster Hose members and the remaining $50 is from the hose company.

The movement to help the destitute family by the local hose company was the result of a letter published in The Freeman calling attention to a veteran, Floyd Rhoades, and his family, who are in dire need of public assistance.

The hose company upon reading the article in The Freeman took immediate steps to come to the assistance of the family.

The letter pointed out that Mr. Rhoades is a victim of multiple sclerosis due to injuries received while in the service of his country. "Because of the 'red tape' involved, the various organizations are using the old cliche of 'let George do it' when asked for assistance."

The letter further stated that he and his wife and two children have but $60 per month for which to buy food, shelter, heat, medicine—in fact, all those things we take for granted as daily necessities.

When not in bed, he is confined to a wheel chair. His wife is unable to work to supplement their $60 monthly income because she must be with him at all times. The children, a boy of six and a girl, aged 5, also need her care.

Surely there is some permanent way this family can be helped. Let us all be good Samaritans and remember the words of Jesus:

"By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

The letter was signed by Mrs. Leonard Hinkley of Sunset Park and Mrs. John Cannaliato of 172 Flatbush avenue.

Recently Alan and Florence Kluger appeared on the Parks show again. They broke the bank for $2,050.

Makes First Contribution

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Feb. 26 (AP) — Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, made the first contribution in Korea to the 1952 American Red Cross campaign. He also praised the Red Cross and predicted all combat zone units will "come through generously" to show their appreciation and to continue "the tremendous job being done" by 120 Red Cross workers in Korea.

Fabrics Forecast Trend

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Woman's Editor

New York—(NEA)—While the waist-length coat is making fashion news for spring, there's news to be found in the full-length coat, too. Silhouette, when it's princess or pendulum, is a point. Fabric, when it's deep-textured boucle or handsome tweed, is another point.

The Directorie and Empire periods cast a strong influence over the cut of a coat this spring. Deep-yoked coats with curved sleeves, small waistlines, and back fulness are the results of a romantic past projected into Spring, 1952.

In the boucle-textured fabrics, colors fairly bloom. There are varying shades of white aster, azalea red, blue iris, honeysuckle beige, pink lilac, blue tulip and marigold. In the tweeds, black-and-white makes a strong combination.

By GAILE DUGAS,

Top designers have created cottons for active and spectator sportswear, evening and street wear, suits, coats and rainwear, as well as lingerie.

The wardrobe provides for weather in every climate from hot to damp to cold.

New trends in cotton are highlighted in the clothes that the Texas-born Maid will model during her extended tour.

Three-dimensional and textured-surface cottons, cotton tweeds and suitings, companion colors and patterns all are used, plus new weaves and designs and, of course, the familiar wrinkle-resistant cottons.

Elegant cottons for late-day wear with a definite air of formality feature silver overprinting, embroidery, shirring and tucking. The silver overprinting is used for a bouffant dress in muted green-and-blue plaid.

The separates group stresses the quick change idea—from beach to town or evening wear. This means that interchangeable pieces make it possible to travel light or to make a small wardrobe look large.

The new cotton suits for travel show precision tailoring with slim, moulded lines in fabrics that are news in themselves.

Cotton ottomans, jacquard cottons with diamond dobby patterns, striped or corded suiting and glen plaid menswear-type suiting. One brand new suit is in corded cotton terry that appears to be a black pin-stripe on white.

Coats with water-repellent finish, in coralberry velveteen and white cotton satin moire, can adapt to many occasions and climates.

One summer raincoat is in pastel blue cotton poplin with matching cap.

Cottons for an evening out are done both for formal and informal times. Lengths are both short and long.

There are short formals in frilly white organdy with contrasting panels of red cotton lace, black eyelet-embroidered batiste and silky broadcloth with lampshade tucking.

Women to Observe World Prayer Day

Kerhonkson, Feb. 26—The WCS of the Kerhonkson Federated Church, under the direction of Mrs. John Pfromm, will observe the annual World Day of Prayer in the local church on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The theme will be, Christ Is Our Hope.

James, who was president of the Women's Board of Home Missions, Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., called all women of the church together on a specified day to pray for home missions.

The day has now become annual and is sponsored by the General Department of United Church Women, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. Last year's service was extended to 17,000 communities in this country, and to 104 countries outside the U. S.

Do It Now

If you want your home to run smoothly and efficiently, never leave a chore until tomorrow. Tomorrow you will have other tasks, and when they all pile up, you might be discouraged. Especially is this true of dishwashing. A few dishes to be washed will mean only a few minutes of your time perhaps. But left until tomorrow's dishes accumulate, dishwashing can become a real chore.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of 'Etiquette,' 'Children Are People,' etc.)

A STRANGE PRESENT

A reader tells me: "Last year on my birthday, and again this year, I received a birthday card from a friend with two dollars enclosed. I am a business woman and probably earn as much as her husband who has a family to support and resent this sending of money very much. Will you please tell me how I can tactfully discourage the further sending of such a present?"

You might put it to her this way: "Mary, dear, thank you so much for your present, but I'd so much rather have something to keep that you have chosen for me, than to have to go out and buy something for myself that you haven't even seen."

Doilies, No!—Mats, Yes!

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it considered bad taste to use doilies on end tables in one's house? I have nice furniture and do not like to have lamps and ornaments set directly on my table tops and dresser, and therefore use small doilies on my tables and a runner on my dresser. A friend of mine has criticized this and says it is in bad taste. Will you please give me your opinion?

Answer: White dining table doilies should not be used, but mats—either round or square—of material such as brocade, are pleasing as well as useful.

Acknowledging Greeting Cards

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother-in-law insists that every time I receive a greeting card of any kind, I sit right down and acknowledge it with a thank-you note. I can't see this at all. As a matter of fact, having to acknowledge these cards would take all the pleasure out of receiving them. I would appreciate your opinion of this as it has caused a lot of hard feelings in my family.

Answer: Ordinarily, greeting cards require no answer further than sending a card some time in return. If there's a message on the card requiring a reply, then of course it must be answered.

Ulster Hose Helps Rhoades Family With $100 Gift

As a direct result of a "Letter to The Editor," which appeared in The Freeman last week, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Rhoades of 13 Golf Terrace received one hundred dollars today from Ulster Hose Company, No. 5, Inc., of Albany avenue extension.

The check for $100, which is made payable to Mrs. Floyd Rhoades and drawn on the Kingston Trust Company and signed by Gerald Woodvine, treasurer, was presented today to Mrs. Rhoades by Austin W. Brown, assistant engineer of Ulster Hose Company.

The amount of $100 represents $50 collected from friends by Ulster Hose members and the remaining $50 is from the hose company.

The movement to help the destitute family by the local hose company was the result of a letter published in The Freeman calling attention to a veteran, Floyd Rhoades, and his family, who are in dire need of public assistance.

The hose company upon reading the article in The Freeman took immediate steps to come to the assistance of the family.

The letter pointed out that Mr. Rhoades is a victim of multiple sclerosis due to injuries received while in the service of his country. "Because of the 'red tape' involved, the various organizations are using the old cliche of 'let George do it' when asked for assistance."

The letter further stated that he and his wife and two children have but $60 per month for which to buy food, shelter, heat, medicine—in fact, all those things we take for granted as daily necessities.

When not in bed, he is confined to a wheel chair. His wife is unable to work to supplement their $60 monthly income because she must be with him at all times. The children, a boy of six and a girl, aged 5, also need her care.

Surely there is some permanent way this family can be helped. Let us all be good Samaritans and remember the words of Jesus:

"By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

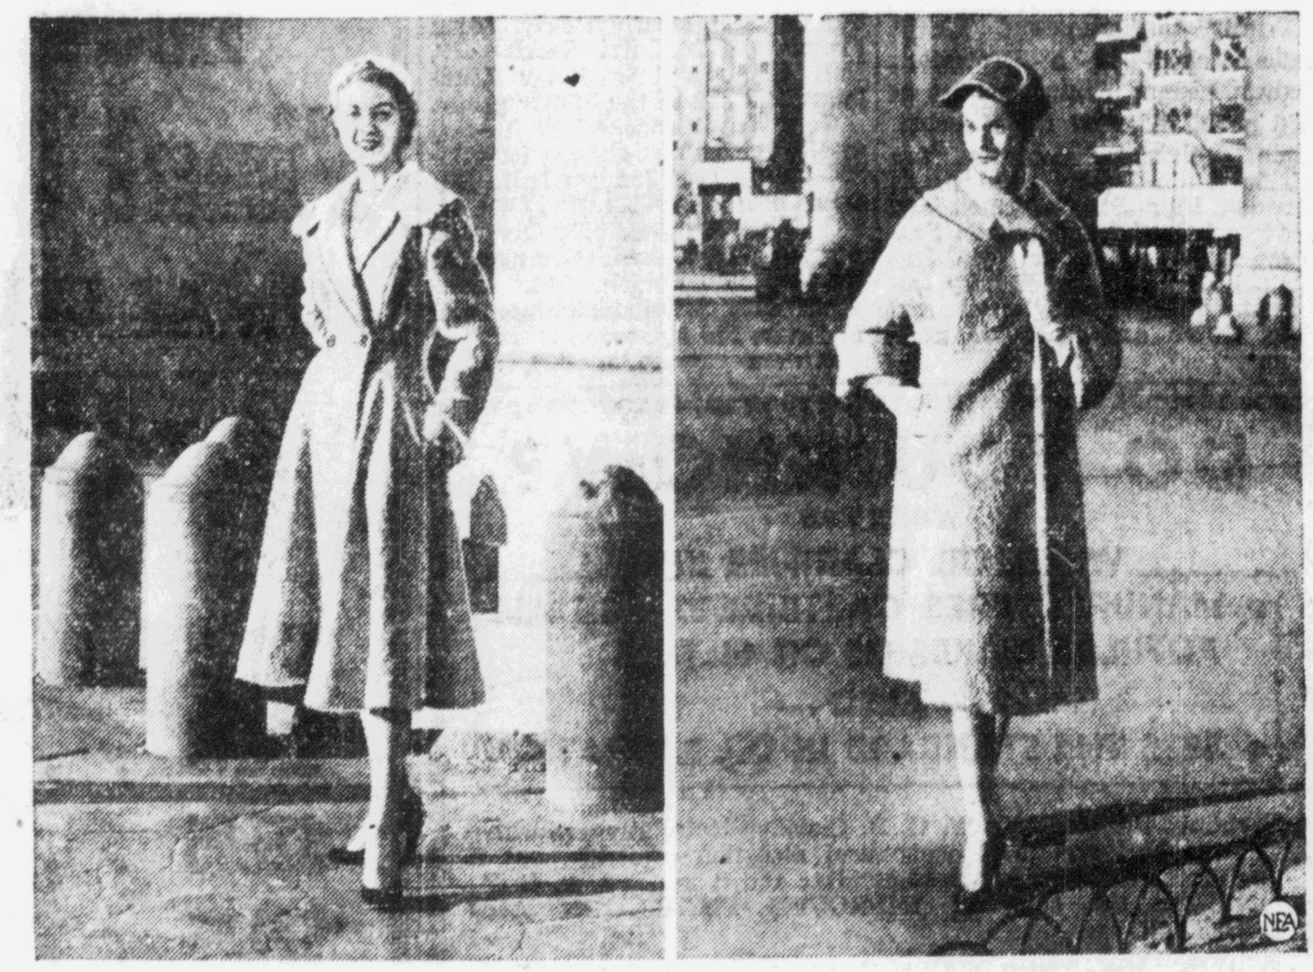
Fabrics Forecast Trend



By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Woman's Editor

New York—(NEA)—While the waist-length coat is making fashion news for spring, there's news to be found in the full-length coat, too. Silhouette, when it's princess or pendulum, is a point. Fabric, when it's deep-textured boucle or handsome tweed, is another point.

The Directorie and Empire periods cast a strong influence over the cut of a coat this spring. Deep-yoked coats with curved sleeves, small waistlines, and back fulness are the results of a romantic past projected into Spring, 1952.

NEA Woman's Editor,

New York — (NEA) — It's a completely washable wardrobe that Pat Mullarkey, the 1952 Maid of Cotton, will take with her on her goodwill tour of the United States, Europe, Canada and Latin America.

Top designers have created cottons for active and spectator sportswear, evening and street wear, suits, coats and rainwear, as well as lingerie.

The wardrobe provides for weather in every climate from hot to damp to cold.

New trends in cotton are highlighted in the clothes that the Texas-born Maid will model during her extended tour.

Three - dimensional and textured-surface cottons, cotton tweeds and suitings, companion colors and patterns all are used, plus new weaves and designs and, of course, the familiar wrinkle-resistant cottons.

Elegant cottons for late-day wear with a definite air of formality feature silver overprinting, embroidery, shirring and tucking. The silver overprinting is used for a bouffant dress in muted green-and-blue plaid.

The separates group stresses the quick change idea—from beach to town or evening wear. This means that interchangeable pieces make it possible to travel light or to make a small wardrobe look large.

The new cotton suits for travel show precision tailoring with slim, moulded lines in fabrics that are news in themselves.

Cotton ottomans, jacquard cottons with diamond dobby patterns, striped or corded suiting and glen plaid menswear-type suiting. One brand new suit is in corded cotton terry that appears to be a black pin-stripe on white.

Coats with water-repellent finish, in coralberry velveteen and white cotton satin moire, can adapt to many occasions and climates.

One summer raincoat is in pastel blue cotton poplin with matching cap.

Cottons for an evening out are done both for formal and informal times. Lengths are both short and long.

There are short formals in frilly white organdy with contrasting panels of red cotton lace, black eyelet-embroidered batiste and silky broadcloth with lampshade tucking.

A nice note from Christy Walsh came through the mails today.

In case you don't know, Walsh was for many years the personal adviser and financial agent for the late Babe Ruth. It was Walsh who rehabilitated the Bambino and made him financially solvent through expert showmanship and shrewd bookings.

We had occasion to correspond with Walsh with respect to the recent 50-year all-star major league team selected by Walsh's All-American Board. He wrote in return:

"Whenever I see the name of Kingston, I think of the grand old Babe. I brought him to Kingston for an exhibition game many years ago. What a day!"

● Flotsam and Jetsam:

If all the bowling challenges that are flying around are ever consummated, we'll know where the bear and buckwheat stand, but good. We're going to serve as the agent for each of the tests and unless the certified checks are on the line, there will be no contests. When Angie Ferraro departed for his Florida-Texas-California winter tour he confided to a friend: "They'll never get a man to replace me." Since Angie left, the Elston Sports of the Hudson Valley League have won 12 out of 15 and 11 out of the last 12. Proving that the indispensibility of man is still only a pipe dream. John Van Gonsic is burning up the Florida fairways. He also gained added honors a few days ago by winning a putting tournament in competition against some of the country's best golfers at the famous Everglades Club. Dan and Mrs. Shufeldt among the winter golfing citizenry in Florida. The Hymes brothers—Lew and Harry—trekking to Pinehurst with Alex Gerlak in the near future.

All of Beacon High's athletic difficulties shouldn't be blamed on the size of the school. After all, Beacon is bigger than Liberty, Fallsburg, Monticello, Port Jervis and Ellenville of the DUSO and none of these schools is waving the crying towel. There must be other reasons for the Beacon debacle, maybe administrative and coaching? The city of Newburgh has solved the problem of Little League graduates by organizing a so-called PONY League. The PONY represents "Protect Our Nation's Youth." The tremendous Little League activities in Newburgh and Poughkeepsie are indicative of the progress in those two cities. Here in Kingston there is a crying need for at least two more Little Leagues but not a single organization or individual heeded the recent plea by President Bob Umpleby of the Kingston Athletic Association. The man smiling and talking in the West Point pressbox was Vince Connelly, former St. Patrick's Academy basketball coach who is rightfully proud of his protege, Eddie O'Connor, a Manhattan College fixture for the next couple of seasons.

Poughkeepsie made careful note of Kingston High's plans for a new field house. The DUSO League thinks it's about time the Bridge City Board of Education moves Sam Kalloch's Blues out of that cigar box gym. The conditions there are a travesty on modern, high speed basketball. The Poughkeepsie New Yorker admitted as much last year, but to date we haven't heard of any plans to shift the Blues.

● When Cobb Turned Psychologist:

Shoeless Joe Jackson, the tragic victim of the Black Sox scandal, was the only man ever to play in the big leagues who hit .400 and failed to win a batting championship.

Ty Cobb and the Cleveland outfielder both went into the last month of the 1911 season hitting more than .400. The Tigers were playing the Indians and before the game the Detroit immortal walked up to Jackson and said, "Too bad you didn't come up in the other league."

"What's wrong with this one?" the youthful Jackson asked. "I'm doin' all right, ain't I?"

"Sure, sure, you're doing all right—now," purred the greatest of all ball payers, "but if you'd come up in the other league you might lead it in hitting."

Cobb walked away.

Bowlers, don't forget the closing date for state tournament entries is midnight, March 1.

Salvation Army 'B' Team Undefeated Leaders in Junior Church Basketball

The undefeated Salvation Army "B" team has won eight straight Junior Church League games to lead St. Mary's "A" squad by one game in the torrid pennant race in Andy Murphy's project.

Immaculate Conception and St. Joseph's "A" are deadlocked for third place with six wins and one loss.

The Salvation Army cage have shown championship class by defeating their four nearest rivals—St. Mary's A, Immaculates, St. Joseph's A and Old Hurley. An undefeated season for the league leaders is a definite possibility.

Defending champions, Immaculate Conception, suffered a heavy loss in early season when Don "Beaky" Smith aggravated an old football injury and has not been able to play.

Murphy said the post-season Shaughnessy probably would not be played until after the March banquet.

Lou Kantrowitz's 263–649 New Neighbor Records; 'Double Pinochle' for J. Bartsch

Lou Kantrowitz, Frank Nerone and John Bartsch, Sr., were among last night's tenpin heroes in the intermediate bowling wheels.

Kantrowitz set two individual records in the Good Neighbor League with a 263 solo and 649 triple. He opened with the big count and added 192 and 194.

Bartsch joined the "double pinochle" brigade in the City Minor League where Frank Nerone posted the first "600" of his career, 621, to pace Mauro's Grill to a three-game sweep over Joe Epstein's to take first place in the torrid pennant chase.

Milt Cole, Jr., Hits 254

Marge Logan's 511 led the Washday Blues circuit and Ferrell McElrath fired 203-215-183—601 in the Tavern Association. Flip Felipes 203-166-196—565 was best-of-the-night in the Electrol Night Shift.

Arizin Slices Mikan Lead to 11 Points

King George Mikan of the Minneapolis Lakers found his National Basketball Association scoring crown in jeopardy today as Philadelphia's prince Paul Arizin prepared to ascend the throne.

Although the Warriors bowed to Minneapolis, 108-95, last night, Arizin caged 36 points to Mikan's 28-point harvest to narrow Big George's advantage to a mere 11 points. Arizin now has 1,353 tallies while the Lakers' pivot ace has amassed 1,364.

Arizin has two more games to play than Mikan and the Warrior whiz can take over the lead tonight when Philadelphia visits Indianapolis. Minneapolis is idle until Saturday night.

Guldenstern Ready To Roll Ruzzo Manager

Bowling challenges are flying through the air on wings of skepticism these days but the principals involved insist they are ready and willing to go—for dough.

The craze was launched by Bill Guldenstern, the match-minded proprietor of the Catskill Bowling Center.

Here is a breakdown on matches now in the making and there is a reasonable certainty that all of them will materialize during the month of March.

1. Morris Cramer of Cohoes and Howard Braun, alley manager at the Bowlatorium, will tangle in a 40-game match for $1,000 on a home and home basis.

2. Bill Guldenstern has challenged Braun to a $200 match for a 10-game match; five at Ruzzo's and five at the Bowlodrome where he will use alleys 7 and 8.

3. Braun and Phil Versace, the Poughkeepsie sharpie, are willing to meet Cramer and Guldenstern in a doubles match at four alleys — Cohoes, the Bowlatorium, Poughkeepsie and Catskill.

The joker in the proposed Cramer-Braun tangle is Braun's insistence that he pick the alleys at Cramer's establishment and the Cohoes Clouter do likewise at the Bowlatorium. This, however, is only a minor detail that will be straightened out.

A meeting to post bonds and arrange terms is scheduled in the near future.

Guldenstern Ready

As for the Guldenstern-Braun match, the Catskill sharp-shooter says he is ready for Braun any time the Ruzzo manager finds it convenient. Guldenstern is interested in a short, 10-game match.

The doubles pairing of Braun and Versace against Cramer and Guldenstern at four different establishments has great possibilities but may be shelved because of the time element. The state tournament takes over local drives for the months of April and May.

When the match with Cramer was first suggested, Braun, who has 14 perfect scores in match games and exhibitions, said he would like to bowl a marathon of "30 or 40" consecutive games. Cramer didn't go for that proposal but said here last week he is ready for the 40-game test.

At the moment, the Cohoes ace is teaching Frank Santore of Long Island the facts of life on the polished lanes. Cramer drubbed the 1950 ABC all-events champion by 256 pins on Santore's home drives in 20-games last week-end.

There is still a bigger match in the making involving two nationally famous stars in a doubles test against Cramer and Johnny Ferraro, using the Bowlodrome's famed 7 and 8 as the home basis. If this pairing materializes, the other matches may well be discarded.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

A nice note from Christy Walsh came through the mails today.

In case you don't know, Walsh was for many years the personal adviser and financial agent for the late Babe Ruth. It was Walsh who rehabilitated the Bambino and made him financially solvent through expert showmanship and shrewd bookings.

We had occasion to correspond with Walsh with respect to the recent 50-year all-star major league team selected by Walsh's All-American Board. He wrote in return:

"Whenever I see the name of Kingston, I think of the grand old Babe. I brought him to Kingston for an exhibition game many years ago. What a day!"

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

If all the bowling challenges that are flying around are ever consummated, we'll know where the bear and buckwheat stand, but good. We're going to serve as the agent for each of the tests and unless the certified checks are on the line, there will be no contests. When Angie Ferraro departed for his Florida-Texas-California winter tour he confided to a friend: "They'll never get a man to replace me." Since Angie left, the Elston Sports of the Hudson Valley League have won 12 out of 15 and 11 out of the last 12. Proving that the indispensibility of man is still only a pipe dream. John Van Gonsic is burning up the Florida fairways. He also gained added honors a few days ago by winning a putting tournament in competition against some of the country's best golfers at the famous Everglades Club. Dan and Mrs. Shufeldt among the winter golfing citizenry in Florida. The Hymes brothers—Lew and Harry—trekking to Pinehurst with Alex Gerlak in the near future.

All of Beacon High's athletic difficulties shouldn't be blamed on the size of the school. After all, Beacon is bigger than Liberty, Fallsburg, Monticello, Port Jervis and Ellenville of the DUSO and none of these schools is waving the crying towel. There must be other reasons for the Beacon debacle, maybe administrative and coaching? The city of Newburgh has solved the problem of Little League graduates by organizing a so-called PONY League. The PONY represents "Protect Our Nation's Youth." The tremendous Little League activities in Newburgh and Poughkeepsie are indicative of the progress in those two cities. Here in Kingston there is a crying need for at least two more Little Leagues but not a single organization or individual heeded the recent plea by President Bob Umpleby of the Kingston Athletic Association. The man smiling and talking in the West Point pressbox was Vince Connelly, former St. Patrick's Academy basketball coach who is rightfully proud of his protege, Eddie O'Connor, a Manhattan College fixture for the next couple of seasons.

Poughkeepsie made careful note of Kingston High's plans for a new field house. The DUSO League thinks it's about time the Bridge City Board of Education moves Sam Kalloch's Blues out of that cigar box gym. The conditions there are a travesty on modern, high speed basketball. The Poughkeepsie New Yorker admitted as much last year, but to date we haven't heard of any plans to shift the Blues.

• When Cobb Turned Psychologist:

Shoeless Joe Jackson, the tragic victim of the Black Sox scandal, was the only man ever to play in the big leagues who hit .400 and failed to win a batting championship.

Ty Cobb and the Cleveland outfielder both went into the last month of the 1911 season hitting more than .400. The Tigers were playing the Indians and before the game the Detroit immortal walked up to Jackson and said, "Too bad you didn't come up in the other league."

"What's wrong with this one?" the youthful Jackson asked. "I'm doin' all right, ain't I?"

"Sure, sure, you're doing all right—now," purred the greatest of all ball payers, "but if you'd come up in the other league you might lead it in hitting."

Cobb walked away.

A few days later the Georgia Peach passed Jackson in the race, finished with a .420 mark, 12 percentage points ahead of Shoeless Joe.

Bowlers, don't forget the closing date for state tournament entries is midnight, March 1.

Seek U.S. Opponent For British Champ

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Jack Solomons, British fight promoter, would like to get Jersey Joe Walcott, Ezzard Charles, Rocky Marciano or Harry Matthews to meet the winner of the Jack Gardner-Johnny Williams British heavyweight title fight.

"I would gladly take any one of the four," said Solomons today, "and would like to stage the show in London in either April or May."

Gardner defends his title against Williams March 11.

Solomons said so far he has talked to Jack Hurley, manager of Matthews, but plans to see the managers of the other three before returning home.

Hurley told the English promoter he would be glad to accept the fight providing financial arrangements could be worked out. They were not discussed.

Kantrowitz set two individual records in the Good Neighbor League with a 263 solo and 649 triple. He opened with the big count and added 192 and 194.

Bartsch joined the "double pinochle" brigade in the City Minor League where Frank Nerone posted the first "600" of his career, 621, to pace Mauro's Grill to a three-game sweep over Joe Epstein's to take first place in the torrid pennant chase.

Joe Maurer was the scoring leader of the City Minor with 194-237-193—624 and Leo Bechtold rallied after a 155 opener to fire 203 and 244 for 621. Frank Deuire near-missed with 244—598.

Arizin Slices Mikan Lead to 11 Points

King George Mikan of the Minneapolis Lakers found his National Basketball Association scoring crown in jeopardy today as Philadelphia's prince Paul Arizin prepared to ascend the throne.

Although the Warriors bowed to Minneapolis, 108-95, last night, Arizin caged 36 points to Mikan's 28-point harvest to narrow Big George's advantage to a mere 11 points. Arizin now has 1,353 tallies while the Lakers' pivot ace has amassed 1,364.

Arizin has two more games to play than Mikan and the Warrior whiz can take over the lead tonight when Philadelphia visits Indianapolis. Minneapolis is idle until Saturday night.

Guldenstern Ready To Roll Ruzzo Manager

Bowling challenges are flying through the air on wings of skepticism these days but the principals involved insist they are ready and willing to go—for dough.

The craze was launched by Bill Guldenstern, the match-minded proprietor of the Catskill Bowling Center.

Here is a breakdown on matches now in the making and there is a reasonable certainty that all of them will materialize during the month of March.

1. Morris Cramer of Cohoes and Howard Braun, alley manager at the Bowlatorium, will tangle in a 40-game match for $1,000 on a home and home basis.

2. Bill Guldenstern has challenged Braun to a $200 match for a 10-game match; five at Ruzzo's and five at the Bowlodrome where he will use alleys 7 and 8.

3. Braun and Phil Versace, the Poughkeepsie sharpie, are willing to meet Cramer and Guldenstern in a doubles match at four alleys — Cohoes, the Bowlatorium, Poughkeepsie and Catskill.

The joker in the proposed Cramer-Braun tangle is Braun's insistence that he pick the alleys at Cramer's establishment and the Cohoes Clouter do likewise at the Bowlatorium. This, however, is only a minor detail that will be straightened out.

A meeting to post bonds and arrange terms is scheduled in the near future.

Guldenstern Ready

As for the Guldenstern-Braun match, the Catskill sharp-shooter says he is ready for Braun any time the Ruzzo manager finds it convenient. Guldenstern is interested in a short, 10-game match.

The doubles pairing of Braun and Versace against Cramer and Guldenstern at four different establishments has great possibilities but may be shelved because of the time element. The state tournament takes over local drives for the months of April and May.

When the match with Cramer was first suggested, Braun, who has 14 perfect scores in match games and exhibitions, said he would like to bowl a marathon of "30 or 40" consecutive games. Cramer didn't go for that proposal but said here last week he is ready for the 40-game test.

At the moment, the Cohoes ace is teaching Frank Santore of Long Island the facts of life on the polished lanes. Cramer drubbed the 1950 ABC all-events champion by 256 pins on Santore's home drives in 20-games last week-end.

There is still a bigger match in the making involving two nationally famous stars in a doubles test against Cramer and Johnny Ferraro, using the Bowlodrome's famed 7 and 8 as the home basis. If this pairing materializes, the other matches may well be discarded.

Navy's Don Lange New Cage Star

New York, Feb. 26 (AP) — A hook-shooting hotshot who never played high school basketball may be the star of the 1952 Army-Navy basketball game at West Point Saturday.

Navy Coach Ben Carnevale, making his annual appearance at a meeting of the Metropolitan Writers Association yesterday, unloosed a torrent of lauditory words about lanky Don Lange, a freshman center from Chicago who is six feet four inches, and weighs only about 165 pounds.

The Navy team as a whole, Carnevale said, "lacks a little in experience and about 20 pounds in weight but has the best basic personnel I have ever had as a coach." The 20 missing pounds are what Lange needs to give him the strength and endurance to play his best through a full season.

Lange, the coach continued, "has the greatest natural hook shot I've ever seen. The ball actually is out of bounds when he lets go a shot; it misses the backboard by less than an inch and goes in."

The tall youngster has been handicapped during the greater part of the season by his health. He hitch-hiked to Annapolis last fall, reached there tuckered out and promptly came down with flu. He still hasn't fully recovered, but on the nights when he has felt well, he has scored as many as 36 points a game and he hits around 70 to 80 per cent of his free throws.

Chicago—George Berry, 135, Gary, Ind., outpointed Dave Shade, 138, Detroit (8).

Illinois Moves To Second Place

New York, Feb. 26—The national champion Kentucky Wildcats kept a firm hold on first place in the Associated Press weekly basketball standings today, but if they looked over their shoulder they'd recognize a new pursuer.

Illinois, which just about clinched the Big Ten title by upending Iowa 78-62 Saturday, leaped from fifth to the runnerup spot in the latest ratings by the nation's sports writers and broadcasters.

Kansas State and Duquesne, who had enjoyed the honor of breathing down the Wildcats' necks, lost little prestige, however, from their upset defeats over the weekend.

The Kansas Staters, surprised by Colorado 67-57, fell only a notch, from second to third and at the same time shoved Duquesne, its 18-game winning streak broken by Villanova, from third to fourth.

Kentucky picked up 51 of the 133 first-place votes cast and scored a total of 953 points on the basis of 10 for a first place vote, nine for a second and on down the line.

Tournament-Bound Teams Come Through

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—College basketball teams headed for post-season tournaments or high positions in the nation-wide rankings can look back on last night's games with a good deal of satisfaction.

Four of the nation's top ten in this week's Associated Press poll and four of the seven teams invited to the National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden saw action and only one went down to defeat.

The lone defeat of the mighty was suffered by St. John's of Brooklyn, ranked No. 9 and an entry in the NIT. The Brooklyn Redmen were beaten by Holy Cross, 75-70, for their third setback in 23 games. Holy Cross, No. 17 and also an NIT entry, has won 20 and lost two.

Here's what the other members of the top ten did:

Duquesne (19-1), No. 4, defeated Akron 69-51.

Iowa (18-2), No. 7, whipped Michigan State 64-52.

Kansas (19-2) No. 8, turned back Missouri 65-54.

Duquesne will be in the Invitation Tournament along with Seton Hall (23-2), which downed Louisville in a nip-and-tuck affair, 83-81 on substitute Larry Brooks' field goal in the last six seconds.

Notre Dame and New York University staged one of their usual tight contests in Madison Square Garden with the Irish prevailing, 75-74, in overtime as substitute John Lattner dropped in a short one-hander with nine seconds to go.

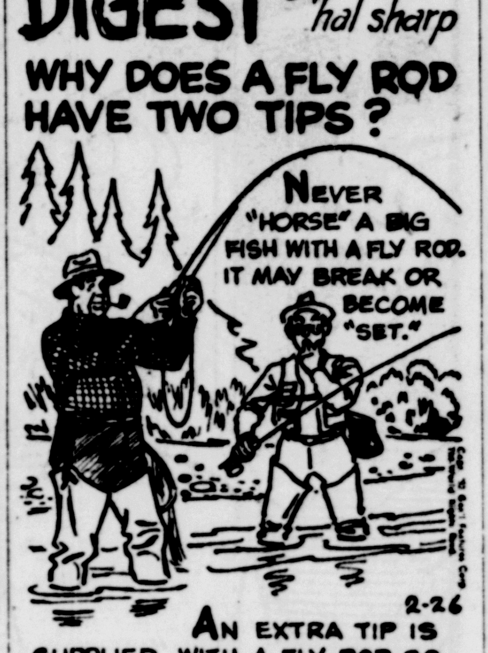
WHY DOES A FLY ROD HAVE TWO TIPS?



NEVER "HORSE" A BIG FISH WITH A FLY ROD. IT MAY BREAK OR BECOME "SET."

AN EXTRA TIP IS SUPPLIED WITH A FLY ROD SO THE TWO MAY BE ALTERNATED IN USE. THUS, ONE TIP DOESN'T DO ALL THE WORK AND BY ALTERNATING WITH THE OTHER TIP FROM DAY TO DAY ITS LIFE IS EXTENDED. A TIP THAT IS USED CONSTANTLY IS MORE APT TO TAKE A "SET" (MEANING A SEMI-PERMANENT CURVE FROM TOO MUCH STRAIN). WHEN A TIP BREAKS, YOU ALWAYS HAVE A SPARE.

Training Camp News in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Vero Beach, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—That lost art, sliding, has made an appearance at the Brooklyn Dodgers training camp.

Manager Chuck Dressen put his pitchers through a sliding drill yesterday and the hurlers seemed to like it.

"I've never slid in my life," said Johnny Schmitz. "I never had anybody to teach me. I used to dive head first once in a while."

Preacher Roe, probably the worst hitter in the game, commented, "They must be expecting me to get on base a lot this year."

Dressen said, "There's no reason why pitchers shouldn't be able to slide. They're athletes, aren't they?"

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—New York Yankee Manager Casey Stengel hopes to have a "big six" this year.

Stengel is counting on aces Vic Raschi, Allie Reynolds and Ed Lopat as top three starting pitchers and expects Johnny Sain, Jim McDonald and Tom Morgan to come through to form a crew of six starting pitchers.

Giants Near Quota

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 26 (AP)—The New York Giants were only four players short of their full roster of 35 today after outfielders Monte Irvin and Willie Mays and infielders Bill Rigney and Henry Thompson checked in.

Still due are pitchers Sal Maglie and Hoyt Wilhelm, catcher Ray Noble and first baseman Marvin Blaylock.

Irvin, Rigney and Thompson took part in the daily workout yesterday but Mays went straight to bed in the hotel with an attack of the grip. He is expected to be sidelined until the latter part of the week.

Tribe Has Troubles

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 26 (AP)—Cash, not baseball, was Cleveland General Manager Hank Greenberg's pressing problem today, even though this is the first day of spring practice.

Greenberg has landed Larry Doby for around $20,000 (pay cut estimate: $5,000), but he still has to contend with major holdouts Mike Garcia and Bob Avila. They think they should make $20,000, too.

Then outfielder Sam Chapman is muttering about quitting, and infielder George Stirnweiss hasn't signed. For the rest, rookies Joe Montalvo and Jim Fridley are expected to bring their signed contracts with them today.

Philadelphia—Gil Turner, 147, Philadelphia, outpointed Del Flanagan, 145, St. Paul (10).

The good that woodpeckers do in eating destructive insects far outweighs any pecking damage to the tree itself, tree experts say.

As many as half a million menhaden, a species of fish, have been trapped in a single catch.

Navy's Don Lange New Cage Star

New York, Feb. 26 (AP) — A hook-shooting hotshot who never played high school basketball may be the star of the 1952 Army-Navy basketball game at West Point Saturday.

Navy Coach Ben Carnevale, making his annual appearance at a meeting of the Metropolitan Writers Association yesterday, unloosed a torrent of lauditory words about lanky Don Lange, a freshman center from Chicago who is six feet four inches, and weighs only about 165 pounds.

The Navy team as a whole, Carnevale said, "lacks a little in experience and about 20 pounds in weight but has the best basic personnel I have ever had as a coach." The 20 missing pounds are what Lange needs to give him the strength and endurance to play his best through a full season.

Lange, the coach continued, "has the greatest natural hook shot I've ever seen. The ball actually is out of bounds when he lets go a shot; it misses the backboard by less than an inch and goes in."

The tall youngster has been handicapped during the greater part of the season by his health. He hitch-hiked to Annapolis last fall, reached there tuckered out and promptly came down with flu. He still hasn't fully recovered, but on the nights when he has felt well, he has scored as many as 36 points a game and he hits around 70 to 80 per cent of his free throws.

Chicago—George Berry, 135, Gary, Ind., outpointed Dave Shade, 138, Detroit (8).

Wappingers Falls Central and Coxsackie Added to Hudson Valley Relay Roster

Wappingers Falls Central and Coxsackie High will compete with the regular complement of Section Nine schools in the first annual Hudson Valley Relays on March 10 at New Paltz, it was learned today.

More than 600 schoolboy athletes, representing 40 high schools, are expected to compete in the events scheduled at New Paltz High's new track.

For the past several years, the Relays were held at Newburgh.

The Relays are shaping up as the biggest interscholastic athletic carnival ever held in this area.

The roll call will include such established powers as Kingston High, defending champions; Middletown, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie, Arlington, Ellenville, Liberty and Monticello.

Special Mile Race

In the lower echelons are Spring Valley, Suffern, Cornwall, Congers, Goshen, Haldane, Hendrick Hudson, Highland Falls, Marlborough, Wallkill and Walden.

The competition will be diveded into three classes: Class A for schools with student registration of 500 or more; Class B—schools over 150 and under 500; Class C—schools with under 150 boys.

Twelve events will be run in each class, with winning teams receiving plaques and individuals receiving trophies.

The scheduled events are: 440 yards, 880 yards, one mile, 1¼ miles, 440-yard Freshman relay, 180-yard low hurdles. A special invitation 100-yard dash will bring together the 16 best sprinters of the area together. The field events are the standard high jump, broad jump, shot put, discus, javelin and pole vault.

Illinois Moves To Second Place

New York, Feb. 26—The national champion Kentucky Wildcats kept a firm hold on first place in the Associated Press weekly basketball standings today, but if they looked over their shoulder they'd recognize a new pursuer.

Illinois, which just about clinched the Big Ten title by upending Iowa 78-62 Saturday, leaped from fifth to the runnerup spot in the latest ratings by the nation's sports writers and broadcasters.

Kansas State and Duquesne, who had enjoyed the honor of breathing down the Wildcats' necks, lost little prestige, however, from their upset defeats over the weekend.

The Kansas Staters, surprised by Colorado 67-57, fell only a notch, from second to third and at the same time shoved Duquesne, its 18-game winning streak broken by Villanova, from third to fourth.

Kentucky picked up 51 of the 133 first-place votes cast and scored a total of 953 points on the basis of 10 for a first place vote, nine for a second and on down the line.

Tournament-Bound Teams Come Through

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—College basketball teams headed for post-season tournaments or high positions in the nation-wide rankings can look back on last night's games with a good deal of satisfaction.

Four of the nation's top ten in this week's Associated Press poll and four of the seven teams invited to the National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden saw action and only one went down to defeat.

The lone defeat of the mighty was suffered by St. John's of Brooklyn, ranked No. 9 and an entry in the NIT. The Brooklyn Redmen were beaten by Holy Cross, 75-70, for their third setback in 23 games. Holy Cross, No. 17 and also an NIT entry, has won 20 and lost two.

Here's what the other members of the top ten did:

Duquesne (19-1), No. 4, defeated Akron 69-51.

Iowa (18-2), No. 7, whipped Michigan State 64-52.

SPORTSMAN'S DIGEST By hal sharp
WHY DOES A FLY ROD HAVE TWO TIPS?
NEVER "HORSE" A BIG FISH WITH A FLY ROD. IT MAY BREAK OR BECOME "SET."

AN EXTRA TIP IS SUPPLIED WITH A FLY ROD SO THE TWO MAY BE ALTERNATED IN USE. THUS, ONE TIP DOESN'T DO ALL THE WORK AND BY ALTERNATING WITH THE OTHER TIP FROM DAY TO DAY ITS LIFE IS EXTENDED. A TIP THAT IS USED CONSTANTLY IS MORE APT TO TAKE A "SET" (MEANING A SEMI-PERMANENT CURVE FROM TOO MUCH STRAIN). WHEN A TIP BREAKS, YOU ALWAYS HAVE A SPARE.

Training Camp News in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Vero Beach, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—That lost art, sliding, has made an appearance at the Brooklyn Dodgers training camp.

Manager Chuck Dressen put his pitchers through a sliding drill yesterday and the hurlers seemed to like it.

"I've never slid in my life," said Johnny Schmitz. "I never had anybody to teach me. I used to dive head first once in a while."

Preacher Roe, probably the worst hitter in the game, commented, "They must be expecting me to get on base a lot this year."

Dressen said, "There's no reason why pitchers shouldn't be able to slide. They're athletes, aren't they?"

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—New York Yankee Manager Casey Stengel hopes to have a "big six" this year.

Stengel is counting on aces Vic Raschi, Allie Reynolds and Ed Lopat as top three starting pitchers and expects Johnny Sain, Jim McDonald and Tom Morgan to come through to form a crew of six starting pitchers.

Giants Near Quota

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 26 (AP)—The New York Giants were only four players short of their full roster of 35 today after outfielders Monte Irvin and Willie Mays and infielders Bill Rigney and Henry Thompson checked in.

Still due are pitchers Sal Maglie and Hoyt Wilhelm, catcher Ray Noble and first baseman Marvin Blaylock.

Irvin, Rigney and Thompson took part in the daily workout yesterday but Mays went straight to bed in the hotel with an attack of the grip. He is expected to be sidelined until the latter part of the week.

Tribe Has Troubles

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 26 (AP)—Cash, not baseball, was Cleveland General Manager Hank Greenberg's pressing problem today, even though this is the first day of spring practice.

Greenberg has landed Larry Doby for around $20,000 (pay cut estimate: $5,000), but he still has to contend with major holdouts Mike Garcia and Bob Avila. They think they should make $20,000, too.

Then outfielder Sam Chapman is muttering about quitting, and infielder George Stirnweiss hasn't signed. For the rest, rookies Joe Montalvo and Jim Fridley are expected to bring their signed contracts with them today.

Philadelphia—Gil Turner, 147, Philadelphia, outpointed Del Flanagan, 145, St. Paul (10).

The good that woodpeckers do in eating destructive insects far outweighs any pecking damage to the tree itself, tree experts say.

As many as half a million menhaden, a species of fish, have been trapped in a single catch.

state of Missouri. In St. Louis he said without naming names yesterday that "the head of a government x x x has a clear responsibility x x x to clean up any corrupt or dishonest act as quickly as it springs up."

Kerr Wins Endorsement

Another Democratic presidential hopeful, Senator Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, won unanimous endorsement of his state's Democratic central committee. Kerr has said he will be a candidate only if Truman does not run.

The President was getting ready for three weeks at Key West, Fla., starting next week, before striking out for a busy season of campaign speaking. Whether he seeks another term himself or not, Truman has planned a "grass roots" tour to support the party and his friends seeking office.

Republicans were busy getting their candidates squared away for the approaching presidential preference primaries.

Senator Carlson of Kansas said national leaders of the Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower movement would not support a slate of delegates for the general in Minnesota's March 18 primary. He would be running against former Gov. Harold E. Stassen in Stassen's home state.

The Pennsylvania election board acted on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's request to take his name off the April 22 primary ballot there. That would leave Eisenhower and Stassen in the race.

Would Use MacArthur

Rep. Miller of Nebraska suggested that, if Truman stumps the country for the Democrats, MacArthur should follow him with a rebuttal campaign.

Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin, back in Washington from an 11-state speaking tour, said he found "unlimited" popularity for MacArthur, "a lot of good solid support" for Senator Taft of Ohio and "a considerable amount of sentiment for Eisenhower and Stassen."

McCarthy, who has said he favors MacArthur, said he wasn't ready to announce whom he would support.

Taft told newsmen he will campaign this week in Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin before going to New Hampshire next week.

The Ohio senator picked up strong support among 18 delegates chosen by Florida's Republican state executive committee. But Senator Lodge of Massachusetts said Eisenhower's forces won a "high significant victory" since "Eisenhower sentiment prevailed for an unpledged and uninstructed delegation."

Rosenbergs' Hope

Appeals Court's ruling but probably had heard the news on the radio.

No date has been set for their execution.

A defense contention that the death sentences constituted "cruel and unusual punishment" was denied. The Appeals ruling held with the trial judge that the spying continued past the wartime period of American-Soviet partnership into the hostile "cold war."

In the case of Sobell, a radar and electronics expert, Judge Jerome N. Frank dissented and voted for a new trial. The jurist said Sobell should not have been tried along with the Rosenbergs.

Up Beer Consumption

Frankfurt, Germany (AP) — Germany again is living up to her reputation as a nation of beer drinkers, latest federal statistics reveal. Beer consumption per head of the 49 million West Germans rose to 11.6 gallons in 1951 compared with 9.2 gallons in 1950. The pre-war high was reached in 1929 when 22.5 gallons per person was consumed by the then 65 million inhabitants of Germany.

state of Missouri. In St. Louis he said without naming names yesterday that "the head of a government x x x has a clear responsibility x x x to clean up any corrupt or dishonest act as quickly as it springs up."

Kerr Wins Endorsement

Another Democratic presidential hopeful, Senator Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, won unanimous endorsement of his state's Democratic central committee. Kerr has said he will be a candidate only if Truman does not run.

The President was getting ready for three weeks at Key West, Fla., starting next week, before striking out for a busy season of campaign speaking. Whether he seeks another term himself or not, Truman has planned a "grass roots" tour to support the party and his friends seeking office.

Republicans were busy getting their candidates squared away for the approaching presidential preference primaries.

Senator Carlson of Kansas said national leaders of the Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower movement would not support a slate of delegates for the general in Minnesota's March 18 primary. He would be running against former Gov. Harold E. Stassen in Stassen's home state.

The Pennsylvania election board acted on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's request to take his name off the April 22 primary ballot there. That would leave Eisenhower and Stassen in the race.

Would Use MacArthur

Rep. Miller of Nebraska suggested that, if Truman stumps the country for the Democrats, MacArthur should follow him with a rebuttal campaign.

Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin, back in Washington from an 11-state speaking tour, said he found "unlimited" popularity for MacArthur, "a lot of good solid support" for Senator Taft of Ohio and "a considerable amount of sentiment for Eisenhower and Stassen."

McCarthy, who has said he favors MacArthur, said he wasn't ready to announce whom he would support.

Taft told newsmen he will campaign this week in Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin before going to New Hampshire next week.

The Ohio senator picked up strong support among 18 delegates chosen by Florida's Republican state executive committee. But Senator Lodge of Massachusetts said Eisenhower's forces won a "high significant victory" since "Eisenhower sentiment prevailed for an unpledged and uninstructed delegation."

Rosenbergs' Hope

Appeals Court's ruling but probably had heard the news on the radio.

No date has been set for their execution.

A defense contention that the death sentences constituted "cruel and unusual punishment" was denied. The Appeals ruling held with the trial judge that the spying continued past the wartime period of American-Soviet partnership into the hostile "cold war."

In the case of Sobell, a radar and electronics expert, Judge Jerome N. Frank dissented and voted for a new trial. The jurist said Sobell should not have been tried along with the Rosenbergs.

Up Beer Consumption

Frankfurt, Germany (AP) — Germany again is living up to her reputation as a nation of beer drinkers, latest federal statistics reveal. Beer consumption per head of the 49 million West Germans rose to 11.6 gallons in 1951 compared with 9.2 gallons in 1950. The pre-war high was reached in 1929 when 22.5 gallons per person was consumed by the then 65 million inhabitants of Germany .

Dean Says Aide

was addressed to Australian-born Wilfred Burchett, correspondent for the Communist Paris Ce Soir. Burchett released it to the Associated Press today.

It said in part:

"It was good to hear from you and to have the information on my son's reaction (William F. Dean, Jr., at West Point) upon being informed that I was still on deck. * * *

"I am indeed grateful to you for getting the information that Arthur Clarke, my aide, escaped and is still alive. That wonderful news has taken a great load off my mind. Clarke was the hero of the night of 21 July, 1950, not I.

(That's the night Communists overran an element of the 24th Division. Dean risked his life to save his men, was cut off and escaped, only to be captured eventually.)

"I also appreciate your writing Mildred (Dean's wife) and getting word to her so expeditiously. Mr. (Robert) Tuckman of the AP sent me a copy of your radio letter."

Burchett's letter to Mrs. Dean in Berkeley, Calif., was transmitted from Tokyo to San Francisco by the AP's radio teletype.

Dean said, "your account of our meeting and your interview with me is extremely flattering and complimentary and depicts me in a very heroic light. I regret that I am not the hero you make me out to be.

"I hope that I am not presuming on good nature when I request you to send me by the North Korean liaison officer or anyone coming up here a fountain pen that I have asked Colonel Clarke in Tokyo to send you. I am very hard on a pen and I therefore dislike using another's pen for fear of ruining it.

"Thanking you for the kind and generous treatment of me in your report and again thanking you for writing Mildred, I am,

"Sincerely, William F. Dean, major general U.S.A. (POW).

"P.S. I have enjoyed the volume of Pausstofsky's selected stories very much. In fact, I have read the volume twice. Many thanks. Dean."

The postscript was a reference to a book of short stories on life in the Soviet Union that Burchett had given Dean at the time of their interview.

Dean also wrote Burchett that he regretted he was unable to make a radio recording for broadcasting. Dean said, "I am convinced that I have talked too much as it is."

Mininchellis and Hauffe Sentenced

on probation. Charles Gaffney appeared for the defendant on behalf of N. LeVan Haver who was out of town.

Ernest Shaffer, 28, Poughkeepsie, who had entered a plea of guilty to statutory grand larceny in connection with the taking of a car at Highland, was sentenced to 1½ to 2 3 years at Clinton prison and execution of sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation and that probation transferred to Dutchess county. Bail was exonerated and the first count of the indictment was dismissed. Harry Gold appeared for the defendant and said Shaffer had a good record, had taken the car while on a drinking spree but had since given up drinking. The car taken was damaged to the extent of $1,200 but the owner was compensated by the insurance company, which now may bring action against Shaffer to recover the money.

Escapes Sentence

Vincent Jesionek, Poughkeepsie, who voted twice last fall "to help out a friend" escaped sentence because the grand jury recommended leniency and because of his previous good record. Jesionek, who operates a jewelry business in Highland, voted in Dutchess county and then came over to Ulster county and voted again. He entered a plea of guilty to the third count of the indictment. Charles Gaffney, who appeared for Jesionek, told the court his client had "thought he could help a friend" and without thinking of the consequences had committed the act. Judge Cashin suspended any imposition of sentence and exonerated bail and dismissed the other counts of the indictment.

Leland Nuhall, 61, former town of Shandaken special police officer who was charged with having accepted money from a traffic violator, was sentenced to a term of from 1 to 2 years in Clinton State Prison but execution of sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation.

Nuhall, who has been in ill health for some time, was appointed a police officer to assist with traffic on weekends in the town. While on duty he is alleged to have accepted $5 from a state trooper who had been sent to investigate charges of bribery. Nuhall is alleged to have taken $5 and let the trooper go after a traffic violation last summer. William A. Riseley appeared for Nuhall and asked for leniency. District Attorney Bruhn said the court should consider Nuhall was a public officer who had violated a public trust.

Plea Is Changed

James Everett Phillips, charged with abandonment, changed a former innocent plea to one of guilty and will be sentenced on Wednesday at 2 o'clock. John Larkin appeared for Phillips.

The case of The People vs. Donald Otis, violation of probation, was postponed until Tuesday due to the absence of his counsel, Frederick Stang who was in New York on business.

Percy Brodhead of Kingston, entered a plea of guilty to assault, third degree, and will be sentenced on Wednesday at 2 o'clock. Charles Saccoman appeared for Brodhead, who was indicted for assault second degree.

Dean Says Aide

was addressed to Australian-born Wilfred Burchett, correspondent for the Communist Paris Ce Soir. Burchett released it to the Associated Press today.

It said in part:

"It was good to hear from you and to have the information on my son's reaction (William F. Dean, Jr., at West Point) upon being informed that I was still on deck. * * *

"I am indeed grateful to you for getting the information that Arthur Clarke, my aide, escaped and is still alive. That wonderful news has taken a great load off my mind. Clarke was the hero of the night of 21 July, 1950, not I.

(That's the night Communists overran an element of the 24th Division, Dean risked his life to save his men, was cut off and escaped, only to be captured eventually.)

"I also appreciate your writing Mildred (Dean's wife) and getting word to her so expeditiously. Mr. (Robert) Tuckman of the AP sent me a copy of your radio letter."

Burchett's letter to Mrs. Dean in Berkeley, Calif., was transmitted from Tokyo to San Francisco by the AP's radio teletype.

Dean said, "your account of our meeting and your interview with me is extremely flattering and complimentary and depicts me in a very heroic light. I regret that I am not the hero you make me out to be.

"I hope that I am not presuming on good nature when I request you to send me by the North Korean liaison officer or anyone coming up here a fountain pen that I have asked Colonel Clarke in Tokyo to send you. I am very hard on a pen and I therefore dislike using another's pen for fear of ruining it.

"Thanking you for the kind and generous treatment of me in your report and again thanking you for writing Mildred, I am,

"Sincerely, William F. Dean, major general U.S.A. (POW).

"P.S. I have enjoyed the volume of Pausstofsky's selected stories very much. In fact, I have read the volume twice. Many thanks. Dean."

The postscript was a reference to a book of short stories on life in the Soviet Union that Burchett had given Dean at the time of their interview.

Dean also wrote Burchett that he regretted he was unable to make a radio recording for broadcasting. Dean said, "I am convinced that I have talked too much as it is."

Mininchellis and Hauffe Sentenced

on probation. Charles Gaffney appeared for the defendant on behalf of N. LeVan Haver who was out of town.

Ernest Shaffer, 28, Poughkeepsie, who had entered a plea of guilty to statutory grand larceny in connection with the taking of a car at Highland, was sentenced to 1½ to 2 3 years at Clinton prison and execution of sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation and that probation transferred to Dutchess county. Bail was exonerated and the first count of the indictment was dismissed. Harry Gold appeared for the defendant and said Shaffer had a good record, had taken the car while on a drinking spree but had since given up drinking. The car taken was damaged to the extent of $1,200 but the owner was compensated by the insurance company, which now may bring action against Shaffer to recover the money.

Escapes Sentence

Vincent Jesionek, Poughkeepsie, who voted twice last fall "to help out a friend" escaped sentence because the grand jury recommended leniency and because of his previous good record. Jesionek, who operates a jewelry business in Highland, voted in Dutchess county and then came over to Ulster county and voted again. He entered a plea of guilty to the third count of the indictment. Charles Gaffney, who appeared for Jesionek, told the court his client had "thought he could help a friend" and without thinking of the consequences had committed the act. Judge Cashin suspended any imposition of sentence and exonerated bail and dismissed the other counts of the indictment.

Leland Nuhall, 61, former town of Shandaken special police officer who was charged with having accepted money from a traffic violator, was sentenced to a term of from 1 to 2 years in Clinton State Prison but execution of sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation.

Nuhall, who has been in ill health for some time, was appointed a police officer to assist with traffic on weekends in the town. While on duty he is alleged to have accepted $5 from a state trooper who had been sent to investigate charges of bribery. Nuhall is alleged to have taken $5 and let the trooper go after a traffic violation last summer. William A. Riseley appeared for Nuhall and asked for leniency. District Attorney Bruhn said the court should consider Nuhall was a public officer who had violated a public trust.

Plea Is Changed

James Everett Phillips, charged with abandonment, changed a former innocent plea to one of guilty and will be sentenced on Wednesday at 2 o'clock. John Larkin appeared for Phillips.

The case of The People vs. Donald Otis, violation of probation, was postponed until Tuesday due to the absence of his counsel, Frederick Stang who was in New York on business.

Percy Brodhead of Kingston, entered a plea of guilty to assault, third degree, and will be sentenced on Wednesday at 2 o'clock. Charles Saccoman appeared for Brodhead, who was indicted for assault second degree.

Local Blockprints Are in Demand by National Outlets

Woodstock, Feb. 26—When two artist-craftswomen are as devoted to and as completely happy in their work as Mrs. William Cramer and Miss Meriouw Smit, whose blockprint textiles have been attracting the interest of national magazines recently, an atmosphere of excitement is bound to pervade their studio.

Talking about their work in their new quarters in the building on Mill Hill Road, the front of which is undergoing renovations to house the Catskill Book and Record Shop, Mrs. Cramer and Miss Smit continued to work busily in their cheerful white-walled studio with the wide bay window which permitted plenty of light to fall on their work tables even on a snowy February afternoon. They were serenely unperturbed by the activities of painters at work on a brick-red floor for their showroom, and the continuous sound of hammers and saws below.

About two weeks ago they moved from their former studio in the Nook, which they had occupied for about four years. During that time they have developed the Blockprint Studio from a small shop to a point, at present, where they now sell their table cloths, place mats, draperies and various small blockprinted pieces to the Leah Curtis Shop on Park Avenue and de Soupcon on 61st street, who handle their creations exclusively in New York, and to shops in Philadelphia. In Woodstock they are presented through the Guild of Craftsmen.

At the moment they were working an a magnificent white circular tablecloth on which Miss Smit was applying an exquisite green peacock motif which was admirably suited to the shape of the cloth. Miss Smit does the actual printing of the blocks on the fabrics, for the most part fine imported linenes and some bleached and unbleached muslin.

Learned in Woodstock

When Mrs. Cramer came from Holland in 1933, she had never done any craftwork, but in frequent visits to Woodstock became acquainted with Louise Brokenshaw, ceramic artist, who inspired her to work on the linoleum blocks and gave her some instruction in the craft. While developing her own style, Mrs. Cramer returned to Holland and acquired a number of antique Dutch designs carved in wood, many of which have been incorporated into her present line. A comparative newcomer, Miss Smit arrived from Holland only three years ago, where she had taught some craftwork in schools there.

While Mrs. Cramer is creating new designs, Miss Smit works out the problems of applying to the cloth. Frequently the same designs are used in a variety of ways, according to the piece in progress. It may be a stunning white linen luncheon cloth enhanced by a pattern of fresh green herb motifs, spaced between quaint French sayings, or for a set of table mats and napkins small undersea patterns are grouped, each mat different and each napkin bearing a tiny figure in two corners.

A sturdy design, and striking either in drapery lengths, or used as a repeat for a solid border, the knight in armor, adapted also from an old woodcarving, has been extremely popular, in rich earthy tones combined with soft blues or greens.

Make Own Colors

"We mix and make all our own colors," Mrs. Cramer pointed out, "using a special textile paint. It is the only way to get exact colors and avoid harsh effects." In this they have succeeded admirably, for their colors, while clear and fresh have yet a subdued mellow quality highly in keeping with the old world flavor of their designs.

Although the term blockprint implies the use of a wooden block on which the linoleum cutouts are usually mounted, these craftsmen work with the linoleum unmounted and flexible. The designs are pressed onto the cloth by hand with the aid only of a large old-fashioned rolling pin. The prints have as a result pleasing and subtle variations, similar to the shadings to be found in a Persian rug. For the best effect, they prefer a fine grade of linen, a little coarsely woven.

As the pieces were brought out for inspection, the final, piece de resistance was shown with obvious pride—an elegant bridal table cloth printed in a soft grey-blue and earthy rose-red derived from the antique Dutch forms, a bridal chest, the bride and groom quaintly romantic figures, entwined hearts and an engaging group of proverbs—"Love must needs be blind," and "Be to her virtues very kind, to her faults a little blind." An open space at one end is left for the names of the bride and groom and the date of the wedding.

A feature which all of their customers request, is their small blockprint label bearing the inscription "Blockprint Studio," which accompanies each article and is printed in matching color.

Work Is a Pleasure

It was hardly necessary for Mrs. Cramer to put into words their evident enjoyment of their work for their genuine enthusiasm and eagerness to complete a rush order as well as their pleasure in showing their work was apparent.

"We love to do it," they agreed, "and it's so exciting when we develop a new design and try out a new block."

Varsity Loses, Jayvees Take Court Decision

Woodstock, Feb. 26—The Woodstock Varsity lost its fourth game in 22 to Jones Dairy last Friday night on the Woodstock court, by a score of 77 to 66. The Dairy hit for 11 points before Kleine scored the home team's first basket. Harder and Kleine scored all of the 16 points in the first quarter. Neither Foster or Waterous could find the basket. Jones Dairy scored 27 points and points were well divided among their 10-man squad. In the second quarter Waterous came to life with four field goals but Kleine and Harder were held to one each. The half ended with a score of 46 to 34. Kleine was out of the game most of the third quarter along with Harder due to bad colds. Kleine still scored seven goals in the second half to give him a high score with 30 points. Waterous was next with 16. Foster was unable to collect a point. Harder had 14; Herbie Waterous 2, Van Wagenen and Holdridge 2 points. Holdridge went out on five fouls in the fourth quarter. For the Dairy J. Smith was high with 31 points. 11 Navy Men Hit By Red Shore Fire

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—The navy reported today that 11 men were wounded aboard the destroyer Shelton Feb. 22 by Communist shore fire.

The destroyer, then off the northeast coast of Korea, received three direct hits; two enemy shells burst directly over the fantail. One of the direct hits tore a hole, three feet by four feet, at the water line, causing one compartment to be partly flooded.

The Shelton retired to a base in Japan after the action, which occurred during the previously reported repulse of an enemy attempt to land on a small island near Songjin.

Three Hurt Seriously

Three of the 11 wounded were described as seriously hurt. The navy did not disclose any names.

Two other destroyers received minor damage but reported no casualties on the same day the Shelton was hit. The destroyer Rowan reported a direct burst on one of its own gun mounts. The destroyer Henderson survived several near misses which caused some damage to the superstructure.

A navy spokesman told a Pentagon news conference that enemy shore fire has been more active in recent days than for many months previously. He also recalled a succession of enemy attempts in the past ten days to land troops on small islands along both coasts of Korea.

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Rep. Hebert (D-La.) charges that a "gigantic and colossal propaganda machine" of the armed forces has turned on "all the faucets" in an attempt to explain away his committee's "expose of waste in the military."

He called on the Defense Department yesterday to turn over to the House Armed Services Committee "the name and salary paid each civilian press agent, ghost writer and public relations expert and for whom and under whose direction the individual works."

Hebert, a former New Orleans newspaper editor, said "straw men are being built up, phony issues are being raised and an all-out effort is being made to explain away that which does not lend itself to logical and sensible explanation."

Hebert predicted "personal attacks" on members of the subcommittee.

"We mix and make all our own colors," Mrs. Cramer pointed out, "using a special textile paint. It is the only way to get exact colors and avoid harsh effects." In this they have succeeded admirably, for their colors, while clear and fresh have yet a subdued mellow quality highly in keeping with the old world flavor of their designs.

Although the term blockprint implies the use of a wooden block on which the linoleum cutouts are usually mounted, these craftsmen work with the linoleum unmounted and flexible. The designs are pressed onto the cloth by hand with the aid only of a large old-fashioned rolling pin. The prints have as a result pleasing and subtle variations, similar to the shadings to be found in a Persian rug. For the best effect, they prefer a fine grade of linen, a little coarsely woven.

As the pieces were brought out for inspection, the final, piece de resistance was shown with obvious pride—an elegant bridal table cloth printed in a soft grey-blue and earthy rose-red derived from the antique Dutch forms, a bridal chest, the bride and groom quaintly romantic figures, entwined hearts and an engaging group of proverbs—"Love must needs be blind," and "Be to her virtues very kind, to her faults a little blind." An open space at one end is left for the names of the bride and groom and the date of the wedding.

A feature which all of their customers request, is their small blockprint label bearing the inscription "Blockprint Studio," which accompanies each article and is printed in matching color.

Work Is a Pleasure

It was hardly necessary for Mrs. Cramer to put into words their evident enjoyment of their work for their genuine enthusiasm and eagerness to complete a rush order as well as their pleasure in showing their work was apparent.

"We love to do it," they agreed, "and it's so exciting when we develop a new design and try out a new block."

11 Navy Men Hit By Red Shore Fire

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—The navy reported today that 11 men were wounded aboard the destroyer Shelton Feb. 22 by Communist shore fire.

The destroyer, then off the northeast coast of Korea, received three direct hits; two enemy shells burst directly over the fantail. One of the direct hits tore a hole, three feet by four feet, at the water line, causing one compartment to be partly flooded.

The Shelton retired to a base in Japan after the action, which occurred during the previously reported repulse of an enemy attempt to land on a small island near Songjin.

Three Hurt Seriously

Three of the 11 wounded were described as seriously hurt. The navy did not disclose any names.

Two other destroyers received minor damage but reported no casualties on the same day the Shelton was hit. The destroyer Rowan reported a direct burst on one of its own gun mounts. The destroyer Henderson survived several near misses which caused some damage to the superstructure.

A navy spokesman told a Pentagon news conference that enemy shore fire has been more active in recent days than for many months previously. He also recalled a succession of enemy attempts in the past ten days to land troops on small islands along both coasts of Korea.

Francis McDonough, chairman of the event, requests all of his Irish night committee to be present.

Hebert Says Forces Are Using Propaganda

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Rep. Hebert (D-La.) charges that a "gigantic and colossal propaganda machine" of the armed forces has turned on "all the faucets" in an attempt to explain away his committee's "expose of waste in the military."

He called on the Defense Department yesterday to turn over to the House Armed Services Committee "the name and salary paid each civilian press agent, ghost writer and public relations expert and for whom and under whose direction the individual works."

Hebert, a former New Orleans newspaper editor, said "straw men are being built up, phony issues are being raised and an all-out effort is being made to explain away that which does not lend itself to logical and sensible explanation."

Hebert predicted "personal attacks" on members of the subcommittee.

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—A press was damaged in a three-alarm blaze early today in the New York Daily News' branch press and distribution plant in Brooklyn. The fire, of undetermined origin, was discovered at 5:25 a. m., about five minutes after the presses stopped running. Twenty employes in the press room escaped.
